NewFisherHallOpenson an Acoustical High Note

By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG

The new Avery Fiaher Hall, which has sprung from the skeleton of the old one after some five months of furious reconstruction, officially opened iast night with a Pension Fund Concert of the New York Philbarmonic, conducted by Pierre Boulez.

Naturally the house was sold out, the audience was distinguished, and the one question on everybody's mind was the acoustics. Had the jinx that afflicted the hall since it opened on Sept. 23, 1962, been licked? The answer was 'quickly forthcoming. The national anthem was followed by Nathan Milstein and the Brahms Violin Concerlo, and there was general happiness 40 minutes later. The new Avery Fisher Hall is infinitely auperior to the

The concert reinforced the impression made at the preview on Monday. Very few halla have the kind of detail that the acoustician, Dr. Cyril M. Harris, has supplied in this new installation.

Extraordinary Clarity

Single instruments stood out in high relief. It was elmost as if the Philharmome were a large chamber group. In any part of the dynamic range, too, from the wispiest pianissimo to the atupendous forte. Fisher Hall came through with extraordinary clarity. There never was any mushiness, any lonal shatter, any echo 10. mar, the orchestral steen.

Reds Defeat Yanks, 6-2 on 13-Hit Attack To Take a 3-0 Advantage in World Series

By MURRAY CHASS

The Cincinnati Reds, determined to show the basehall world they are the modern equivalent of the old Yankees, defeated the new Yankces, 6-2, last night at Yankee Stadlum and took a commanding lead of three games to none in the World Series.

The Reds, who ignored the chilly weather and a weak Yankee effort to make a run at them, can become the first National League team in more than 50 years to win two consecutive World Series hy beating the Yankees in game No. 4 tonight. They will pitch Gary, Nolan against the Yankees' Ed

Figueroa. Pat Zachry, the 24-year-old rookie who was the Reds' starting pitcher, was too eager to play in his first World Series game to worry about the weather.

The players had their own ways of keeping warm, but Graig Nettles offered the most positive solution as far as the Yankees were concerned." "Get a lead," the Yankee third baseman

The Yankees didn't heed the advice. The Reds struck for three runs against Dock Ellis in the second inning and took an early lead just as they had in the first two games. Ellis, who gave up three runs to

Kansas City in the first inning of the third game of the American League playoffs but held on to win, was starting agaiost the Reds for the first time since he deliberately hit three butters and threw at two more in-& game in 1974 when he was a Pittsburgh Pirate. This time, though, it was the Reds who hit him-not especially hard but enough to string together four fills. an Driessen, the Reds' designated hitter who was one of the Reds Ellis hit in that bizarre game two seasons ago, started the right-hander's problems by reaching first on a bouncer that Ellis deflected to Willie Randolph at second. It seemed as if Randolph had a good chance to get Driessen, but his throw was high and pulled Chris Chambliss off the base.

After Driessen stole second, George Foster, the major leagues' No. 1 run producer during the season; bounced a fly ball over the right-center-field fence for a ground-rule double that gave the Reds a 1-0 icad.

Bench was the next batter and he hit a soft liner that ticked off the glove of a leaping Chambliss for a single. Foster stopped at third on the filt, then scored as Cesar Geronimo forced Bench at second.

Lithuanian Architects Displaying Innovative Design in Vilna Suburb

nigh-rise towers of Lazdynai seem to float above the surrounding pine forests. Up close, they turn into traditional Soviet prefahricated apartment huildings.

Yet that is Lazdynai's appeal, for the residential district of 42,000 residents bas skirts of this Lithuanian capital with e creativity found in few other Soviet cities. Lazdynai represents part of a broader effort under way in the Soviet republic of Lithuania to give housing its owo personality.

Housing remains one of the nation's most pressing needs, not only because many cities were damaged in World War II, but also because living conditions got low priority under Stalin. Between 1971 and 1975, over 11 million apartments and houses were built in the Soviet Union.

This pace is expected to continue in the current five year plan.

But in the push to provide every family with its own home—a goal yet to be realized—quality and individuality have often suffered. Now there are signs of a reappraisal. Last February, at the Soviet party congress, the party chief, Leonid L. Brezhnev, ordered "designers and builders to improve the layouts of apartments and to build good, high-grade and

Attempt to Break the Monotony

In Lithuania, a Baltic republic absorbed by the Soviet Union in 1940, urban planners began trying a decade ago to break away from the monotony that afflicts many Soviet cities. Their efforts are noticeable in a ring of modern suburbs that have been built around this city, known in Lithuanian as Vilnius.

At first sight, the new neighborhoods present a stark contrast with the old city. which dates from the 14th century and retains a sense of bistory in its graceful medieval churches and narrow cobble-stone streets, Mr. Balciunas said the ar-chitects tried to carry the quality of dis-covery over to the newer suburbs. Lazdynai, too he noted, "is revealed gradually to your eye, you see something and then discover something more."

"If a man finds himself in a new residential area, be must immediately realize where he is," explained Vytautas Balciunas, the quiet-spoken chief architect of the city's Urban Plenning Institute, "The houses may be alike but the area must be different."

Lazdyoai, ebout four miles northwest from the city center, won the Lenin Prize in 1973 for architectural innovation. The instant community, which is laid out on wooded rolling hills, reportedly cost over $130 millioo.

The pina forests have been trimmed hack from the side walks and doorways hut not cut down to preserve green space around the city.

There are more than 200 huildings in VILNA, U.S.S.R.—From a distance, the ings are joined at angles like open books. Other five-story apartment buildings are staggered in series down the hillsides. Most of the buildings were prefabricated by a local factory. Prefabrication is favored in construction because concrete panels can be erected more quickly. But at Lazdynai, some buildings like schools were huilt of red brick to impart deliberate animation to the setting.

Landscaping touches included flowerbeds and sculptures like an abstract weathervane and a gaunt man on horseback. These added to the expense, but as one of Lazdynai's designers, Vytautas Cekanauskas, said in an article last May, "Why should a person have to go a bun-dred kilometers on vacation when be could relax right in his own neighborbood?"

Without any particular architects at heritage to point to, the architects find it hard to explain why Lithuania has led the rest of the Soviet Union in imaginative housing desigo. Some Lithuanians would say that It is part of a national creativity that becomes even more boldly apparent in the republic's flourishing modern art and sculpture.

Lithuania's architectural eminence was developed through trial and error. When urban plasners huilt the new district of Antakalnis in the early 1960's, they laid the apartment buildings end to end like dominoes along a single main street. This maneged to produce what Mr. Balciunas, the architect, called "a kind of wall."

"We wouldn't do it today," he said "but we had problems and we were

More Imagination Used Now The architects devoted more imagina tion to laying out Zirmunai, a new district that was awarded a State Prize in 1968. Construction is now under way on two even more modern suburbs. Lazdynai is still considered the most successful, partly because of its graceful setting. Highway traffic is generally routed in a loop around the development. Pedestrian walkways lead to four neighborbood shopping malis. · So far, there are only two restaurants, one of which includes a saucy midnight caharet complete with chorus girls. The designers consider these restaurants sufficient, though Mr. Balciunas observed that "we oeed to construct some cafes with quick service like French bistros, so if you quarrel with your wife, you can go out and have your lunch."

Crumbling doorsteps and peeling fa-cades on a few apartment buildings have already begun to suggest a shoddiness thet has heeo common elsewhere in Soviet construction.

Last spring in the oewspaper Pravda,
the Lazdynai architect, Mr. Cekanauskas, complained that a new series of housing the project. They draw oo 15 basic prefahricated models hut coovey a diversity that is much broader. There were the usual reports of clashes in remote rural areas between army pa-trols and small bands of Marxist guerrillas, or simply bandits, hired by the urban revolutionaries with proceeds from kid-

Business leaders say that the tax levels, which go as high as 70 percent for those with incomes over $30,000 a year, are unbearable, and they maintain that revenues are being used to pay for a bloated, inefficient bureaucracy to satisfy political ends

There are symptoms of a tax rebellion by the middle class and small business men. Revenues for the year are below projections and the federal budget, which was supposed to be balanced, is likely to show a $60 million deficit. More serious than this is unemploy-

Director, External Affairs, Wisconsin Avenue Nursing Home

The Wiscoosin Avenue Nursing Home is one of Washington, D.C.'s most highly respected nursing homes. It is completely modern-built in 1974-and located in a beautiful residential neighborhood just three blocks from the famous Washington Cathe-

Yet, it can cost as much as $100 less per week than luxury nursing homes of comparable quality in the

New York City area.

Why travel all the way to Washington, D.C.?

Three fundamental reasons: 1. $100 a week is an extraordinary saving for any family. And it is far more than the round trip eir fare between New York and Washington, D.C.

2. Many of the New York City area's best nursing homes-especially those located in reputable neighborboods-have long, long waiting lists. 3. Genuine concern and highly professional nursing home care are hard to find-anywhere at any price. It is crucial that an elderly member of your family receive the best possible care. And it is constantly reassuring to know that he or she is getting it. Professional 24-hour Nursing Care

We know you Americans have quite an eye for advantageous situations. (Though we've forgiven that one 200 years ago, we haven't forgotten.) Well, be that as it may, you're invited to take advantage of us again. And with the way our pound's been dropping, there's never been a better time. So to stay at nome now would be sheer folly. And this season is perfect for your visit, too. Our theatres are proudly showing their new performances. (If you take the London Show Tour-you'll see my new hit. And after the show, stay for a few moments and we'll have a little chat.) Our British spirits are as good as our fine British weather. And British Airways has some marvelous bargains for you to take advantage of as well.

Cheap-Cheap

* That is the name of our lowest fare, you know. And now it's even better because of what we've subtracted from it. Time. If you have a two-week vacation you can travel as Cheap-Cheaply as those of you with three weeks or more.

Mayor's Effort to Oust Holloman Reopens Issue Of His Lack of Control of Semi-Independent Units

By STEVEN R. WEISMAN

The board members were vexed that

For 18 months Mr. Beame bas made no secret of his displeasure of having to deal with the city's independent agencies narticularly the Boards of Education and Higher Education, the Transit Authority and the Health and Hospitals Corporation -and he has more than once called on the Legislature to give him greater statutory authority over their affairs.

The City Hall argument has loog been that the subsidies granted directly to the schools and colleges, as well as to the municipal hospitals and the transit system, ought to require tight mayoral control over their spending, especially since the Mayor is the one who must take the large if the city slipe in its rigid three. Insists He Is Powerless

All the time that he has asked for greater powers over the independent agencies, Mr. Beame has insisted that he is powerless to intervene unilaterally.

But there is another view of Mr. Beame's behavior that explains, for some, the latest turn of events. This view was expressed in a sometimes tense, argumentative tone at a meeting last Friday of the Emergency Financial Control Board, the state panel headed by Governor Carey option.

TWA beats American and United's on-time performance in cities all across the country.

The facts are in. Right through the latest reporting period, July 1976, TWA has beaten American and United's on-time performance for the past 14 months in cities all across the country.

We beat them between New York and Los Angeles, New York and San Francisco, New York and Chicago and many other cities.

These statistics are shown in CAB records for flights actually flown and include the busiest city-to-city flight segments.

The records show that TWA has the best on-time performance on more routes where we compete with American and United — based on percent of arrivals within 15 minutes of schedule.

Now you have the facts. So call your Travel Agent or Corporate Travel Department and put yourself on TWA. The airline that's committed to being on time everywhere they fly...to cities like...

RICHMOND, Oct. 19-Tomorrow marks the 10th anniversary of the death of Senator Harry F. Byrd Sr., the conservative Virginia Democrat whose gentlemanly political juggernaut maintained the status quo in the Old Dominion for more than three decades.

In the years since the Senator died, Virginia has become one of the country's half-dozen or so most rapidly changing states, an upper South leader in population growth, economic expansion, educational improvement and racial modera-

Many fresh political faces and new political alignments have cropped up as the aging, rural-dominated Byrd machine the "organization" to its friends—has come apart under the impact of urbanization and Federal abolition of gerryman-dering and the poll tax.

But Virginia is not yet completely out of the "Byrd age," for the fall of 1976 finds the late Senator's son, Harry F. Byrd Jr., sitting in his father's old Capitol Hill seat, heavily favored to win re-elec-tion to a second term in a race with Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, the retired Chief of Naval Operations.

There are other signs, too, that the state has not yet made full political peace with the 20th century, that the more things change in a place that hoasts of 369 years of tradition, the more they tend to stay

The current Governor, Mills E. Godwin, is the same Mills Godwin who was Governor at the time of the elder Byrd's death

The Virginia General Assembly is still a legislative body that puts as much premium on courtly decorum as new laws, the prevailing feeling being that the latter frequently do as much harm Senator Byrd, is still one of the most conservative in insignificant theme in a state that still "No Virginian of the 20th century has left so deep an imprint on the politics of the Old Dominion as did Senator Harry F. Byrd Sr. who died 10 years ago this fall. The decade since 1966 has produced politics and stands in Virginia heritage dates, back to 1764, when his forefather, Andrew Zumwalt, settled in Frederick County."

Zumwalt's Charge

Admiral Zumwalt, perhaps best known political conflict and change in Virginia reyond anything imaginable in the years when Senator Byrd presided over the state's dominant political organization. The Byrd machine has disappeared, but the political philosophy of its leaders re-mains powerful in the Commonwealth." The "conflict and change" referred to by Mr. 5weeney have so blurred party lines in Virginia that Harry Byrd Jr., though he looks, talks and votes like his father, has abandoned the Democratic Party and become an independent in order to remain true to the old political philosophy. The younger Byrd first went to the Senate on a gubernatorial appointment after his father's midterm retirement in 1965 because of failing health. The next year, running as a Democrat, he won the seat in a special election.

A New Format

"After that," he said the other day while campaigning in the Norfolk area. 'I saw the need for a new political format because the state was growing so fast and because political rules were changing and the Democratic Party was becoming more and more liberal.

"I made a conscious effort to stay away from the organization," he continued. "I became an independent and it worked. I find I can serve my state solely by voting on the issues now, not by party, which is the most important thing to peo-crats and new Republicans are pouring funds and time into his campaign to as-sure him an easy victory in November. "He might win by as big as 60 to 40," Governor Godwin predicted one day last

A third candidate, Martin Perper, a 37year-old northern Virginia hotel owner, is given no chance in the race. He is a little-known moderate Republican who recently switched to independent status.

Steady Turnover

Democrats still run the state at the local level, where personality overrides the national party's liberal ideology. But in statewide races, the situation is extremely fluid and candidates tend some-was heavily Democratic at almost all levels at the time—Virginia has voted twice for a Republican President and is leanin Republican this year. It has elected two Republican Governors (including Mr. Godwin, who was a Democrat in his first term), a Republican senator and almost a dozen Republican United States Representatives. Currently, its 12-member House and Senate delegation consists of six Republicans, five Democrats and the independent Mr. Byrd.

The delegation's voting record has remained predictably conservative or middle of the road except for deviations by House members representing the two districts in the northern Virginia suburbs next to Washington. Those districts contain a million of Vir-

The Tricentennial in your opinion.

Some time ago we ran an ad asking for your thoughts on life in the year 2076.

The response was overwhelming. Thousands of people from across the country took the time to write and let us know what they were thinking.

We heard from senior citizens and kids in elementary school. From liberals and conservatives, in every state of the union.

To all of you who wrote us, we thank you. Your opinions intrigued us. And encouraged us.

For here at Atlantic Richfield Company, we believe that a better future for America and the world starts as a matter of opinion.

Below are excerpts from four of the more than 53,000 responses we received.

Coystal Tabor Stone Assistant to the Dean, College of Education University of Texas Austin, Texas

(The following are excerpts from a Graduation Day address inspired by the Tricentennial Program, and delivered at the University of Texas, June 1976)

Many advertisements have been generated by graduation exercises. As far as I know, this is the first graduation speech that was inspired by an advertisement...

I am titillated by the question: What of a hundred years from now?

ST. PA

As teachers, you will very likely be teaching children who will be living in 2076. What can I say to you today that might have impact on them? What would I challenge you to give your students to survive in our unknown future?

The very things I would give to you, if I could:

I would give you curiosity—a wonder for all the world about you.

I would give you courage. For life is not gentle, nor a safe place. You are your own "safe place."

I would give you a belief in yourselves.

I would give you the right to succeed and the right to fail.

I would give you a sense of humor, for laughter is a joyful sound.

And finally, above all, I would give you the capacity to live your lives to the fullest. To love and be loved. To know the ecstasies, the agonies, the joys and sorrows. Take the time to contemplate some of our eternal mysteries—the unfurling of a leaf, the sprouting of a seed, the poetry of a bird on wing—all the things which combined, make for you a full life.

I would give all these things to you. I would have you give them to your future students. If they have these things, could they not meet 2076? Or 3076? Or even 1977?

Ella Watson Retired Government Employee Alhambra, California

As a senior citizen, the year 2076 will be beyond my lifetime. But for my loved ones, children, grandchildren and the citizens of the world, peace would be the greatest goal.

Lisa Clark 6th Grade Student, Age 10 Los Angeles, California

Dear Tricentennial,

Here is my idea: To make a commercial with a little kid reading a letter saying:

Dear Parents:

You are always saying you love us. If you really love us, you would save something for us to look forward to. So please try to do your best to keep the world liveable for us, because we have to have somewhere to live too. Also our children, your grand-children, need a place to live too. So, this is not just your world. It's ours too.

Thank you,

Your Children

Not Guilty

the aerosol spray paints manufactured today do not affect the ozone layer

Unfortunately, most people have been led to believe that all aerosols are harmful to the future of our planet.

That is not true.

The majority of aerosol products on the shelves right now are in no way suspected of affecting our environment. Guilt-free, you may enjoy the convenience and efficiency of virtually all spray paints, insecticides, shaving lathers, and food toppings.

The confusion has resulted from the blanket condemnation of all aerosols—when the point in question is not aerosols, but the use of fluorocarbon gases as propellants.

A panel of The National Academy of Sciences has considered the problem of fluorocarbon gases weakening our planet's ozone layer and threatening to affect the earth's climate. They have recommended select regulation of the uses of fluorocarbon gases and have suggested two years be allowed for further scientific study.

Unquestionably that is something scientists and government agencies. must resolve.

But we feel it is equally important for the people to understand that the greatest number of aerosol products produced in this country do not use fluorocarbon propellants. Almost without exception, all spray paint manufacturers use hydrocarbons, and hydrocarbon propellants pose no threat to the earth's upper atmosphere.

We at New York Bronze state unequivocally that none of our products contains fluorocarbons. Furthermore, we pledge to avoid the use of any chemicals or systems that have been adjudged harmful or deleterious by any recognized and responsible authority.

Do you remember the mess we would go through to paint with a brush? Do you remember the nuisance of making shaving lather? Or the time and trouble in mixing and dispensing insect sprays? Or whipped cream?

Today, most aerosol sprays are not only useful, economical, and convenient-but also ecologically safe. Misinformation should not deny any of us their benefits or the pleasurable experience of using them.

"The other day we talked about fluorocarbons, the aerosol spray can propellants that may be damaging the environment, and I think it's possible that we left a false impression among some viewers. What we said during the discussions, and what I want to emphasize again, is that fluorocarbons are the propellants used in only about half the spray can products on the market. There are other propellants used in aerosol spray cans that are NOT suspected of causing any environmental damage—the propellants used in spray paint cans, just as one example. So don't automatically shy away from EVERY spray can product on the market out of concern for the environment. Remember that one of every two such products is free of suspicion."

Sept. 22, 1976

The only harmful sprays are those using fluorocarbons to do the spraying, mostly used for such cosmetics as hair spray. Spray cans of paint, shaving lather and others are harmless. They don't use fluorocarbons, and will continue unchanged."

David does both.

David has the glossiest dark mink, the most flaming fox, the brightest, whitest lynx, the most luxurious sable—and at markably low prices.

How does David do it? David has been a furrier for years. And after 51 years you get to know a little more than the c petition. How to judge skins. That takes experience. When to at the right price. That takes experience.

And that's what he did, he bought the cream of the just before the prices went up, up, and out of sight! That's how D brings you great quality, high fashion, and low prices. That's difference between David and the other furriers. That's the differ 51 years makes.

NEW DELHI, Oct. 19—Prime Minister Indira Gandhi'a 20-year-old daughter-in-law has begun publishing a mouthly magazine dedicated to describing "the dynamics of a changing India in a positive, confident way."

The magazine, called Surya, which means sun in Hindi, reflects a growing preoccupation with eradicating what the people running India regard as the negative attitude of this country's journalism. In a letter from the editor in the first issue of Surya, Maneka Gandhi, who is married to the Prime Minister's powerful son, Sanjay, said: "Too many Indian publications have succumbed to a largely imported attitude toward this country that harps on shortcomings and belittles achievement. Surya will attempt to highlight all that is positive in our netional endeavor—yet be unsparing in criticism of what deserves to be criticized."

Such sentiments are responsive to the conviction, often stated by Prime Minister Gandhi, in her new magazine, calls journalistic "defeatism," which she promises to avoid.

Surya's lead article, entitled "India's Great Leap Forward." reviews the familiar comparison between development in China and in India and concludes that although China has done better industrially India has advanced further in agriculture.

Los Angeles Car Habit Is Difficult to Break

By ROBERT LINDSEY

Special to The New York Times LOS ANGELES—To get people out of their cars in an effort to cut down on pollution and traffic jams, state officials here recently turned over one lane in each direction of California's busiest freeway to buses and car pools. Reaction among city residents, known for their almost singular devotion to their cars, was fierce and predictable.

Motorists, finding themselves in traffic jams even worse than usual on the suddenly narrowed Santa Monica Freeway, demanded recall of the politicians, whoever they were, who had concocted the Newspapers campaigned against the project. Bumper stickers, petition drives, and leaflet campaigns to kill the project

To cope with the requirement that only cars containing three or more persons could use the special, so-called "Diamond Lanes" (because of their diamond-shaped pavement markings) some motorists hired teen-agers and elderly persons to ride with them to work. Others perched welldressed store mannequins and life-size in-flatable dolls on the back seats of their

ILYSTRESSCALLED A Fiery Moon Spectacle in 1178, Described in Contemporary Report, Linked to Crater

By WALTER SULLIVAN

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 19-On the evening of June 18, 1178, according to a contemporary account, "a flaming torch sprang up" from the mooo, "spewing out, over a considerable distance, fire, hot coals, and sparks."

Then, the report said, "the body of the moon which was below writhed, as it were, in anxiety." Furthermore it "throbbed like a wounded snake." At a conference on meteorites being beld here this week it has been proposed that this was the impact of a giant meteorite onto the moon, which left a crater a dozen miles wide that is now known as Gordano Bruno. The proposal was presented by Dr. Jack B. Hartung of the State University of New York at Stooy Brook to the four-day annual meeting of the Meteoritical Society, which began yesterday at Lehigh University here.

The account to which he referred was chronicled by Gervase of Canterbury, based on reports by five or more English monks. The latter, he said, "are prepared to stake their bonor oo an oath that they have made no addition or falsification in the above narrative."

The moon at the time—"the Sunday before the Feast of St. John the Bap-tist"—was a thin crescent, almost all the earth-facing side being in darkness.

Suddenly, according to the account, the upper born of the sunlit crescent split in two and it was from the midpoint of this division that the flames shot

According to Dr. Hartung's reconstruction the apparent splitting of the horn occurred when that area of the moon was obscured or shadowed by a cloud of debris thrown up by the impact. The apewing flame indicated that incandescent solids or gases were

The residual crater, Dr. Hartung said, should be in the vicinity of 45 degrees north latitude and 90 degrees east longitude. CARTER VOWS TO END BOYCOTT OF ISRAEL

He Blames Ford for Its Continuance by Arabs—Candidate Warmly Received in Miami Beach

By JAMES T. WOOTEN Special to The New York Times

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Oct. 19-Jimmy Carter began tha final two weeks of his campaign today by blaming President Ford for the continued existence of the Arab boycott of companies doing business with Israel, and without saying how ha intended to do so, vowing to put an end to it if he is elected.

After a speech in which ha promised a national health insurance plan, the Democratic nominee made an appearance at an oceanside park here, where an enthusiastic and predominatly Jewish audience heard him call the boycott "an insult and a disgrace" to the country.

"For the first time in the history of our nation, we have a President and an Administration who are circumventing the Bill of Rights," be shouted. It doesn't matter in principle whether it's Jews or Catholics or Baptists," he said. "It's a matter of morality. It's got to be changed and you have my word that it will be. We'll get rid of the Arah

The applause that greeted his remarks characterized much of his husy day—a day on which he seized every available opportunity tn raise and champion issues that struck friendly chords among his partisan audiences.

Promises Health Measures

For example, before the national conventinn of the American Public Health Association at the Fountainbleau Hotel, Mr. Carter excoriated tha Ford Administration for "neglecting and ignoring" preventive health measures and set forth a 10-point program, including national health insurance, which he said would 'care about people and prevent disease and injury bafore they bappen."

More than 2,500 members of the group applauded after every point, and Mr. Carter left with a large smile on his face, appearing convioced he had heen among

Moments later, he was wading through hundreds of nearly delirious supporters on a main shopping thoroughfare of this city, shaking hands groping through the screen of security agents around him, munching a chocolate pastry at a kosher bakery, charting amiably with little old ladies and sampling the grapes at a pro-

South Miami Beach, a retirement haven for elderly Jews from all parts of the country, embraced Mr. Carter as though be were a member of the Knesset. When he arrived at a park adjacent to the Atlantic Ocean a short while later, more than 4,000 other senior citizens were waiting in the hot sun.

Mr. Carter did not disappoint them. He spoke with passion about the need for better government service for the elderly and shouted his support for and alle-giance to Israel, adding his condemnation of the Ford Administration's treatment of the Arab boycott.

Then, after starting to leave, he returned to the microphone—his face beaded with perspiration—and, speaking in Spanish, denounced Premier Fidel Cas-

The Cuban-Americans in the audience echoed his chant and with the palm trees swaying in the sea breeze, the shirtcandidate left the burnid coast and headed north to a nippy, autumn day in Winston-Salem, N. C., where another cordial crowd was waiting.

There, as he left the city's convention center, there was a momentary security scare. A Secret Service agent was over heard telling another agent that a weapon had been seen in the area. "So, I would like to avoid it," he said.

The candidate was guided around to the other side of the ball and made a second speech to a large crowd of North Carolinians outside the auditorium.

Election of Democrats Urged - As he has in nearly all of his recent sppearances, Mr. Carter said that the White House tenures of Richard M. Nixon and Mr. Ford were "failures in leadership" that could be corrected with his own election and with the election of Democratic Congressional candidates on the ballot with him.

For example, in Winston Salem, he aligned himself with Representative Steve Neal, the first-term Democrat, seeking reelection against the man he unseated two years ago, Wilmer Mizell, a former major league baseball pitcher.

Similarly, in Miami, Mr. Carter was accompanied oo his rather frantic walk down Washington Avenue by Reprsentative Dante Fascell, a diminutive Democrat seeking his 12th term and who was nearly swallowed np by the excited surge of people around the Presidential candi-

In the general election campaign, both men set out to deal not so much in issues as in "themes," as their strategists put It. Both have tried, with the memory of as men worthy of trust, as men who could reawaken American pride. Trust and pride—the words pop up again and again in speeches and television commercials.

Strange Series of Mishaps

In the confusion produced by thematic ers and television cameras at Carter and stylistic contradictions, and in the headquarters to urge Mr. Carter's elecebsence of substantitive discussion of most issues, the campaign has focused on a strange series of mishaps, most notastraining his enthusiasm as he repeatedly hly Mr. Carter's interview with Playboy referred to the Democratic nominea as magazine and Mr. Ford's comments about "our candidate" and "Mr. Carter." The curious thing about these controversies, many politicians believe, that neither was what it seemed to be. Few people if any who know Jimmy Carter thought his comments about lust betrayed any loose morality; he is; in all probability more strait-laced than most recent Presidential candidates. Indeed, he has been criticized for excessive and ex- to the voices of those who would reduce cessively displayed piety in some quar- our capability to deter aggression and

What was really at issue was the question of whether Mr. Carter had shown poor judgment by his choice of rather earthy language and his agreement to be interviewed by Playboy, and whether Mr. Ford had shown a lack of poise and precision in fumbling a question about Eastern Europe. That so much could be read into such relatively trivial episodes is perhaps the best evidence of the superficiality of the campaign.

Mr. Carter has advocated a $5 hillion to $7 hillion cut in defense spending by elimination of waste, called for selective and gradual withdrawal of American forces abroad, and urged a tougher line with the Soviet Union.

In a telegram to Mr. Ford last Saturday, the former Governor of Georgia asserted that the President had made erroneous statements and said that"I do not advocate new spending programs which would cost anything near $100 billion. "There hasn't been a mandate for progressive government since 1964," he added. "One reason is the distillusion-ment of liberals with the lack of competence of government programs. Jimmy is the first Democratic politician who has tried to redefine traditional progressive philosophy"—by overlaying it with a promise of managerial wizardry—"because if we don't provide efficient, competent, evaluated programs people will never again give the Democratic Party a mandate for the Democratic Party a mandate for change."

Another Carter counselor suggested privately that it required "a leap of faith" to accept Mr. Carter a platform at face value, as the aide had done, and he rejected the inference that Mr. Carter should sound "like Hubert Humphrey or Ted Kemedy," adding: "He never will, because he doesn't so much deliver political speeches as moral ser-

It is hard to tell if it was much of a compliment, but Mr. Carter's Detroit speech was considered politically palatable by a man who sat at a rear table, scribbling tiny notes on open spaces of an airline ticket folder. Senator Robert P. Griffin, a Michigan Republican little known for spellbinding, rose as the speech ended and said to an onlooker, "I thought it was an

Mr. Carter's most skeptical audience travels with him. It may be that Viet-nam and Watergate have made the press prematurely cynical, but the Carter campaign's permanent floating press room is littered as much with unresolved questions as by coffee cups and crumpled copy paper.

A number of those habituating the press room say they have difficulty squaring the Jimmy Carter who proclaims that he will never lie, and who brought a Kansas City audience to tears with a moving tribute to the late Representative Jerry Litton, with the Jimmy Carter who sometimes seems to dissemble and who unflinchingly accised the President of "stonewalling" about personal finances and being brainwashed" about Soviet influence in Eastern Europe,

Inveterate Carterologists take note when the Georgian tells a small husiness group, "I'm a small husinessman myself," and tells a farm group, "I'm a farmer myself." They wonder at a candidate who said, "I'm not going to make a political speech," to an audience of Polish-Americans in Chicago and then made a political speech.

. Greg Schneiders, Mr. Carter's personal assistant, acknowledged that it was difficult for some to make the "leap of faith" to the candidate. "I've sort of wondered," he said of one campaign commmercial that shows the overall-clad Presidential candidate tromping through peanut fields, "if I'd think Carter was slick if I didn't know him. I think I probably would."

But Mr. Schneiders said with emphasis that Mr. Carter "does walk the fields; those are the same clothes he always wears and he doesn't adopt his values just for this election."

Patrick Anderson, the Carter speechwriter, spends much of his time proselytizing the habitues of "Peanut One" to helieve that any lingering uncertain-ties about Mr. Carter will be resolved when he is in the Executive Mansion. "The road to the White House," Mr. Anderson said, "is littered with people who underestimated his capacities.

The electorate still had most of a fortnight to sort things out. But some political correspondents, who likely would be in Georgia or Michigan on election day, were trying last weekend to decide how-and whether-to vote by absentee ballot.

In a temporary Carter pressroom in Cincinnati, three of the undecideds talked among themselves. One of them, a representative of a Chicago newspaper, had been inclined toward Mr. Carter while traveling with the President, then unsure of Mr. Carter while traveling with him traveling with him.

"Do you suppose," a New York journalist asked, "the voters worry as much as we do about casting the right

If they did, said a third correspondent in a Mississippi drawl, "the undecided vote would be about 89 percent."

When we recall our first encounter with the good things of the Swiss table -it was at least a couple of decades ago-our mind fairly aches and reeks with nostalgia and pleasure. We remember our first sampling of deepfried fresh perch and truite au bleu, the perch and the trout taken from the then-crystal-clear waters of Lac Léman (or as the English-speaking would have ft. Lake Geneva).

There were platters of fine-textured and slightly salted, wind-dried beef from the Grisons and our first taste of a kirsch-perfumed genuine fondue made with a full-bodied, nutty flavored gruyère cheese

At the same time we discovered another cheese dish that had, perhaps, an even greater impact on our gastronomic sensibilities and the dish was called

It was in our studeot days then, and pleasure and persuasion to visit what is called, in the French-speaking canton of Valais, a carnotzet. A carnotzet cellar, situated in front of the wine storage area. Gradually it came to be a place where one sampled both wine and cheese dishes.

Swiss Atmosphere A typical carnotzet has steps leading down into a room, generally quite small, with Swiss sceoes sketched on the walls: mountains, ski-slopes, skilifts, chalets, Saint Bernard dogs, wine casks and Swiss cheese in numerous There were three sorts of dishes served in the carnotzets we visited: The Grisons beet (called viande sêche in French, Bundnerfleish in German), served as the preface to the others; foodues; and the raclette, which we consider the most interesting and cerwhen cold weather came oo it was our tainly the most festive of cold weather foods.

The name raclette stems from the French word racier, which means to originally was the sampling room of a scrape. The name is applied to the cheese dish because of the traditional technique for serving it. Originally half a wheel of a cheese known as bagnes or raciette cheese was placed before a hiazing wood fire, and as the surface of the cheese melted it was scraped onto a small plate to be eaten along with small, boiled potatoes in the skin; small, sour pickles known as cornichons; and small pickled cocktail onions. Plus a loaf of crusty bread, a glass of dry white Swiss wine or, perhaps, a glass of kirschwasser. And a pepper mill on the side to give the dish added zest Widely Available

> This outdoor technique, which still exists in some areas in Switzerland, was modified for the carnotzets. The wood fire was replaced by a perpendicular charcoal brazier with the cheese placed in an upright position close to the heat to melt it. It was served, with the traditional accompaniments, oo small plates. It goes almost without saying that one scraping would scarcely make a meal, and thus, during the course of an hour, numerous plates would stack up before the customer. The customer would be charged accord> ing to the number of plates. The possibility of serving raclette in the home has materialized in America within very recent memory. A short while ago, bagnes or raclette cheese was all but unheard of here. We were delighted during the course of a visit in the home of Heidi Hagman (at the time she was called "the barefoot cateress of California"), who is Mary Martin's granddaughter, to be served a genuine raclette party at her hands. Her hands, that is to say, preparing and scraping the cheese for the guests.

Not only was the cheese available to her in balf wheels, but she also had at her disposal an electric machine for melting it. Both the cheese and that machine are widely available in the New York area.

The machine consists of a solid base plus a swinging arm containing an iofrared lamp for beating the surface of the cheese, Half a wheel or a quarter of a wheel of raclette cheese is placed between clamps to hold it securely. The heating arm is swung directly over and parallel to the surface of the cheese, which it heats to bubhling. The arm is swung away and the cheese is scraped onto small hot plates. The cost of this unit is about $225 and it may be rented for a few dollars a day.

About a year ago io the Hamptons we were invited to a small raclette party in the home of Keren Shaw, an excellent cook and director of the television department of Cinema Five, a motion picture distributor. She introduced us to a much simplified, much less expensive but admirable raclette. "oven" imported from Switzerland and widely available here. It consists of a round enameled cover that houses a round electric heating coil. There are four small pans designed to be filled with squares of cheese and situated for heating directly under the hot coil. Four pans will serve for a party of two. It is best (in the interest of uninterrupted dining) to have four additional pans for a party of four so that you can eat and heat simultaneously. The cost of this unit with four pans is about $49.98. Four additional pans cost about $7.98.

In that raclette is a specialty of the Values region of Switzerland, the best wine to serve with it is fendant, a white wine of the same region. On the other hand, any very good, light dry white wine would be excellent.

If you wish to give a bit of a kick to the party, you might also serve a few small glasses of kirschwasser at room temperature. Beer would also not

Ed Edelman, our genial and knowledgeable cheese man, the proprietor of the Ideal Cheese Shop, 1205 Second Avenue (near 63d Street), advises us that some of his customers substitute gruyère (the fondue cheese) or appenzeller, a marvelous, somewhat robust-flavored cheese, both from Switzerland, for the hagnes or raclette cheese.

He also advises that many of his clients are using hagnes or raclette cheese as a substitute for gruyère or Swiss for eating out of hand or grat-ing. The cost of bagnes cheese is about

Instructions for Preparing Raclett

Here are several methods for preparing raclette: WOOD FIRE: Prepare a modest-size wood fire of considerable intensity and let it burn down to flames and hot coals. Place the half or quarter wheel of cheese on a small, elevated platform so that a cut side is close to and facing the heat. As the cheese is melted and hot on the surface, scrape it onto a plate. Repeat intil all appetites

SMALL CHEESE "OVEN" with four pans (or the infrared machine): Follow the manufacturer's instructions. HOME OVEN: Preheat the oven to 500 degrees. Have ready numerous small, individual, heat-proof serving disbes or casseroles. Keep them piping hot and oven-ready. Have slices of raclette cheese cut into squares aboot half an inch thick or less, to fit neatly into each serving dish. Arrange one slice of cheese in any given number of dishes and place in the oven. Bake just until cheese is piping hot. Serve immediately and place another batch in the oven. Continue serving as loog as pickles, preferably the imported pickles called and another dish of small pickled cocktail onions vital to a proper raclette is a dish of hot potatoes pably boiled in the jacket and unpeeled, although: potatoes may be boiled, halved or quartered and a And by all means a pepper mill and a crusty is considered.

Something for Everybody, but Modern Is Rising

HIGH POINT, N. C .- The country's furniture manufacturers have once again made certain there is something for everybody in their offerings of styles that date back to Magna Carta and up to Milan Modern.

As varied as are these collections, it obvious at the Southern Furniture is obvious at the Southern Furniture Market showings here that four design trends dominate: nostalgic, ratten, modern and Oriental.

The nostalgic look is the most talked ebout traditional development to emerge in years. It opdates the golden oak designs from the turn of the century so popular in fleamarkets today.

But the rage for ratten, reeds and bamboo may be even more pervasive. The range goes from designs that echo The range goes from designs that echo the early 19th-century furnishings of Britain's Brighton Pavilion through mid-20th-century woven palm chairs that Billy Baldwin helped popularize.

And then there's modern. It's tha style that industry giants are coovinced may finally begin to unseat Early American as the country's top seller. These manufacturers' views are bolstered by the survey of collections made in April by the Fine Hardwoods-American Wainut Associatioo. Its findings placed modern at e oew high of 25.9 percent of all designs shown, second only to Early American, which represented 37.4 percent. Italian traditional placed third at 13.7 percent and Mediterranean was e poor fourth at 7.8 percent,

Oriental Will Surface

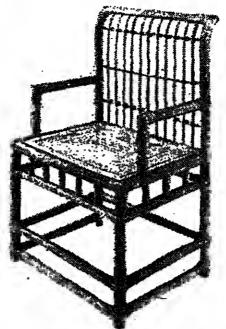

Oriental, a style that has oot yet surfaced in the polls, soon will, judging by what is happening here. It's the mode that mixes much—Indian campaign designs, Ming-like tables and chairs, Korean chests and pagoda-roofed, hamhoo-emhallished cupboards and étagères.

The bounty of hamboo, rattan and woven reed furniture designs tops all categories. The ranga of what is oow available framed in palms and grasses is astounding. John Mascheronl, the versatile New York designer, has explored the possibilities of these materials and come forth with palm-wrapped, chrome -accented lamps shown hy George Kovacs, and pillow furniture framed in rattan that serves for sitting and, as tables, for serving introduced by Raymond/Richards Morganthau Inc.

Of all the modern rattan designs on view, the most innovative are those from Design Institute of America. The tables have bronze glass tops and pole rattan legs that flare gracefully into wide shoulders. The wicker producer's chaise has an ingenious pullout ottnman, and there's a traditional touch too—a Chinese pavilion chair that would bave been at bome in Peking two centuries ago.

As far es complete collections go, however, Milo Beughman's for Thayer Coggin is far and away the most suc-cessful. Mr. Baughman is not the first designer to realize that rattan worked into a grid of squares can resuly in some of the simplest and handsomest treatments of the material. But the designs he devised—the rattan-framed chairs, heds, benches, night stands and tables-are done extremely well, and he has exercised e pleasing restraint.

Of the dozeos of manufacturers offering bamhoo-accented collections some of the best boys are found at American of Martinsville, a manufacturer emphasizing scaled-down bed-room chests and tables that work for modern apartments. The bamboo "High Rise" collection includes selections that would, for instance, provide a three-piece hedroom (chest, night stand and bed) at from $1,000 to $1,500.

Thomasville goes further in its Brigh-ton Pavilion collection, some of which cao be accommodated in the planters and fern stands offered in the collection. The bedroom and dining room designs are faced with split bamboo fret-work and topped with spindle-supported galleries of the material.

story continues in several stunning im-ports, including a pagoda-roofed éta-gère (about $550) and woven palm armchair that echoes the one Billy Baldwin popularized in the 1950'a. The copy will be about $270, or less than half the price of the original, which is made by Bielecky hrothers Inc. of New York, when the collection reaches stores early oext year.

Many Forms of Modern

Modern these days takes as many forms as it has meanings to American manufacturers. There are, for instance, the modern collections in painted white or gray wood that echo oustere-styled West German imports. (Founders and Bassett). Blood wood in Scandinavian styling shows op a Lane and Stretford and countless producers are doing the boxy, all-wood look that became known more than a decade ago as architectur-

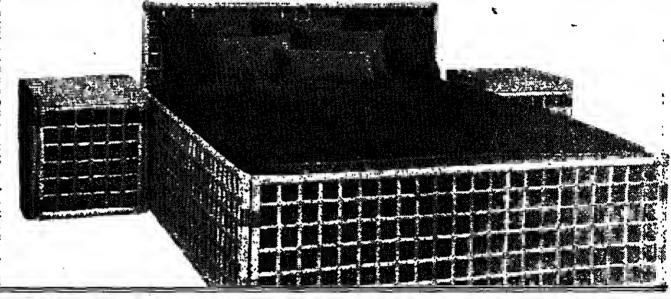

But in whatever form it appears (upholstery is mostly Milan Modern), modern seems headed for sales success according to most producers. A barometer of how popular contemporary styling is can be seen in the move of such traditionalists as Tomlinson Furniture to go modern too. Not surprising-ly, the modern choseo is both conservative and decorative. Architectural in profile, the collection called Intro 80, is enriched by both the lagoda burl veceers and the brass frames and legs.

The campaign designs that show up as tables, nightstands and floor-to-ceiling wall systems are a far cry in quality and price from what Baker Furniture offered as its trademark for decades. And the oriental at Drexel Heritage Furnishings—both the rattan look in its Malay group and the Chinese inter-pretations in the Et Cetera collection do not overdo.

No doubt such restraint will appeal to thousands. But the truly spleodid Oriental designs are those at Henredon. Both its Chinese household Ming-like tables and its Korean chests, lacquered cinnehar red, are in scale, wood finishes and design details close approximations of period designs. Therein lies

The grapes glistened on the verdaot green table linen. Diana Vreeland, everybody's fashion heroice, received an award. Priocess Irene Galitzine, the Rome couturier, presented her collec-tion for the first time in years in New

More than 450 people paid $40 a ticket for the luocheon at the Plaza Hotel yesterday and Joanne Winship, the organizer, said that most of it would go to charity, Girls Town of Italy.

'There isn't an Italian-American in the world who wants to hear my name," she said. "I scrounged everything, including the 350 pounds of grapes. Even the table cloths were

She even brought in her own chef, Luigi Nanni, to vouch for the authenticity of the meou: pasta e fagioli, vitello tonnato and moote biaoco. It was so authentic that some of the audience didn't realize the pasta was supposed to be served tepid, peasant-style.

There wasn't anything peasant about the clothes, which were strictly couture. Not the sort that makes headlines, just the kind that women with a taste for quality, the time for fittings, and the money to pay for them like to wear for their private and public lives.

"The American press doesn't come to Rome any more, and the stores don't buy couture, but we have pleoty of private customers," Princess Galitzine

"We have many new Italian customers, from places like Genoa and the south of Italy—people are getting rich in the provinces, and they come to Rome for their dresses."

The couture business is also supported by petro-dollars, she admits, and she also has a faithful American following Jacqueline Onassis has promised to see her collection at the St. Regis hotel, where Princess Galitzine will stay for a week beginning Friday.

The emphasis is on evening clothes, often done in two parts "because that's what the clients like best." They're in a mediey of soft fabrics and crisp silks, because the designer likes both types because the designer likes both types and points out that some customers have figures that are enhanced by taffeta, others look best in jersey.

Furs are shielded by silk raincoats, and the colors that stand out for evening are in the cerise to purple range. Daytime woolens, mostly in warm, beige tones, are made in styles that just cover the knee and are always worn with boots.

"It's what the customers want," Princess Galitzine explained. She herself wore a black tunic over pants to take a bow after the show.

Accessories Also Appealing

The audience, which included constant feshion show viewers as well as women who came because their friends bought a table, approved of the ac-cessories as well as the clothes. The high heel pumps with the diagonal straps across the instep were ooticed by a number of women.

The other fashion in the audience was the Saint Laurent look, with or without the Russian fur-trimmed hat. Lee Thaw, Cecile Zilkha, Livia Weintraub and Laura Johnson were some of the advocates of the braid-edged, brightly colored, daytime look. Mrs. Vreeland wrapped a classic Saint Laurent jacket over her purple Mila Schoen pants outfit, which was wrapped in scarves.

Wheo she accepted her award from Msgr. John Patrick Carroll-Abbing, president of Girls Town, for her achieve-ment in the field of fashion, her remarks were as usual pithy and pointed. "I know this man's work — be's the important one here," she said, and said down. It was, after all, a charity lunch-

Questions on Saccha Are Still Not Resol

Questions about the safety of saccharine, the artificial sweetener, have still not been resolved more than four years after the United States Food and Drug Administration allowed its continued use on a supposedly temporary basis.

Taking note of the situation, a recent report by the General Accounting Office, the auditing arm of Congress, said the "extended use" of the saccharine" could expose the public to unnecessary risk." The sweetener is found in diet soft drinks and in other dietetic foods.

The Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Health, Education and Wenare, the Government report recommended, should direct the F.D.A. commissioner, who is under his jurisdiction, to "promptly reassess" the justification and need for continued use of the additional c

The report was requested by Senator Gaylord Nelson, the Wisconsin Democrat who has been a consistent critic of the Food and Drug Administration. In a statement released with the report, Senator Nelson said the saccharine report. port, along with two others by the port, along with two others by the General Accounting Office, "show that the F.D.A. actually violated the law" by allowing continued use of saccharine "without making final determinations of safety."

A spokesman for the Food and Drug Administration said the agency was awaiting the completion of certain Canadian studies of saccharine, now

Canadian studies of saccharine, now expected early next year, "before making further decisions on saccharine's

Saccharine is the only artificial sweetener now permitted in the food supply. According to the Calorie Control Council, a trade association, Americans ingested about 5 million pounds of the substance in 1974. Of that amount, 47 percent was used in diet soft drinks, 14 percent in dietatic foods such as canned fruits and diet ice creams, and 12 percent as a granu-lated or liquid tabletop sweetener in place of sugar.

Questions about the safety of saccha-rine were first widely publicized in 1970 as a result of two studies suggest-ing that the substance caused bladder. cancer in mice. Further studies have shown that saccharine induced bladder cancer in rats that were first exposed to it while they were fetuses.

The G.A.O. report noted that 13 other studies had concluded that saccharine did not cause cancer, but the auditing agency pointed out that in only one of these studies had the rats been exposed to the substance as fetuses,

Further, the auditing agency said the validity of six of the studies was "questionable," and that in four others, the rats had been fed diets containing less.

The studies showing a positive cancer finding had involved diets consisting of 5 percent or more saccharine.

In February 1972, as a result of the early studies suggesting that saccharine was a carcinogen, the F.D.A. issued a a so-called "interim food additive regulation" for continued use of the substance that was supposed to expire on June 30, 1973, after conclusive studies were made. Instead, on May 25, 1973, the agency issued a notice extending interim use of saccharine, and it now projects that conclusive studies will oot be completed before the middle of 1978.

Another point raised by the G.A.O. was that the F.D.A. allows levels of was that the F.D.A. allows levels of use of saccharine that expose human beings to amounts 30 times as great as those that caused harm to the experimental animals. The ordinary margin for safety used by the F.D.A. for such substances is 100-to-1. The G.A.O. called the 30-to-1 safety factor for saccharine "questionable," and recommended that it be changed to 100-to-1, if continued use of the substance was justified at all. Phone Company Ordered To Use Double Listings

The New York Telephone Company was ordered yesterday to list without charge husband's and wife's names as a single entry in the telephone book—unless it can come up with adequate reasons why it should not by Nov. 8.

That deadline was set yesterday by the New York State Public Service Commission, which ordered the telephone company to satisfy requests of several subscribers and provide "double gender" listings, such as "Smith John Mary." The staff of the commission has reported that it found such listings reasonable. The telephone company, which now charges $1 a month for a separate listing, has opposed the proposed dual listing. For one thing, the company has contended that a caller would still have to know the husband's first name and if the that the company sugges for the wife's listing won essary. Then, too, the c pointed out that the wife's not be in alphabetical on the company has arguer crease the use of director safety factor would limit of diet soft drinks to from five years agn:

"Hey, great, I think. I use it to study, and I like the science fiction and the girls you can meet here."

All such motives are welcome to Sylvia P. Bean, the chief librarian wise enough to respond to questions about the library by taking a visitor on a tour of the neighborhood. Walking and watching she has great stretches of burnt-out streets to hereal self, and is sad. She brightens in pointing to a hit of rehabilitated hnus-ing at 163d and Simpson; she saddens in spotting fresh desertion over oo Hunts Point Avenue. But Colin Graham, once a happy child at the library and now a strapping 20-year-nld student at Brooklyn Polytech, arrives just in time with a greeting.

His Caribbean lilt is deeper than Miss Bean's, but she put her own to charming advantage earlier in greeting Jerome Marshman, the gray-haired proprietor of the bakery-restaurant that bas been open on Hunts Point Avenue for close to 30 years. Besides making the bread and rolls for his pastrami sandwiches, he makes collages and paintings, and they are displayed at Miss Bean's library.

The more interesting lives at the Southern Boulevard library are not on the shelves. There is, for example I use

"I hate to say it, but the kids are much nicer here in middle class neighborhoods," she said. "I think it's because here you either get the good kid or no one at all."

There is Christopher Maass, a 22year-old dropout from City College.
'I have lived here from day nne," he says in the midst of distributing the new community newspaper he started. At the moment, he wants help from the library with his campaign to organize varinus fragmented block associations, and with his effort to encourage the poetry of Pedro Torres, a 12-year-old soul be bas discovered in making his street rounds.

And there is Betty Miller, a clerk who knew so many local faces until recent years, when she was burned out of one nearby apartment, saw a second one wither, and so moved away.

Even the Restaurateur Was Awed By Her 'Little Dinner for Twenty-One

By KATHLEEN TELTSCH Secolal to The New York Times

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y .-- As a youngster growing up in Amstetten, Austria, Mooika Pacher remembers her mother, husy in the family kitchen with schnitzel or oockerlin, telling her firm-ly: "The only way to learn is to do. You may have a disaster or two, do

Refore she was 12, she was handed a length of cloth and directed, with the same maternal advice, to make a

Predictably, the daughter grew up a happy but compulsive overachiever. She married and came to the United States with her own small daughter and her hushand, Ulf, who is with the Austrian delegation here. She finds one agreeable outlet for all that pent-up creativity in throwing what the Pachers persist in calling "little dinners" for frieods in their Riverdale apartmeot.

The latest was planned for 18 and extended effortlessly to 21. There were Austrians and Hungarian diplomats, most of them in town for the current General Assembly. There were also

New Yorkers in Political life, among them State Senator Franz S. Leichter, because Ulf Pacher, hy his own descrip-tion, is "nuts" for American politics.

Who else would memorize the cames of the 435 members of the House of Representatives, the 100 members of the Senate or the 50 governors and refer to Bella Abzug as "my Congress-woman," forgettiog he has no vote? 'I Cook for Fun' ...

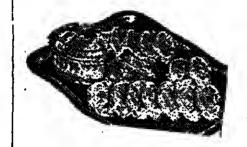

The other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Giambelli, and Mrs. Pacher admits she thought twice before finding the courage to invite oo less an authority on fine cuisine than Mr. Giambelli, the proprietor of Manhattan's Brussels

"He's a friend," she said, "but after all, I'm not professional, I cook for

It was under his knowing eyes that she assembled the first course of her cold buffet in the classic French style but with Pacher variations. The platter of truffled venezin pate en croûte was slipped deftly into place between the duck galatine and the glistening Lob-

A quick sprinkle of minced parsley was added to the eggs in aspic, settled beside the smoked trout and the squab chaud-froid. Those were not truffles on the breasts of the tiny hirds, but olive cutouts made with a truffle cutter. One has to trim costs somewhere, Mrs. Pacher sighed.

Only when Mr. Giamhelli gave his requested inspection and procounced a fervent: "congratulazioni!" did she relax with a dazzling smile.

next course of stuffed filet of beef made according to a 150-year-old re-cipe and presented with a Pacher specialty: bread dumpling ingredients that had been rolled sausagelike into a linen napkin, tied with string and popped into boiling water to be removed at the last minute, sliced and served.

Lastly there was a parade of desserts, starting with the parfalt Grand Marni-er, a Spanish windtorte with its meringue crown, a malakoff torte Mrs. Pacher calls her never-fail insurance policy and that famed rich Vieocese specialty which Mr. Giamhelli gallantly suggested should be renamed from sachertorte to Pachertorte.

"Few restaurants in New York could do this," he told her as the evening ended, standing in the middle of the compact Pacher kitchen where a spoon extended at arm's length in any direction would almost brush the walls.

Two days and virtually two nights went into the preparation, she said. The squab were purchased as usual in Chinatown—fresher and chaper, Mrs. Pacher says—and transported in the

The only assistance in the preparation and cooking came from 10-year-old Daniela, a miniature Monika in the dirnd, who was summoned at a critical moment, handed a spoon and the makings for the dumptings and ordered to at one-eighth the price.

The Pachers met when she was 17 in standing room at the Vienna Opera House. They were married in 1964 and came to New York six years later, so Mr. Pacher could take a graduate degree at Columbia.

When Mrs. Pacber is not preparing little dinners, and this was her third in five weeks, she takes down the sewing machine, which has its own concealed shelf in the kitchen. She's now graduated from copying the models she sees strolling Madison Avenue to doing her own patterns. She's also interested her own patterns. She's also interested in decorating. Every Tuesday she drives to Montclair, N.J., to give a course in cooking at the Adult Education Center. It is a labor or love, because the token salary goes to huy iogredients not provided by the center.

The one discount that wins almost unanimous national praise from the elderly is the ooe on public transporta-tion. Even cities that have almost no other program, such as Phoenix, make this concession to older residents.

Taxi Concerns Contribute .

Io Philadelphia and Minneapolis, the In In India and Mineapolis, the elderly pay nothing in nonrush hours. In Milwaukee, St. Petersburg and Phoenix, they pay half fare, as they do in New York. In Boston it is half fare to the oearest nickle; thus the 25-cent subway fare becomes 10 coots. In Los Angeles, people older than 65 ride the buses for 10 cents.

And in Boston and Brookline, Mass., the licensing authorities have persuaded taxi companies to belp. Thus, a 65-year-old Bostonian may buy for $4 a book worth $5 in cab rides. In Brookline, one company donates a cab and driver for 40 bours a week to the Seniors Ceoter, the other company donates a van with wheel chair for 10

Alice Schwartz, 69, said of the latter, "It's a godsend. It comes every Tuesday to take me to a doctor. I doo't know what I'd do without it."
But for most, it is the cheaper bus rides that are a blessing. Frank Manning, executive director of the Massachusetts Association of Older Americans, is uncothusiastic about the general run of discounts, but praises those that deal with transportation. An Affordable Diversion

Robert Hawkins, 68, of Manhattan's East Side, said, "The cheaper bus rides are a far bigger benefit than anything else." His wife, Alma, 72, said, "We like to do things like ride down to the Battery and sit, or to Herald Square to walk through the stores, or to Rocke-feller Ceoter to see the flowers or the skaters. We go to Shakespeare io the Park, and to the opera there and the other coocerts. We couldn't do any of these things if we had to pay full bus

In Phoenix, Ethel Dumn, 77, said she has a friend who takes a bus ride every day because it's one diversion she can afford. She just rides to be riding," said Mrs. Dunn. "She doesn't go anyplace."

Many of the elderly are like an 84year-old woman in Boston's Roshndale year-old woman in Boston's Roslindale section who says she is too proud to take discounts. (She's also too proud to let her name be used.) "I figure I can manage somehow on Social Security and my old-age supplementary pension," she said. "I'm very independent, and I've never asked my children for money not seen $5." for mooey, not even $5."

Why Pay a Quarter?

But when it comes to a discount on transportation, even those who do not oeed it often don't hesitate to take advanage. Herbert Stone, 69, of Boston's fashionable Back Bay area doesn't bother with other discounts. "Ten percent off doeso't mean all that much to peopla who shop around here," he said. However, on hus discounts, his attitude is, "Why should I pay a quarter when I can pay a dame?"

And Ann Sagran, a member of the Beverly Hills Senior Center, who also works there as a volunteer, said it con-stantly amazed her, how many people in that wealthy community took advantage of the cheaper bus fares. Discounts on movies are valued by many of the elderly, especially by women, and they are almost as preva-lent as the ones on prescription drugs

As another instance of an expected price reduction that had not material-ized, she cited the cost of potatoes.

October is the peak potato supply month and the current crop of Long Is-land potatoes is considerably larger than in past years. Yet, the price of a five-pound bag of potatoes rose last week from 76 cents to 80 cents.

However, Mrs. Guggenheimer said that there was "good news" in the meat category. Widespread sales resulted in an overall decrease of 1.7 percept in the cost of all meats. Sirioin steak dropped from $1.92 to $1.89 a pound chants think a discouot program would be too heavy a burden.

Phoenix, which has been a magnet for the retired, offers almost nothing aside from half-fare on buses, unless one plays golf; then 25 cents is taken off the regular fee of $1.25 or $1.50 at the city's courses. Also, some private groups, such as the Kiwanis Club, help with transportation to the doctor. help with transportation to the doctor, etc. "You won't find much in Phoenix for us," said 70-year-old Winona Mont-

In Santa Monica, Calif., where about 25 percent of the population is made up of older men and women, many merchants said that they would be put out of busines if they gave discounts to a quarter of the city's inhabitants. Other merchants, knowing that the alderly could not travel gridly that the elderly could oot travel widely, saw oo reasoo to make any concessions saw oo reasoo to make any concessions to what are, in effect, captive customers. (However, those merchants who do give discounts are often good about pointing them out to the elderly.) All over the country there are many small businesses that have been disappointed at the meager response to the discounts they have been oftering. But the same elderly who find paying the full price a heavy burden, and are looking for places where they can pay less, are the very ones who must conless, are the very ones who must con-tinually exercise prudence. Their bud-gets may not have the leeway for visits to florists and jewelry stores and gourmet food centers.

Hearts were undoubtedly in the right place when the Diamond Pooch Pet Grooming Shop in Los Angeles decided to offer $1 off oo Tuesdays and Wednesdays. The elderly also may oot be abla to take advantage of the 20 percent discount waiting for them in Los Angeles's Jun Cong Karate Center.

Starting November 10, the every-Wednesday "The Living Section" will be helping you capture even more of the big New York market

"The Living Section" is the big, new separate 24page food/family/entertainment guide that will help readers shop, eat and live better—and advertisers sell more effectively in the nation's No. 1 food market.

Every Wednesday, Craig Claibome, Mimi Sheraton, Pierre Franey, Frank Prial as well as the world's most famous writers and personalities will present food, meals and cooking in a refreshing, fascinating way.

Other top Times editors and writers will describe the art of living in many other special ways—from the lives and life styles of celebrated people to news and views on personal health, personal finance, home furnishings and children.

Living will also feature theater and .
movie reviews, book reviews, the crossword puzzle, the Bridge column and much, much more.

So here's a lively, lavish new food medium that's designed to attract even more top-income readers in the New York market.

Like Food Day—The Times current eight-page food feature—Living will reach more shoppers than the Post, Star Ledger, The Bergen Record, Westchester/Rockland Group or the Long Island Press and Newsday combined. Living will also have the second highest readership of all newspapers among principal food shoppers in the New York market.

And now, with "The Living Section" advertisers can count on even more shoppers. A concentrated circulation promotion campaign that includes radio, TV and print advertising will give Living a sure-fire send-off—the same selling effort that launched Weekend, the thriving leisure-time, entertainment guide that has increased Friday circulation by 35,000 copies.

So if you want a bigger, better helping of the rich New York market, get into "The Living Section" starting November 10. Call Roger Brown at (212) 556-1447 at The Times for space reservations and advertising information. Or the Times representative near you.

Earlier this year, the Governor asked the Legislature to end a ban on exploration for natural gas in the bed of Lake Erie. And as chairman of the Coalition of Northeast Governors he has been urging changes in Federal policies that would make more energy available to this part of the country and at lower prices.

Energy Shortages Cited

Energy shortages and high energy costs have been cited by many economists and businessmen as causes of the economic decline that has afflicted the Northeast. Seeking to block the discovery and the Supreme Court. production of oil off the Eastern coast Peter A. A. Berle iso seemed to contradict Mr. Carey's hopes of bringing new jobs to New York. The plans of the oil companies have been estimated to have a potential of 28,000 new jobs, many of which could come to the Port of New York, which could offer excellent facilities to support offshore drilling operations.

The Governor's decision which was confirmed yesterday by a press spokesman, caught other parties to bhe suit off-guard. John Picciano, deputy county attorney for Nassau, and Irving Like, special counsel to Suffolk County, said they would have to consider their position, but did not rule out the possibility that they MARGAUX, France, Oct. 17 - The trees still are dark green in the Médoc but, down the symetrical rows of vines, the grape leaves are red, gold, rust and bronze. A sharp wind cuts in from the Atlantic, driving clouds and rainstorms eastward to the Massif Central.

Autumn has arrived in Bordeaux. Over broiled cepes-the local mushroom—io a Margaux bistro or a delicate duck steak downtown at the Restaurant Dubern, everyone from bank-er to vinecutter discusses the vintage. Was it good? How good was it? Most of all, what will it mean for Bordeaux?

The answers seem to be, at this early stage: Yes, it was good. Maybe, hut probably not as good as last year, which was extremely good. And yes, definitely, it will help Boxdeaux. At Chatean Mouton Rothschild, up io Pauillac, Baroo de Rothschild, who is 74 years old, airily dismisses questions about the vintage with a wave humility," he says, recalling many vintages where the wine ignored the predictions.

But Mr. Ribereau-Gayon's opinion is not unusual in this wine-obsessed region. The 1976's will equal 1975, say some experts. They will surpass them, say others. There are the inevitableand pardonable — comparisons with truly great years: 1961, for example. But every year: 1961, for example usually someone trying to sell it — and line lovers look for less passionate judgments.

Pessimism in St. Emilion

Some skeptics note that the wine this year is short on acid. They predict a relatively short but illustrious life. Others whisper that some rain in September had e bad effect oo the merlot, the grape most often used to soften the cabernet sauvignon, the principal grape of Bordeeux.

'Merlot roots don't go as deep as cabernet roots." says Mr. Delmas, "and when rain comes, es it did in September, meriot grapes swell up over-night." A grape filled with water is no asset for a famous wine, but Mr. Delmas and others around bere insist that the quality of the cabernet is so high that those meriot grapes picked too late-after the rain-cannot affect the ... La Bergerie, the company t quality of the wine.

In St Emilion, where the meriot is king some wines in St. Emilion have almost nothing else—growers such as Alain Querre at Chateau Monitorisquet say quite emphatically that 1976 will not match the previous violage.

Lack of Acid

Others including Alexis Lichine, owner of Chateau Prieure-Lichine here, are worried that the lack of acid in the wine will shorten its life. The heat last summer produced a wine long on sugar but short on acid. Mr. Ribereau-Gayon insists there is nothing to the idea that low acid means a short life.

Some winemakers and shippers here... whose financial problems stemming from the drastic price break of a few years ago are in such bad conditioo that good harvests cannot help them. Almost everyone ecknowledges that the wine business here will never be what it was in the late 1960's or even before, when the Bordeaux merchants were io control. But buoyed up by two excellent vintages, the people of the wine trade of the Gironde have begun to display cautious optimism.

"Anyone who has wine to sell can sell it." said Phillipe Cottin, the head of all the wines under the Bar de Rothschild name "The get the price they want." said, "but they can self the years ago nothing sold h providing a more directly relevant education than general programs.

However, the new visibility has also ied to increasing scrutiny of vocational education. The new Federal legislation authorizes nearly a doubling of Federal spending in this area—now $550 million—but makes this contingent on saveral makes the contingent on several major changes in policy.

First, it requires states to engage in much more detailed planning of courses and programs in the vocational field including the drawing up of a detailed five-year plan.

At the same time, it also gives states new flexibility in designing vocational programs. In contrast to the past, when most Federal funds were designated for specific categories such as work-study programs, 80 percent of funds-will now be awarded in the form "block grants" that states can use as they choose. Half in Nonjob Courses

The third major change is a new requirement that states make a concerted effort to eliminate sexism in their voca-tional programs. This comes as a result of pressure that has been building up for several years.

Figures from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare show that whereas women make op about half of the enrollment in vocational programs, they constitute only a quar-ter of the enrollment in courses leading to employment. Half of the women are in consumer and homemaking courses; that do not prepare them for the labor market.

Even those women who do enroll in employment-related programs tend to be concentrated in poorly peid poei-tions. Three-fifths of those in wageearning fields, for example, are training for clerical or secretarial jobs.

In 1974, the General Accounting Of-fice, the auditing arm of Congress, is-sued a highly critical report on vocational education, in which it charged that sex-stereotyping was rampant. Nu-meroos women's groups made similar charges during Congressional hearings existing laws that theoretically barred sex discrimination throughout education did not seem to be having much effect in vocational programs.

The new legisletion requires each state to spend a minimum of $50,000 on sn office to review programs for cases of sex discrimation and provide local districts with help in combatting

Some schools have already takensteps to eliminate sex stereotyping. At Ely Whitney Vocational High School in Brooklyn, for example, the exploratory program has been modified so that girls are introduced to cabinetmaking and boys to cosmetology.

Pressure to eliminate sexual stereotyping is one of several forces that could significantly change the nature of vocational aducation in the near future. Another-is the rapid change in skills required for employment.

The new Federal copyright law pro-vides teachers with detailed guidelines for the first time on what they can reproduce for classroom use.

The guidelines were drawn up for Congress by a coalition of educational associations and representatives of authors and publishers, and become part of the legislative history to which courts will refer in deciding cases dealing with copyright statutes since 1909—long before anyone had ever heard of photocopying of photocopying.

The guidelines state that teachers may make single copies of a chapter of a book, an article from a periodical, a chort story, essay, poem or illustra-tive materials, such as pictures and graphs from books or periodicals.

Multiple copies of such materials may also be made—one for each student—but the guidelines put limits on length. Thus a poem to be copied should not be more than 250 words or two pages or an article or story more than 2,500 words. Excerpts from prose works should be limited to 1,000 on the new legislation, and argued that words or 10 percent of the book, whichever is less.

> The guidelines also prohibit teachers from making copies of works that heve already been copied for another class in the same institution or to copy a poem, article or story by the same author more than once each term. A teacher may not make multiple copies of items from the same periodical or collective work more than three times a term. Multiple copies of "consumable" materiala, such as workbooks, are banned, as is any copying designed to take the place of an anthology.

Several educational organizations, including the National Education Association and the American Council on Education, are planning to produce booklets to assist teachers and others in interpreting the law before it becomes effective on Jan. I, 1978.

Sheldon E. Steinbsch, an official of the council who helped draw up the guidelines, noted yesterday that the guidelines were intended to be flexible.

"If you copy a poem that is 275 lines instead of 250, the world is not going to fall apart," he said...

Three years ago, the College of Arts and Sciences of Cornell University joined with eight other New England colleges in an experimental program to advise applicants by Fehrnary whether their prospects for sdmission two months later were "likely, possible or unlikely."

Cornell has now withdrawn from the project, largely because, as a spokes-man explained, each college had a different definition of the "possible" category into which most candidates fell. However, the university will continue to send an "early refusal" notice to applicants who would have fallen into the "unlikely" category as well as en-couraging letters to those with e "like-

2 OREGON DISTRICTS SHUT DOWN SCHOOLS

Closings Due to Defeat of Taxing Proposals — Rising Costs Have Led to Widespread Complaints

Special to The New York Times

EAGLE POINT, Ore. Oct. 19-The sign read, "Have a Nice Xmas Vacation. It's votes. all you're going to get. Courtesy of a few No Votesill

The sign was put up by an angry Eagle Point High School student protest-ing last Friday's closure of the Eagle Point School District's seven schools. The school district has not been able to pass a $2.6 million property tax levy that would balance the district's budget.

This district is the second Oregon school district to shut down this fall for lack of money. The North Bend School District on the Oregon coast shut its doors Sept. 29 to 3,500 students and laid off about 330 employees.

Some of the children in the two districts are attending makeshift schools run by parents, while others have moved to other school districts or even out of state in order to attend regular classes.

Boredom Sets In

North Bend High School's student hody resident. Ted Miyake, 17 years old, is taking three classes at a local community college. But be says be spends only two hours a day in school and is already getting boted. Other students in the district described themselves as angry or disapointed with the closures.

One Eagle Point student said, "I'm disgusted with the community. The shut-downs are the most dramatic events so far in the attempt of Oregon school districts to deal with increasing costs, a depressed economy based on timber and wood products, and intense taxpayer dissatisfaction with the cost of operating in no way am I going to volunteer to tighten our belts to make someone else fatter," wrote one North Bend resident in a letter to the local newspaper. Other residents have demanded the dismissal of Dr. James Ulum, the school superintendent, after the local district attorney refused to start a grand jury investigation into alleged mishandling of district funds.

Eagle Point residents are equally unhappy. Two school board members fece a recall vote in the Nov. 2 election, but the outcome may not make much difference to the attitudes of district residents. "I will fight to close the schools, and it may take an H-bomb to open them," one taxpayer told the school board after its last proposed tax levy failed by 32

Superintendent's View

"I think they're trying to find a scape-goat," Dr. Ulum sald, Dr. Ulum believes, and many others agree, that North Bend residents were shocked when the school board closed the schools.

"I'm wondering who to be angry with," said Bonnie Sands, an Eagle Point resident with three children attending the district's new $4.7 million high school. "I hate to see schools close, but we have 75 acres of unimproved land we're being taxed to death for."

Voter approval of an annual property tax levy is necessary for the operation of schools in almost all Oregon school districts. A school district legally can raise about 10 percent of its financial needs without an election. The state contributes another 30 percent. The situation is aggravated in fast-growing rural districts by a state law requiring all property to be assessed at market value. Property values in Oregon have been climbing rapidly in recent years as more people move into the state. In addition to the complaint about bigh taxes, voters complain about what they call the "waste" of money on such things as field trips, art programs, and elective courses like horticulture in Eegle Point.

One North Bend resident said that when the district decided to buy an expensive piece of equipment, it already had three underutilized units like it. Such complaints are common in school districts throughout the state, and five the schools.

Other districts may shut down in November if proposed tax levies do not pass.

Tournament directors have few opportunities to play but pleoty of opportunities to observe high-level performers. As a result, their master-point totals do oot reflect their ability and it may take them a loog time to reach the rank of life master. A case in point is Mike Linah, one of the most experienced directors in the New York metropolitan area, who recently achieved life master status. He may sooo be lost to the New York scene, for he is contemplating relocating in California where he played the diagramed deal.

In a light-hearted mood, Linah introduced a psychic bid of one spade when his partner's opening bid of one diamond was doubled. This is an old idea, aimed at talking the opponents out of a likely spade contract. It has fallen into disuse because experienced opponents can expose the situation without too much difficulty, usually by an im-mediate double, while the psychic bid-der's partner may take him seriously with unfortunate results.

Linah's partner was Dr. Louis Iacueo of West Covina, Calif. Not unnaturally, he raised to four spades wheo West did not choose to bid his clubs, and Linah had to suffer the coosequeoces of his own frivolity.

East Wins With Ace

East was for some reason unable to read his partner's opening beart lead as a singleton. He woo with the ace and carelessly returned the nine, neglecting the obvious oecessity to play the queen and pin the remaining bonor in the dummy. He was astonished to see his partner ruff after declarer played low.

AN OPEN LETTER TO MEDICAL PROFESSIONALS FROM SOME OF YOUR CONTEMPORARIES

What does medical professionalism and Air Force medicine have to do with you? Spend just 60 seconds reading what your contemporaries in the Air Force really think about Air Force medicine...

"About a year ago, I decided I'd had it with the rocketing overhead for personnel, secretarial costs, accounting, legal fees, and office rental (up 300 percent in six years); and most especially with attorneys who were staking claims in the malpractice goldfields! ..."

"Physicians entering the Air Force are now re un to $13,500 in annual bonus This could bring the salary of a physician joining the Air Force (on completion of residency) to over $31,000 - without overhead ...

"Facilities are excellent. Recently, I spent nine weeks at the School of Aerospace Medicine at Brooks AFB in Texas, and I've never seen so magnificent a diagnostic and treatment setup anywhere ...

"The frustrations of running a business are out

Another Thousand Days

By CHRISTOPHER LEHMANN-HAUPT

BLIND AMBITION. The White House Years. By John W. Dean 3d, 415 pages, Il-lustrated. Simon & Schuster, $11.95.

No. John W. Dean 3d is not the most appealing person in the world, and yes, the subject of Watergate is getting a little tedious. So one feels not a little antsy as one begins reading "Blind Ambition: The White House Years" and watches Mr. Dean undertake the by-now-familiar confessional routine of explaining how he got his job in the Nixon White House—which was of course to be John D. Ehrlichman's successor as legal counsel to the President—and how he unsuccessfully resisted his first assignment—which was to "get" the owners of the erstwhile much raking magazine Scanlan's Monthly for a derogatory article they ran in 1970 on Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. 1970 on Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. But one's restlessness does not last long. Before you know it, you are turning the pages of Mr. Dean's book as if you were reading about Watergate for the very first time. And by the time you have finished, you are convinced that no previous book about the scandal—not even those by Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein—has begun to tell the inside story as this one does.

Why? I suppose one has to begin

Why? I suppose one has to begin with the hard news revelations, since these are what all the advance publicity has been about. To be sure, they are by turns intriguing and outrageous. For instance, Mr. Dean, and Charles W. Colson too, believes that the Central Intelligence Agency and Howard R. Hughes are the keys to why the Democratic National Committee offices were broken into and bugged in the first place, which would confirm Norman Mailer's somewhat feverisb speculations in content in the first place. tions in a recent issue of New York

And for instance, when Mr. Dean last spoke to G. Gordon Liddy, on June 19, 1972, Mr. Liddy told Mr. Dean in all seriousness: "I'm prepared to accept responsibility for the tracing of the break-in to the Committee to Pa elect break-in to the Committee to Re-elect. the President]. And if somebody wants to shoot me ... on a street corner, I'm prepared to have that done. You just let me know when and where, and I'll be there.'

But this is hardly headline stuff, and the stuff that has made headlines so far-such as the news that Richard M. Nixon mentioned in Mr. Dean's pres-ence that "the typewriters are always the key—we built one in the Hiss case" the key—we built one in the Hiss case" or that William E. Timmons, chief of White House liaison with Congress, told Mr. Dean that "uh, Jerry [Ford] himself might have some problem in this area [of campaign contributions]"—is hardly substantial enough for anyone to sink his teeth into.

No, the news of "Blind Ambition" is soft and relatively subtle. As Mr. Dean explains in an introductory note, he prepared for its writing "the same way I prepared to testify before the Ervin committee, before the special prosecu-committee, before the special prosecu-tors, and in the coverup trial. But in the book I have included dialogue and enclosed it in quotation marks, whereas in my testimony I deliberately restrained from dramatizing the events I was relating." And: "I have included detail, texture, tone, to make this history more vivid—though, I trust, no practice."

THE NEW YORK TIMES, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1976

So what is fascinating about "Blind Ambition" are the details that can't be Ambition" are the details that can't be put into headlines. Background developments: Mr. Dean rose so quickly to a position where the was the "linchpin" of the cover-up conspiracy because he deliberately set out to make of his office a "law firm" servicing everyone in the Administration. Comic scenes: In March 1972, Mr. Nixon asked, in a meeting with Mr. Dean, H. R. Haldeman, Mr. Ebritchman, and John D. Mitchell, why "wer" very reconsidering Mitchell, why "we" were reconsidering "the idea of opening up Watergate, lancing the boil?" Because of "the lack of alternatives, or a body," Mr. Dean replied, "meaning that no one was willing to risk jail, alone or in company. The whole group broke up in laughter The whole group broke up in laughter—this time not nervous, pressured laughter, but guffaws." And scene upon scene in which Mr. Dean comments on what was going on in his mind during the famous taped discussions with Mr.

And one follows it all with mounting excitement not only because this is the first account of Watergate complete with "detail, texture," and "tone," but also because for the first time we have asingle point of view—and that of a major figure in the scandal—with which we can identify.

a Judas, an informant, a tattletale, especially one who is also guilty"? More important, why should we believe him in the first place? It will take far more expert study than I can give it to say whether "Blind Ambition" is credible; I can only promise that it seems consistent with what most of us have heard about Watergate. But Mr. Dean handles the problems of his "tat-tling" and his guilt most effectively. He persuades us that he turned informer because not to have done so would have meant getting both himself and the Nixon Administration far more deeply entangled in the cover-up than they had already become.

As for his guilt: He neither denies it nor makes love to it in the manner of one master he studied when he took on vacation with him Albert Speer's "Inside the Third Reich." He simply offers it up for our perusal: "For a thousand days I would serve as counsel to the President, I soon learned that to make my way upward, into a position of confidence and influence, I had to travel downward through factional power plays, corruption and finally outright crimes, . . Stowly, steadily, I would climb toward the moral abyss of the President's inner circle until I finally fell into it, thinking I had made it to the top just as I began to realize I had actually touched bottom."

actually touched bottom." One would like to conclude that Mr. Dean's basic crime was an unusual one-

The Riyadh Pact

Fierce warfare continued in Beirut yesterday, many hours after the signing in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, of a new peace plan for Lebanon. The continued bloodshed in the Lebanese capital underlined the difficulties the backers of the cease-fire effort will have in implementing the pact. Too many lives have been lost and too many sacrifices have been made by all sides in this complex strife for the conteoding parties to have any mutual trust. And all sides, of course, remember vividly how many earlier peace accords turned out to be illusory.

Nevertheless, the new agreement may not prove to be as empty as its predecessors this past year and a half. For one thing, the signers are many of the main figures in the Lebanese struggle, including the country's President Sarkis, Syrian President Assad and the Palestine Liberation Organization's Yasir Arafat, The remaining signers are the rulers of Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, all of them powerful forces in the Arab world. Conspicuously abaent from the list are the leaders of the Lebanese Moslems and the heads of some of the countries backing them, notably Libya and Iraq.

It will take time for the real significance and intent of the Riyadh accord to emerge. The Syrians have apparently not been required to pull out of Lebanon, a move that would sacrifice all their hard-won gains while leaving their Christian allies in a parlous position. It seems unlikely Presidents Sarkis and Assad would have assented to such a setback. Rather, the agreement appears to mean that the present Syrian military dominance in Lebanon will be legalized by proclaiming the Syrian troops there to be part of an all-Arab force of 30,000 men empowered to separate all warring factions and confiscate heavy weapons. The question remains whether Mr. Arafat, despite his guerrillas' serious military defeats, is sufficiently desperate to accept such an unfavorable outcome.

There are other variables as well. The Riyadh agreement proposes returning the Palestine refugees and their military forces to the refugee camps and to the Arkub section of Lebanon near the Israeli border. Will the Israelis sit quietly and accept the reappearance of the P.L.O. guerrilla menace in that sensitive zon? where they have achieved a new level of influence and security?

With all these uncertainties, the fact remains that peace in Lebanon is a prerequisite to a more general Mideast settlemeot. The outside world can only hope that the Riyadh accord will contribute to that end within tortured Lebanon and in the broader region,

Nobel Sweep

A historic first was registered this week when the Nobel Prize Committee annouoced its 1976 awards in istry and physics. Taken with last week's designation of the laureates in economics and medicine, the latest awards completed a clean sweep for Americans, the first time all of the Nobel Prize winners In the sciences were individuals born and educated in ooe country. It is an impressive and deserved tribute to the quality of American research since World War II.

The Nobel Prizes are eloquent international recognition of past accomplishments. But what of the future? There are many Americans of potential Nobel laureate calibre still unrecognized-one thinks of Sheldon Glashow's work on "charmed" particles in physics and George Cotzias's tremendous contribution to the alleviation of Parkinson's disease, for example. But what is the outlook for a decade or more from oow?

There is reason for worry. An increasing body of evidence in receot years has suggested that United States leadership in science and technology is beginning to be lost. One example is the disquieting survey of leaders of United States research institutions recently published by the National Science Foundation. The nation's research administrators, the study indicates, fear the collapse of top-ranking institutions because of inadequate or unreliable funding. They find evidence that the ablest young people are moving away from basic research. They see rapidly growing oumbers of bureaucratic and other obstacles to research freedom, and they perceiva an ever-increasing spirit of anti-intellectualism threatening the entire American scientific enterprise. These are sobering thoughts. The conditions they testify to need correction if historians of the future are not to view this year's United States clean sweep of the Nobel science awards as also the beginning of the oation's scientific decline.

Fare Scare

David L. Yunich, chairman of the deficit-ridden Metropolitan Transportation Authority, has come full

Six months ago, Mr. Yunich warned that fares might jump 15 cents, to 65 cents, unless other revenue sources could be found to make up for an anticipated $125 million deficit in the current fiscal year. He said he would press for a metropolitan regional tax to help finance the city's transit expenses.

About six weeks ago, the M.T.A. chairman suddenly reversed course, saying that the 50-cent fare was safe through 1977 because of a "superior management job" which had resulted in more than $100 million in sayings. Now, confronted with an Emergency Financial Control Board challenge to the transit budget, Chairman Yunich is talking ooce more about a 15-cent fare hike.

The Cootrol Board's finding of a potential $70 million transit deficit in the new M.T.A. budget cannot alooe explain this abrupt turnabout. Thirty million dollars of the prospective shortfall is in savings which the M.T.A. has said it can achieve but for which the board has merely asked additional documentation. Mr. Yunich has blamed the city for another $20 million loss due to cuts in reimbursement rates for students and the elderly. But Control Board officials say these cuts were already anticipated in the transit budget that was submitted to the board last month. Another $21 million might be accounted for by uncertainty over additional Federal aid under the so-called Beame sbuffle, But Mr. Yunich noted as early as last February that the future of the Beame shuffle, which allows localities to use some Federal capital funds for operating expenses, was seriously in Eveo if new funding for the entire $70 million deficit were required, that would not justify a 15-cent fare increase which would produce an estimated $150 million in additional revenues.

The sad truth is that the M.T.A. does face serious new fiscal problems — if not this year, next year — as Mr. Yunich was arguing last spring, Despite savings that have been achieved, the M.T.A. urgently needs new sources of income. But the answer does not lie in additional punitive and counterproductive fare increases or service cutbacks. Instead of quarreling with the Control Board over questionable budget items, Chairman Yunich should be pressing his original case in Albany for some kind of new regional tax-say a gasoline tax-to support the vital public transportation system of the metropoli-

Shining the Apple

Why is New York such a dirty city?

Most New Yorkers would immediately point the finger of blame at the Department of Sanitation, a notoriously inefficient operation whose performance hasn't been improved any by recent austerity cutbacks in personnel. But that's only a piece of the problem.

The best sanitation department in the world couldn't keep "a shine on the Big Apple," as Mayor Beame put it the other day, unless the people of New York abandon their slovenly habits. Sanitation Commissioner Anthony T. Vaccarello, who has been walking the streets in a "war on litter," has seen household and commercial refuse piled illegally on sidewalks and in gutters, tenants dumping bags into street litter baskets, schoolchildren tossing away soda bottles and candy wrappers.

"I felt all alone out there," Mr. Vaccarello said, "particularly when the stark reality sunk home to me that there are over seven million people out there who don't know anything about keeping our city clean-and furthermore don't give a damn."

Noting that, in addition to being oext to godliness, cleanliness can be good for business, the Mayor has launched a new, business-backed drive to persuade New Yorkers to change their ways. That's a formidable but worthy task. It might do some good if enough citizens can be persuaded that there is something they can do about the mess in the streets besides cursing the

The Senate Races—I

The Senate of the 95th Congress will be missing a few of the best known figures of the 94th by the resignations, notably, of Senators Mansfield of Montana, Scott of Pennsylvania, Symingtoo of Missouri, Hert of Michigan and Pastore of Rhode Island. But for partisan division and overall ideology, it promises to differ little from its predecessor.

In New England, every state except New Hampshire has a Senatorial contest this year. Democratic Senators Edmund S. Muskie in Maine and Edward M. Kennedy in Massachusetts have atrong records of constructive legislative accomplishment and seem headed for the victory they deserve.

Former Governor John H. Chafee of Rhode Island, a Republican, has a decidedly better claim to the seat being vacated by Senator Pastore than his Democratic opponent, who squeaked through with the nomination by 100 votes after an enormously expensive advertising blitz. Mr. Chafee was an able and courageous governor

Vermont offers the most difficult choice in the New England states. Senator Robert T. Stafford, Republican. is competent, low-keyed, reasonable and experienced; but on balance, we believe the nation would be still better served by the election of Democratic Governor Thomas P. Salmon, a strong environmentalist and a competent leader. Mr. Salmon has the potential to be an important voice for the Northeast in a period when this region urgently needs effective spokesmen on the national scene.

We will be commenting on the races in New York and neighboring Connecticut and New Jersey in subsequent

In Maryland, voters have an opportunity to promote an outstanding young Representative - Democrat Paul Sarbanes — to the Senate, Mr. Sarbanes has impressed his colleagues in the House by his serious and incisive mind; be offers Maryland a capacity for leadership well above the Republican incumbent's lackluster standard.

In Pennsylvania, two young Congressmen-Democrat William J. Green and Republican H. John Heinz 3dare competing for the seat being vacated by the minority leader, Senator Scott. Mr. Heinz is an independent, open-minded legislator of the type that ought to be encouraged whatever his partisan affiliation. However, his campaigns have been marred by excessive expenditures derived from Gulf Oil as well as his family fortune. Mr. Green began his career as a protege of the notorious Philadelphia machine once headed by his father, but he has grown in stature and in 1971 demonstrated courage by challenging Mayor Frank L. Rizzo in a mayoral primary. In the House he has voted consistently liberal.

The policy of the Federal Government for more than a decade has been and is now diametrically opposite to this: Federal spending has been hoge and uncontrolled; monopolization of credit by the Government, as it financed its deficits, has discouraged capital investment across the board, and there has been no conscious effort to balance the Federal budget.

One can ask whether the Federal Government was following an ill-conceived policy. Certainly its results were poor. Or was the Government following no policy, simply implementing the next expedient that political demands suggested?

The latter seems more likely. No national economic policy was defined or sold to the country. If there was such a policy, it was not clearly represented.

This amounts to failure at the Presidential level. Only the President has a oational constituency. Congress, from political oecessity, must represent smaller constituencies. If the President does not define national pol-

For a New Constitution

As the Bicentennial celebration draws to a close, those who will write a final report on the festivities might include a recommendation which could add some significance to what otherwise has largely been rather superficial celebrations of the historic events of Consideration should be given to the calling of a Constitutional Convention which would draft a new document for the needs of the natioo in the 21st century. Having amended our old Constitution 27 times, we might recognize that the world and the Republic have changed considerably since the original document was drafted in 1787 and adopted by the states and commonwealths in 1789.

Such a convention would give us an opportunity to appraise what is right as well as what can be improved in our political systems, to appraise relationships between Federal, state, local and regional governments and to evaluate human as well as economic rights-we could go on and on.

State of Arts: Mistaken 'Cry of

An otherwise constructive editorial. "State of the Arts" (Sept. 27), cootains a serious misstatement of fact with respect to support of the arts from the private sector: The assertion that private and business belp for the arts is drying up" is not borne out by the evidence.

The third in a series of semiannual surveys of ninety arts organizations throughout the country, carried out by this project last May, reveals that private individual and corporate support continue to increase in nearly every instance, with foundation support generally remaining stable. In earlier surveys, made during the height of the recession, the individual contributor to the arts of large, medium and small amounts somehow found the resources and the commitment to respond to increased need, even as many municipalities and states felt obliged to reduce their assistance. Additional evidence of the extraordinary private response to the proliferation of activity in the arts is provided by the recently published "Giving U.S.A." of the American Association of Fund-Raising Counsel, indicating a significant rise during 1975 in private giving to the arts and humanities.

To be sure, there are acute pockets of poverty in the acts and humanities, especially in the realms of community arts, museums and libraries, but it is quite simply inaccurate to characterize this condition as universal and to trot out scare words like "tragic" to describe a aituation that continues, in the main, to be upbeat when the other economic indicators of the nation's bealth have for the most part been static or moving in the other direction.

I fear that the editorial while purporting to be dealing with the national arts scene, is in fact simply another reflection on the familiar New York City provincialism. A generalized cry of wolf no longer impresses potential donors, private or public. It also does a disservice to those situations which

Southern Jews, and Baptists, and Jimmy Carter

By Eli Evans

Jimmy Carter has been caught in a nexus of changing images among Jews, Roman Catholics, white Southern Baptists and blacks about themselves, each other, and about the South. Stereotypes crumble slowly, however, and when religion and race are involved we are all prisoners of our emotions and history.

It was always an axiom of Jewish life in the South that racial trouble meant heated passions and a dangerous atmosphere that was "bad for the Jews." The opposite was true, too: If blacks were making progress, so were Jews. As the Presidential campaign progresses, these and other lessons of growing up Jewish in the South have seemed more and more relevant.

One of the real secrets of Mr. Carter's appeal to blacks lies in his native ability to communicate in the idiom of the black church, Even with the tough talk since the second debate, Mr. Carter's style before black audiences remains the same. His soothing manner, the tones of his voice, his willingness to speak of love in a religious context-all mark him as a man who understands. The Southern accent on matters political may grate on the ears of Northerners so used to hearing bigotry in those same accents, but in the context of the black church it is home talk from a familiar terrain of the heart. It stirs mixed memories for me.

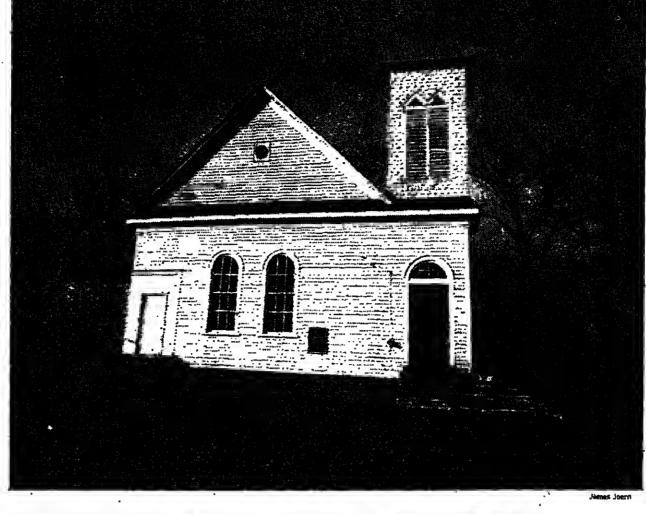

· My friends and I, as Southern teen-agers, did what most other white boys did on weekends. Occasionally, on a Sunday night, we visited the rural black churches just to see the holy rollers shake and chant. It was a special experience for me to immerse myself in a kind of Old Testament Christianity and to sing out spirituals about my heroes, Moses and Joshua, without fear.

For one thing, no black preacherman would try to convert a Jewish boy like me, hecause I was white; and, more important, there was no chance that any of my buddies, who were all Baptists, would get swept away and go down front to he saved and leave me as the only outsider at the service.

Looking back, I now realize that to me the Jesus of the white man and the Jesus of the black man gazed down at congregations whose needs and histories molded two distinctly different saviors.

While black Jesus was benign and comforting, white Jesus was strict and unbending. Black Jesus passed among the people as a friendly saint; white Jesus stood tall like an awesome soldier bent on retribution against sinners.

Because of the history of the Ku Klux Klan, Jews in the South have always judged politicians by their attitudes toward blacks. To Jews and Catholics in the North, ardent Christianity and the Klan have been sounds of "Onward Christian Soldiers" in the Klan cow pastures, the lynchings. Jews in the South, more at home in the Bible Belt atmosphere, learn to distinguish between politicians hy instinct, and the race issue is one of the measures. "It's like Andy Young said about blacks," a Jewish lawyer in Atlanta told me. "As a Jew in the South, you develop antennae about politicians. For instance, when you're around Lester Maddox, who always mixed up God with segregation, you just knew he could be anti-Semitic at the drop of a hat. Jimmy is different, You just sense it."

To the older generation, with memories of Eastern European persecution, sawdust Christianity Is reminiscent of a narrow-minded, relentless suspicion of the Jews. But a Jewish shop owner in Georgia with a slight accent said: "No one down here can imagine Jimmy as a cossack on a steed. Hell, Carter won't destroy the shtetl. He comes from a shtetl."

But Jimmy Carter is not running for office in the South; he is running for President, and the major issue for Jews, North and South, is Israel. In that connection, the Southern Jewish joined as images—the burning crosses, response is instructive, perhaps another example of the ignorance in the North of Southern Baptist attitudes, Jews in the South may sense that in a world of growing dependence on Arab oil they are more secure with a candidate whose commitment to Israel's survival is based on something deeper than a search for Jewish votes.

"We lews are paranoid," an Atlanta doctor states, "and for good reason. Given petro-dollars, we can't trust anyone. But Carter's support for Israei is hiblical. It's deep. He doesn't have to be convinced there ought to be a Jewish state. He knows that in his heart."

One never had to argue with the man-on-the-street Southerner about Israel's right to live, nor the moral justification for a Jewish state. With the exception of J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, this support has been reflected by virtually every Southern Senator and Congressman in the last 28 years. Jimmy Carter's statement last March that "I think God wants the Jews to bave a place to live" is in that tradition.

Support for Israel is not only deep in fundamentalist prophecy, but became stronger politically as the Soviet Union began pouring arms into Egypt and Syria, Time and events translated it into Southern myth-the appeal of the underdog, the respect for toughness and scrappiness, the admiration for military daring and hravery in the face of overwhelming odds. The exploits of the Israeli military have managed to crack through the Jewish stereotype and change the image of the modern Jew in the mind of the South

"I elways thought Jews were yellow," a filling station attendant in south Georgia once said to me, "but them Israelites, they're tough."

If the .South has changed in the last 20 years in attitudes toward Jews, Catholics and blacks, then the Southern Baptist church is changing also, Doctrinal disputes abound but the deeper psychological changes were little noticed until the emergence of the Carter candidacy

Before the Civil War, every church in the South with a constituency in the North experienced a deep schism (including the Jews, who in the South feared for their safety and wanted to remain quiet on the issue of slavery).

The Southern Baptist Convention was formed out of the abolitionist condemnation of the South, and slavery was banished from its agenda. After the war, all the Southern Protestant churches that gave divine justification for slavery turned inward, abandoning for a hundred years talk of socia justice and embracing the so-called "spirituality of the church"-that private witness and individual soulsaving was the primary purpose, removing the church from any involvement in political and economic issues. The opposite occurred in the black church. Born in bondage, it cried out for freedom and grew into the heart of the civil rights movement.

In the early stages of the campaign when Jimmy Carter seemed to be speaking from a pulpit, it was "Daddy King and Andy Young-symbols of the black church-that gave him credibility in the North. He spoke of the need for "simple justice" in his acceptance speech and during his men's Bible class in Plains, Ga., which incideotally was front-page news across the South. Perhaps the more vital issue for Jews and Catholics is not the narrow influence of the Southern Baptists on Carter, but the profound impact of Carter on the 34,902 Southern Baptist congregations. Some leaders may endorse Ford, but to the mass of Baptists Carter is becoming something of a church folk hero. If Carter is elected, one major question will be whether a Southern Baptist in the White House, with integrationist pride and black support, can begin to build bridges between the black and white churches in the nation on the "public sins" of racial discrimination and urban blight.

The Klan is as great a historical burden for Southern Baptists as slavery is for the South as a whole, Perhaps Jews, evangelicals, mainline Protestants, and Catholics, recognizing the new Southern realities revealed by the political campaign, could hegin a dialogue aimed et mutual understanding beyond outdated stereotypes on all sides. It would be fitting, indeed, if the black church, with common links to the Old and New Testaments, could be the catalyst for the first steps toward building new trust and communication among the major American

Outside Looking In

By C. L. Sulzberger

PARIS—For reasons known best to astrology, a practice much venerated in the Orient, October seems a particularly aignificant month for the Chinese People's Republic. On Oct. 23, 1961. Chou En-lai abruptly quit a Soviet party congress he was attending in Moscow and flew back to Peking. heralding the break between those Communist capitals.

Five years later (Oct. 27, 1966) Chine fired its first nuclear bomb from a guided missile. Henry Kissinger arrived in Peking Oct. 20, 1971, to arrange for President Nixon's visit. On Oct. 25, 1971, the People's Republic was admitted to the United Nations.

Of all Octobers since Mao Tsetung's forces consolidated their hold on China, this month seems likely to be deemed the most fateful. For not only the succession to Chairman Mao is heing decided but also policies that mey ultimately affect the global balance and such crucial metters as war or peace.

A decade ago (Dec. 5, 1966) André Makraux, the great French writer, resistance leader and former minister, who had been sent as de Gaulle's special envoy to Mao, said he thought by far the most important international event that day was the naming of Chiang Ching (Mme. Mao) as cultural consultant to the General Political Department of the Chinese Army, her first official job.

Chiang Ching, then 52, had shared Mao's difficult life in the cliffside town of Yenan during the war against Japan and Chiang Kai-shak's Nationalists and had turned from a career as a minor actress into a major if indirect political force. However, she only emerged as an actual power when entrenched among army commissars in a bureancratic post.

Mr. Malraux believed the appointment indicated Mao's determination to insure control of the army and to end the insolence of Red Guard youths who, the chairman had confided, were basically against him. But Chiang Ching seemed to move steadily toward these very youths, especially during the final years when her husband was unable to exercise actual control.

We do not yet know if she actually made an outright move and sought, with three other leaders now in disgrace, to seize the leadership torch on the basis of a forged testament, as her enemies allege. Whether or not she

Hua Kuo-feng, murdered cannot be assessed abroad. Nevertheless, it is evident that Prime Minister Hua outwitted and outmaneuvered her and her so-called "radical" group.

Today Mr. Hua seems firmly in charge of everything but appearances can often deceive. After all, Teng Hsiao-ping, who had been leading the post-Mao succession race a few months earlier, was dropped last winter, following the death of his sponsor, Chou En-lai. Chiang Ching, who disliked Mr. Teng, was one of those who boosted Mr. Hua as a replacement. Now she is either dead or in detention; and Mr. Teng appears to be back in Peking.

Edward Heath, the former British Prime Minister, who was received by Mao, was told by Peking's Foreign Minister that Chinese "democracy" had its own way of working. If an official was attacked by open insults and hostile placards, he had to stand and fight in order to survive. Mr. Teng may have managed to do that. If Chiang Ching is not actually dead, can she?

China's real decision-making force is perhaps the army. A member of the Soviet Communist Central Committee once told me: "China's future will probably depend largely on generals because this has always been the case through China's history. Military men move to the top. But although they like to watch big parades and make big speeches, they usually are a moderating influence." It is interesting to note that Mr. Hua went out of his way to pay tribute to the army at Mao'a memorial service. He has subsequently been supported by Gen. Chen Hsi-lien, chief of the Peking garrison, and a key commander. It is also worth commenting that several of Mr. Teng'a old army friends have been quietly rehabilitated.

The army leadership has seemingly chosen sides. Some observers even forecast a variety of military dictatorship, only theoretically controlled by the Communist Party, and probably aiming at a pragmatic policy of national consolidation. But nothing is yet certain, this fateful October.

It is conceivable that there could be at least some bloodshed before the struggle for succession ends, And no one can safely bet on the outcome. After all, who, five years earlier, could have foreseen Khrushchev sitting in Stalin's office?

The first free press was printed in 1690. It lasted one day.

It all started in this country when Benjamin Harris printed a small paper in Boston. He called it Publick Occurrences Both Forreign and Domestick.

You see, Harris thought collecting the news, printing it carefully and responsibly and selling it to the community could be a respectable business. One that both he and the people in his community could profit from.

But he ran into trouble on his first issue. Not for printing libels, but for printing the truth. Because printing anything without the authority and approval of the Crown was forbidden. His paper was immediately suppressed and the remaining copies destroyed.

But the idea of a free press didn't die. Time after time new. newspapers were born. And snuffed out. Until a Revolution, a Constitution and finally a Bill of Rights would make freedom of the press, and the right to know, a legal business in this land.

The newspapers that make up Knight-Ridder are dedicated to the business of a free press. We are dedicated to using this freedom responsibly. and defending it when necessary.

We believe that each one of our newspapers should be free to serve the needs of its community in its own way.

All working to promote and preserve the highest editorial and reportorial standards.

Most people have forgotten Benjamin Harris. But they should never forget what he tried to do. We haven't.

People have complained that the banks unloaded their securities," Roderick M. Hills, chairman of the Securities and Exchaoge Commission, said in an interview. The Bank of America has acknowledged that it divested itself of city securities in early 1975.

'A Classic Case'

"If the banks knew the city was in bad shape, and if they participated in another underwriting, reducing their holdings, that's a classic case," Mr. Hills said.

He said that ellegations had been made that the city, then in a fiscal blnd, needed the additional funds to raise the cash to pay off maturing notes held by the banks, which had previously agreed to having

During the first quarter of 1975, commercial banks divested themselves of a total of $2.7 billion in municipal securities, according to a report made by the Congressional Budget Office. Sources familiar with the study said that most of the divested securities were New York City obligations, mostly 30-and 60-day notes which accounted for 40 percent of the municipal securities market. An economic downturn, as well as lack of confi-

Water, in a steady rainfall, pelted the marble floor of a passageway in the World Trade Center for three hours yesterday, preventing thousands of people from entering or leaving by a major exit at the North Tower of the 107-story twin-tower complex.

The waterfall, Port Authority officials said, was caused by the failure of pumps to spurt "several thousand gal-lons" of water majestically out of a new fountain being tested on the still-unopened plaza above the concourse. Instead, the water seeped through the

John Hughes of the public affairs of-fice called the waterfall "a little drip," but it was heavy enough for the Port Authority police to rope off the area, which was bounded by the side of a Chase Manhattan Bank branch and an long-handled brooms.

Later, a black and red machine called a triple-acting scrubber was brought in to draw up the water in large gulps, It started 15 minutes before the noon rush hour. A seemingly unending flow of people merged from the PATH and the AA, CC, EE, RR and Nos. 1, 2 and 3 IRT subways and were prevented from entering the North Tower. An equally impressive number of disgruntled office workers and visitors were prevented from leaving. Crowds of office workers approached the roped-off area and looked perplexed by what appeared to be rain coming through the ceiling of a building so self-contained that employees there can move from the subways to offices to shopping areas and to restaurants all day without leaving the premises and without experiencing either

Our deep appreciation is extended to the many Democratic and Republican Senators and Congressmen constituting substantial majorities of both Houses, who during 1974 and 1975 supported the position of justice, morality and the rule of law in the cause of Cyprus as against the aggression by the marauding, occupying armed force of Turkey.

The excerpts appearing below represent only a small portion of those Senators and Congressmen who hold similar views.

Liberals in Canada Lose By-Elections; French Is an Issue

By ROBERT TRUMBULL Special to The New York Times

OTTAWA, Oct. 19—The governing Liberal Party has been joited by sharp defeats in two by-elections apparently mainly as a result of its controversial language and economic policies.

Progressive Conservatives won yesterday in the one-time "safe" constituency of Ottawa Carlton embracing part of the national capital and an adjacent municipality, and in St. John's, the capital of Newfoundland.

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Truceau's Liberal Party set the stage for still another significant test of the uncertain Canadian political climate by scheduling an election for Nov. 15 in the Frenchspeaking province, the country's largest. In Quebec, as in the two elections yesterday, the Trudeau move to give French an equal status with English and his widely attacked wage-and-price controls are expected to be key issues.

In Ottawa Carlton, the Liberals were overwhelmingly defeated yesterday in an area where the party had been dominant for the last 94 years.

The last occupant of the Ottawa Carlton seat had been Mr. Trudeau's popular former Finance Minister, John N. Turner a successful lawyer, had been mentioned often as a likely successor to Mr. Trudeau before he broke with the Prime Minister and resigned from Parliament over a difference in economic policy last year-

Mr. Turner had won the seat by a ma-jority of nearly 11,000 votes in the last election in 1974. The Progressive Conservative candidate, Mrs. Jean Pigott, won yesterday by taking 51 percent of the

In St. John's, where the Progressive Conservatives and the Liberals have traditionally run virtually neck-and-neck, Mr. Trudeau's Party slipped to a poor third behind the New Democrats, a Socialist group. The seat was won by John Crosbie, a prominent Progressive Concorresponded with the party's upsurge in recent opinion polls, which showed the Liberals trailing by 33 percept to 45 percent—the lowest point for the Liberals in mony years. The Gallup Poll published last Saturday placed the 37-year-old Con-servative leader, Joseph Clark, ahead of Mr. Trudeau for the first time by 36 percent to 2S percent.

Mr. Trudeau, whose Government is entitled to stay in office until 1979, de-clared in a brief statement to reporters that he regarded the adverse vote as a "warning." However, he indicated that there would be no drastic policy changes

"Obviously, the people are trying to convey a message to the Government and we'll try and take that message," said Mr. Trudeau, who left a few hours later on an official visit to Japan.

He added that while "by-elections are warning signs to a Government they don't settle national issues."

"I don't try to overseli people on my cameras. And I won't be undersold on my prices"

Mario Hirsch

When someone comes into my store he's not gang tackled. If you want to just browse for an hour, fine with me. If you want somebody to wait on you, that's fine, too. I'll answer any questions you have about a camera.

I'll even take it out of the box for you, unwrap the camera, put on a lens and install the batteries. Now who else does that? At Hirsch Photo I believe before you buy a camera you should work with it. I don't pressure people either. So if it's a Canon F-1 or EF, or a FTbn, I'll help you decide which is right for you. And after all that, if you don't buy it then that's okay, too. I know someday you'll be back-because nobody else gives you that kind of service. And nobody else gives you the kind of prices I do. Practically half my customers are professionals. They come with more cameras around their necks than I have in my store. You can't fool those guys. They know what a good deal is.

So that's it. Great service and great prices. These days it's a hard philosophy to always live up to, but I really have no complaints. And neither do my customers.

Simple dramatic inertia ran a furious race at the Lyceum Theater last night. And won. The play, called "Best Friend," died in the first few minutes and never recov-

red. They rarely do. The play was written by Michael Sawyer, who had some success with an Off Broadway offering two or three seasons back, "Naomi Court." That I mised, and "Best Friend" I would willingly bave relingoished. It is a character atudy without a play to give it substance. The character is Carolyn, a lady with delusions of illusions. She pretends that sne is triends to the great and mighty—in a singularly unconvincing passage in a singularly unconvincing play it is sort of explained how she obtained signed photo-graphs of herself with the rich and famous—and yet she is, in fact, a specially oervous neurotic, desperately needing the kindness of strangers.

She returns from e vacation to her New York apartment on the West Side to discover that her younger friend is about to marry a man from Indiana. By chance she waylays the man from Indiana and diverts him from his farital path by falsely suggesting that her relationship with his future brides is lesbian. The poor man turns discon-solately to the bus station.

That is the first act. In the second act, he returns. The lady goes quietly bonkers, all that nonsense about lesbianism is seen to be the silly misunderstanding it is, and the happy couple go off, together back to the bus station, leaving our heroine Carolyn propositioning by telephone the woman taxicab driver who had delivered her to her apartment at the beginning of the first act. All very tidy, predictable and terrifyingly dull.

Neither the dialogue nor the story had much more than a tentative grasp upon any kind of reality. The writing was hysterical, the narrative was unlikely and the result was unhappy.

Marty Jacobs gave the play just the kind of heavy-handed under-scoring it so richly deserved, but so patently did not need. The set-ting by Andrew Greenbut and the costumes by Miles White looked noticeably unnoticeable and the acting had a quiet air of frantic desperation to it.

Berbara Baxley, es the twisted Carolyn, did almost everything but eat the curtains, and she may even have done that when I wasn't looking. It is the kind of role that tempts one to excess and it was a temptation that Miss Baxley made only a passing effort to resist. Much of the time she appeared to be giving an imitation of somegiving an imitation of Bette Davis. The rest of the time she was merely exaggerated. But poor dear, what could anyone do in the cir-cumatances of a sinking men's play? The rest of the acting wes neilber good nor bad, but perfectly adequale to its purpose. It was not a happy evening in the thea-ter at the Lyceum last night. Indeed, this is the kind of play that

Jeff Beck's recent record, "Wired." was a particularly fascinating example of jazz-rock and the reason was the delicate tension between the jazz and rock elements in the music. On Monday night at the Pallacium, Mr. Beck appeared in concert with the Jan Hammer Group, and the results weren't so striking. There were short-range and longer-range rea-

The short-range reasons were that Mr. Beck had the flu and perhats wasn't pulling emite the overgy he normally puts into his playing. In addition, his guitar was mixed at a relatively low level of volume in relation to Mr. Hammer's keyboards and his drum-sons for that.

The longer-range reason had to do with the personnel and their mer eppears, but in a carefully balanced context of jazzmen and rockers. On this tour, Mr. Beck is playing with Mr. Hammer and his

The record was so good because Mr. Beck's extensive background as a blues-rock guitarist-the characteristic riffs, the rhythmic solidity (and simplicity) and even the twanging colors of his electric gultar-anchored the often febrile. kaleidoscopic intensity of Mr. Hammer's Mahavishnu-inspired jazz.

On Me day, Mr. Beck's presence was felt less strongly. There was still much to admire. But Mr. Hammer, for all his flashy virtuosity, isn't the distinct musical personality that either his jazz mentors were or that Mr. Beck can be, and the result sounded just a little PROGRESS Two current photograph exhibitions with pictures taken more than 100 years epart provide viewers with comparisons. The first is made up of rare photographs from the 1860's and 1870's: Civil War pictures, an expedition in Nevada, a survey along the 100th meridian (covering what is now North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas) and an Indian Pueblo. Many of these photographs were used to make engravings for Warper's Weekly. These pictures are at the Rinhart Gelleries, in the former Theodore Roosevelt home, at $18 Madison Avenue. The second display is the work of two contemporary photographers who looked at the corporate world. Burt Glinn and George Haling show the power, glamour and beauty of big business in color pictures made for annual reports. And then, in bleck and white, the stark side of big business is revealed. This show is at Nikon House, on Madison Avenue at 50th 5treet, until Oct. 29. Time: 10 A.M. to 6 P.M. Admission: Free. Information: 486-1428.

Members of the orchestra said that they and most of their colleagues were happy with the settlement, reached last Friday, and glad to be back. Commenting on a closeness among members of the company, Jerre Gibson, a violinist, said. "It was almost like striking against the family." family."

Was anyone sorry to be back? "I tell you, I'm in this business so long it doesn't matter anymore." said Otto Frolm, a violinist, as he played canasta in a musicians' lounge before going into the orchestda plt. "It's nice not to work but you miss your friends. It's nice not to work and to work."

Lack of Incom

What was not so nice, of course, was the lack of income, and many of the artists started trying to line up engagements in case the company season did end—a particularly difficult project for singers because work is booked so far in advance.

But precisions found things to do that

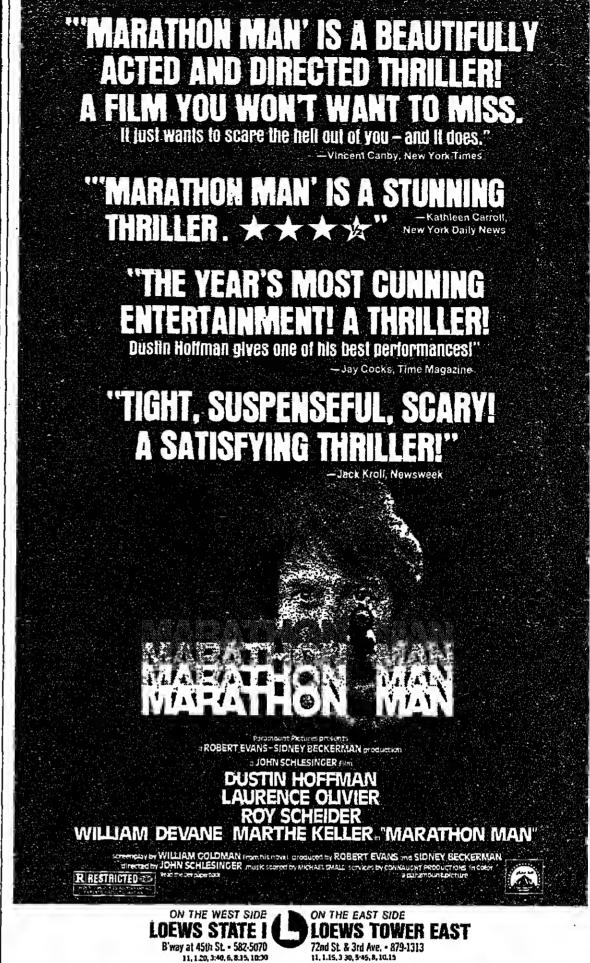

But musicians found things to do that normally are precluded by six weekly performances plus rehearsals. Howard Hensel, who sang Orestes, painted his whole apartment and wallpapered the bathroom. In fact, he said, "I met four other people from the opera in the paiot store." Erich Silberstein, violist, found time to play chamber music. David Halloway, who sang Agamemnon, became a father.

Wind Suppresses a Fire

LINDEN, N.J., Oct. 19 (UPI)-Fire officials say a strong wind prevented a holocaust when a fuel truck overturned and caught fire near two oil refineries. The fire engulfed 500 feet of grassland along the highway this afternoon, but wind gusts of 25 miles an hour blew the flames away from the direction of the Citgo Oil Company and the British Petro-Flying Dutchman," one leum Company refineries. The refineries aductions, remarked, "It's are adjacent to the hikhway.

Police Sergeants' Delegates Back New Pact With New York City

Association yesterday overwhelmingly planned for today. approved a new contract with New York City that contains significant concessions on their part and no gains for their union.

But in a cautious and unusual step. the delegates, who 11 days ago withheld their approval of the contract, left the responsibility of final acceptance up to the unioo's full membership which will be polled by mail.

Sgt. Harold H. Melnick, the president of the sergeants' union, said that be expected his 2,600 members to embrace the cootract and that be thought that that "might stimulate" a settlement of the labor dispute between the city and the Patrolmen's Beoevolent Association, which has been marked by acrimonious street demonstrations in the last three

A epokesman for the Patrolmen's Be-nevolent Association refused to comment on the sergeants' action, However, Douglas D. Weaving, the president of the pa-trolmen's unioo, has repeatedly maintained that he will not be influenced by actions of the superior officers.

There were two particularly notable concessions by the sergeants. In one, patrol sergeants will work 10 extra days a year and administrative sergeants will work eight extra days in exchange for trimming 20 and 15 minutes from their daily schedules.

In the other, they will be paid at the rate of time and a half for overtime only at the completion of a five-day week in-stead of on a daily basis as is now the five days, they are to be paid at the rate police officials. of straight time.

> Speaking with a reporter after a closed two-hour luncheon meeting with his delegates at the Terrace in the Park restaurant in Flushing Meadow Park in Queens, Sergeant Melnick said that cootracts with the city were usually given final approval by the delegates, but that he had recommended that this one be presented to the membership because it was "sensitiva" and "these are not normal times." He said the delegate vote approving the contract was 107 to 15.

Sergeant Melnick said that he told the delegates he was not happy with the con-tract, but that it was "the best they could do," and asked them to be 'logical and realistic.

"Wheo I'm dealing with a corporation that has fiscal problems," he said, "I've got to realize it."

Philharmonic Hall Opens on Acoustical High Note

there seem to be less reverberations; the sound is cooler; the emphasis is on clarity. In hi-fi terms, Fisher Hall "flat," without any peaks. One is willing to bet that the graphed curves, when published, will show virtually a straight line through the audible range As in many halls with modern sound, the bass tends to be a little weak. Lack of bass response was one of the principal bugbears of the old ball. The new one has much better bass sound, though traditionalists probably will want more color.

Dr. Harris says, and the musicians agree with him, that the Philharmonic is going to have to learn to accommo-date Itself in the new hall. In the past, because of the acoustic deadness, they had to force. Now they must learn to take it easier, to listen to themselves more carefully and to develop a more chamber-music kind of ensemble.

The stage itself was one of the major troubles of the old hall. Philhar-monic musicians have been saying ever since 1962 that they could not bear one another very well, and that they often bad to guess at their en-trances. Dr. Harris has paid considerable attention to the stage area, and apparently bas corrected that defect. Last night the Philharmonic musicians were near-manimous in their praise of the stage. Now, they said, they could hear everything that was going on.

So can everybody in the audience. Mr. Milstein's tone sounded true in every part of the house. There naturalwas some falling-off in the rear, though surprisingly little. But, as one tested the violin from locations on every level, it, too, came through with as much clarity as the solo instruments of the orchestra.

Psychocoustics Redeployed

Psychoacoustics also plays a part. The old bottle-sbaped adultorium gave the impression of being too long in relation to its width, and there was a psychological loss of contact between players and audience. The new hall is a rectangle, has warm antique whita and gold colors, and a much more inti-mate feeling. That will belp re-establish contact from stage to audience. The full test in that respect will come when recitalists use the hall.

Thus ends a saga that started after the final Philharmonic concert at the end of May. Avery Fisher, who had contributed a large sum of money seven years ago for the maintenance of Philharmonic Hall-as it was then named -was one of the moving spirits. He was willing to see his money spent in a once-and-icr-all effort to rectify the alling acoustics of the hall.

In an action unprecedented in concert-hall history, the auditorium was entirely gutted and reconstructed. Now it is a half of plaster and wood, with a completely different look and a completely different sound.

Just as a pianist with a new instrument has to spend time adjusting bis fingers and ears to the new sound, so the Philharmonic—and everybody else who has appeared in the old ball— will have to readjust. There will be some experimentation, and different conductors will be trying out different

This time they did it right. The new Avery Fisher Hall—new from top to botton, new in structure. shape and style, literally suspended from new roof trusses within the shell of the existing building —is as good to look at as it is to listen to. Acoustics have been its continuing problem since it was built in 1962, and acoustical evalu-ations will determine its success. But architecture and acoustics are virtually inseparable in this case, and the new hall is a lovely place

Although every form, material surface inflection and structural technique has been approved by the acoustician, Dr. Cyril M. Harris, the architects, Philip Johnson and John Burgee, bave produced a very personal product. This is a sophisticated solution of great ele-gance and absolutely no gimmick-ry. It is a completely contemporary design that still lives graciouswith precedent; in a sense, it has come home to history.

Stylistically, this is not a hall that could have been built 14 years ago. No modern architect at that time could accommodate himself to the past esthetically or borrow its technical lesson without being a traitor to the modernist cause. Today architects are increasingly, almost insatiably eclectic, seeking to enlarge their design sensations and experiences.

Mr. Johnson is quick to tick off sources: Austrian baroque for the antique greenish-white walls and ceiling and rich gold leaf trim, the 19th century for the rectangular concert ball shape, classical theater for the procenium-arch and tha flat, stacked boxes against three

. If there were no other reason to respect these sources, prudence would have dictated the example of successful prototype. No one was about to take a $6.4 million gamble. Three times and you're In the matter of concert hall de-sign, old is beautiful, in sight and

And so the architects changed the shape from a modified, curved fan to a straight-walled rectangle (there are 2,747 seats now, where there were 2,790 before, in straight, rather than curved, rows), added the proscenium-arch stage, elim-inated the curves of walls and hoxes, and altered the contour of the floor. They built everything of solld wood and heavy plaster and battened it all down firmly. This is a "tight" house; there are no "holes." If a slot is left for a retractable fixture it is lined in thick plaster. When the ball is closed for performances it is sealed with lead doors. The new structural leger-demain is by the engineering firm of Amman and Whitney.

All of the gestures to the past bave been practical and gracious, but at the same time there is no compromise with the present. This is an unequivocally 20th-century design. Lights glitter, but there are no gift shop chandeliers. Straight lices of clear bulbs make madiant reflections in smooth gold leaf sur-

Walls and ceiling are faceted in a continuous pattern of angled stepped planes of random width and sequence, meant to break and diffuse sound in the same manner as the irregular surfaces and ornament of period styles. Only the gold box fronts are curved. The stage is lined with European oak, "buttoned down" with bright brasscapped screws, for a jeweler's

The gold color is repeated in velour seats, and the balconies bave parquet floors. There is no onsense about vapid "recalls the past through tacky design details, and there is no failure of imagination or taste.

A good theater is an event. That is something that Charles Garnier understood and demonstrated with opulent excess a century ago at the Paris Opera; it is carried out bere with sophisticated restraint.

If the new Avery Fisher Hall is a functional design, it is also a beautiful design; it projects glam-orous theatricality. This is a setting for people as well as a place for music. Mr. Johnson and Mr. Burgee understand the social-dramatic role of architecture, and New York bas finally gained an appropriately cosmopolitan, and major modern Fisher Hall is in every sense properly named. Some of the money for the reconstruction of the lobby and backstage areas came from the Charles A. Dana and William Randolph Hearst Foundation. But the bulk of the $6.4 million total is from Mr. Fisher and he says, the expenditure will not lessen the impact of his original bequest for the Nearly Complete Control maintenance of the hall and for the annual Avery Fisher Awards for promising young musicians. "The income from a fully rented hall will more than make up for the money I gave for the reconstruction," he said yesterday.

'Never Worried' About Acoustician

Is he pleased with the results? "If you have to have an operation," be says, "you go to the best doctor you can find lie down on the table, don't say a word and let him cut. I was worried about Dr. [Cyril, M.] Harris [the acoustician].

'I made my judgment when the or-chestra first appeared for its first re-bearsal, last Wednesday. When I heard then tuning up, as a former fiddler myself, I knew this was it. Everything that's happened since bas been purely confirmation And I find the looks spectacular. Now it's a joyous place. There's a sense of festival there."

Mr. Fisher's family emigrated to New York in 1905 from Kiev, Russia, "just a step ahead of an oncoming pogrom," as he put it in 1973. Avery Robert Fisher was born on March 4, 1906, in an apartment house at Park Avenue and 96th Street, the youngest of six children. He attended Public School 37, De Witt Clinton High School and en-tered New York University in 1924, graduating in 1929 with a Bachelor of Science degree.

Continual Interest in Sound

While developing an interest in sound reproduction, he worked in an advertising agency and as a book designer. He founded Philharmonic Radio in 1937, which was later—like the hall that was to bear his name renamed Fisher Radio. In 1969, he sold his company, by that time one of the country's best-known high-fidelity manufactur-ers, to the Emerson Electric Company of St. Louis for just under $31 million.

From that point, he began to consider how he might best invest his fortune for philanthropic purposes, and on May 10, 1973, he approached Lin-coln Center through an intermediary. "It was a lot of fun announcing it to my immediate family," he reported later about the initial bequest. 'I tell you, they found it mind-boggling. They all flipped. They were stunned, over-whelmed and prood."

Mr. Fisher's immediate family consists of his wife, the former Janet Crane, whom be married on Aug. 9, 1940, and three children, Mrs. Barbara Wool, Nancy and Charles. They were all present at last night's formal opening of the new Avery Fisher Hall.

was going to be put in charge of the Avery Fisher Hall reconstruction project Dr. Cyril M. Harris is widely re-garded as the leading acustician in the country, if not the world. "Because of past record, I was never worried about Dr. Harris," Mr. Fisher said yesterday. "He wasn't fooling around with experimentation. He didn't try any tricks." Dr. Harris hardly had to try such tricks. His track record includes the Metropolitan Opera House, the Concert Hall of the John F. Kennedy Cenetr for the Performing Arts in Washington, Minneapolis's Orchestra Hall and Powell Hall in St. Louis—all of which have been widly praised for their cound.

Dr. Harris's position as acoustical consultant amounted to nearly complete control over the reconstruction of Avery Fisher Hall's interior. Even Philip Johnson, the architect, made no design decisions without checking first with Dr. Harris.

"When I take on a consulting job," Dr. Harris said yesterday, "I do every-thing myself. I just don't trust anybody else. So I do just one job at a time, and do everything on that job myself."

Dr. Harris was engaged to begin work on the Fisher Hall reconstruction project in January 1975, and aside from teaching he has worked on little else since. His perfectionism came to be the subject of affectionate anecdotes during the later phases of the work. "It got to be a joke with us on the job," said Carl Morse, chairman of Morse/-Diesel Inc., which did the reconstruc-tion. "Whatever Cyril wats, Cyril gets."

"The basic principle was that whatever music is made is kept in the hall," Mr. Fisher said of Dr. Harris's work. Nothing can leak out, through a door or a ventilator shaft or through the walls. Nothing disappears except through natural decay and absorption."

Dr. Harris's reactions to his creation have been just as enthusiastic as Mr. Fisher's. "It was a thrill when the musicians came up to congratulate me," he said. "I don't think I should give a musical judgment. But there is an extraordinary clarity of tone that gives me a great thrill."

By DONAL HENAHAN

Fourteen years and more than $28 million later, the New York Philharmonic finally has found an acoustically bospitable home. That, at any rate, was the general reaction last night of musicians and assorted notables to the first public concert in the newly remodeled Avery Fisher Hall.

Comments gleaned at intermission and after the final notes of the concert had died away varied considerably in enthusiasm. William Schuman, the composer and former chairman of Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, represented the euphoric party most eloquently: 'This is one of the great hall of the world now, and I've heard music in most of the great ones, It has clarity, warmth, brilliance everything." Mr. Schuman added that he thought the hall's acoustics had "always been fairly evaluated in the bast."

Musicians Share Enthusiasm

Musicians of the Philharmonic, whose union had come to an agrement with the management only 45 minutes before the concert's scheduled starting time, generally seemed to share Mr. Schuman's enthusiasm. Stanley Drucker, the principal clarinet, said: "It's not just a question of being able to bear. but the quality of what you hear. And the sight lines—we can actually see the audience." said: "Speaking for the bass section, we have a tremendous response now that we never ad before. I feel that clarity is supreme, but it lacks some of the warmth that you have in a place such as Carnegie Hall."

Gerard Schwartz, co-principal trumpet, was a bit cautious: "It's hard to judge a ball so quickly. Many of us have to change our styles, to play much softer than we've ever played before, which is to our advantage." Pierre Boulez, the music director and conductor of the night, found the sound "very clean, precise—but not clinical. That's a kind of blend. What was terribly difficult before—the ,balance between woodwinds and strings-is now very good.

Comparison to Carnegie Hall "It's really quite amazing," Mr. Boulez went on. "The sound of Carnegie is darker, this one is lighter. But I thin there is more projection of the bass here than in Carnegie.

Some members of the music community were more reserved in their comments. Many mentioned the excellence of Carnegie Hall, the dowager queen of New York concert life, and drew comparisons. Goddard Lieberson, CBS and Columbia Records official who was a composer in his earlier days, called the new sound 'marvelous, though less subtle than our older halls such as Carnegie or Symphony Hall in

Mr. Lieberson thought the new Avery Fisher sound compared most nearly with Kennedy Center in Washington, whose acoustics he characterized as

'clean and precise." David Rubin, concert and artist menager of Steinway and Sons, thought hard and found a word he liked for the hall: "Serviceable. It's a serviceable instrument, better than hefore."

Nathan Milstein, who was the evening's soloist in the Brahms Violio Concerto, said, "For me it is very good. I think people are a little bit critical. I find Carnegie Hall has wonderful acoustics, but not perfect. But people got used to it."

ity had been improved. Nathan Stuch, asociate principgal cellist of the orcbes-tra, found the ball to have "fantastic clarity now." And most players felt that the acoustical energy, the volume of sound being delivered, was greater.

rections was, in theory, supposed to provide a wide range of sound adjust-

Shape Said to Change Dr. Beranek said he intended the hall to be rectangular, with straight side walls, but that the architectural plans were revised without his knoledge. The hall, as first built, had curved walls. Dr. Cyril M. Horris, in redesigning the ball, went back to the strictly rectangular shape that Dr. Beranek says he wanted from the first. Since the opening of Philharmonic Hall, as Avery Fisher Hall was originally known, on Sept. 23, 1962, four remodeling efforts have been made, the latest bill running to $6.4 million. As of last night, the total cost of the 14year-old hall stood at $28,535,000. On the night the ball opened, the thud of disappointment was beard around the music world. More than $20 million had been spent to build a home Arts, but the result was acoustical disaster. Almost at once plans to repair the trouble began to take shape. In the summer of 1963, about $500,000 more went into an attempt to make a few changes. In 1964, more repairs, at a cost of $355,000.

In 1969, a full-scale effort, costing $1.3 million. With each repair, hopes rose and slight improvements were detected by some listeners. But musiclans and critics kept insisting that the hall sounded dry, cold and unresponsive. In 1973, an angel appeared who was willing to pay for a complete overhaul of the Philharmonic's bome. Avery Fisher, a pioneer manufacturer of high-fidelity equipment, offered the Philharmonic a gift of $19 million and Philharmonic Hall was promptly renamed in bis honor.

Full-Scale Reconstruction

After three comparatively halfhearted attempts, the Philharmonic last spring undertook a fullscale renovation. The Interior of the hall was, in the words of Amyas Ames, chairman of the orchestra and also of Lincoln Center. 'demolished and totally reconstructed." Some 6,000 yards of broken concrete alone was removed and tons of old ductwork. Under Dr. Harris's continual supervsion the Morse/Diesel Inc. con-struction company virtually built a new concert half, one with two aisles instead of the former three, with tiers of balconles on either side instead of curved acoustical baffles.

Because of the magnitude of the remodeliog, the Philharmonic delayed the opening of its season by a month. For the last month the orchestra has been performing at Carnegie Hall in a Mahler Festival, which ends next Monday night. The Philharmonic season will open officially with the first subscription concert tomorrow night.

Latest Blows for Jets: 3 Top Runners Injured

Special to The New York Times

HEMPSTEAD, L.I., Oct. 19-It may not seem possible, but the Jets' running game is in worse shape today than it was last night, when the New Yorkers were routed, 41-7, by the New England Patriots.

When the game at Foxboro, Mass., began, the Jets started with Ed Marinaro, coming off two consecutive 100-yard efforts, and Louie Giammona, the exciting rookie. For hackup help, they had the experienced Steve Davis, who bad been a starter until fumbles sent him to the beach.

None could do much against the Patriots, whose quarterback, Steve Grogan, rushed for only 13 fewer yards than all the Jet runners amassed.

Now the Jets have discovered that Marinaro is out for at least two weeks with a bad foot bruise; Giammooa will miss this Sunday's game against the Baltimore Colts with an aokle injury, and Davis most likely will miss the Colts' game, too.

In addition, Joe Namath has a sore hamstring muscla and may sit out this Sunday in favor of the rookie, Richard Todd. Namath, though, has been sore after every game this season and still has been ahla to start the next time.

49 at Game Arrested The Patriots scored their Monday night victory in a disruptive setting. Because thousands of fans arrived after the opening kickoff-they had waited until the last minute to find out whether the game would be televised in the area—and because of such a late start, many fans apparently had too much to drink.

By game's end, 49 had been arrested including 11 who ran onto the field during the game. Four people suffered heart attacks and two died. A policeman was beaten and hospitalized with a concussion.

Despite what a Patriots' official charged was disruption "by New York college students, as there always are when a New York team plays in Massachusetts," all those arrested were New England residents.

They missed seeing a total rout in which, the Pats' runners (led by Grogan's 103 yards on seven rushes) set a club mark of 330 yards. That was also the most that any team has ever rusbed against the Jets.

Tha Patriots do well against other clubs, too. They gained almost 300 . yards on the ground in games against Oakland and Miami.

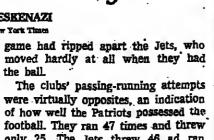

So the Jets' defense, stocked with five rookies, was unable to continue its success of the previous three weeks -in which it was responsible for giving up a total of only three toucb-

Blitzing didn't stop the mobile Grogan, who simply ran laterally, or who eluded charging Jet linebackers and got off quick passes. Soon, the Jets stopped blitzing.

The Patriots scored on their opening drive with Andy Johnson going over. The New Yorkers beld the Pats for a few series, but Grogao scored in the second quarter and Johnsoo scored on a pass. It was 20-0 by halftime, Grogan scored again in the third period for

By then the New England running sumer magazines.

The clubs' passing-running attempts were virtually opposites, an indication of how well the Patriots possessed the football. They ran 47 times and threw only 25. The Jets threw 46 ad ran 25. Who knows what the figures will be this Sunday, when Bob Gresham, Clark Gaines and Jazz Jackson will be the New York runners. Namath completed only his short passes, for one score, before Todd came in at the eod of the third period. One of the Jets' offensive linemen.

Garry Puetz, was seen on national televisioo almost as many times as the more glamorous quarterbacks. The cameras picked him up on the sidelines three times, more than any other Jet. Each time he was shown laughing, leaving the impression that he did not care what happened in the game.

Ironically, Puetz (pronounced Pets) played with his left knee in a cast. The week before, in the victory over

Buffalo, he was limping but chased his replacement off the field.

"Who knows what I was laughing about," said Puetz today. "The first time I was discussing playing tackle with Winston Hill. I'm new at playing tackle and be's a veteran at the positackle and be's a veteran at the position. The other times? I don't know. Maybe it was about all the drunks running on the field."

Spectator Violence to Be Aired

BOSTON, Oct. 19 (UPI)-Representatives of the Boston Red Sox, the Boston Celtics, the Boston Bruins and the New England Patriots were invited today by a state Senator to a Friday meeting to discuss ways to curb spectator violence.

The meeting, called hy State Senator Michael Lopresti Jr., was scheduled one day after the police arrested 49 persons for disorderly conduct during and after the New England Patriots game against the New York Jets at Schaefer Stadium.

"I helieve we must make public events once again safe for the average spectator," Lopresti said, Representa-tives of State, Boston and Foxboro police were invited to attend the State House meeting.

Giants Demote Hughes in Chang

By MICHAEL KATZ

Special to The New York Times . PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y., Oct. 19-The National Football League trading deadline passed today and Pat Hughes-thinks he got a bad deal.

The 29-year-old linebacker is still a Giant but in the flurry of changes the. 0-6 team has been making, he no longer is a starter. .

Apparently: Norm Snead and Rondy Colbert are no longer starters either. Coach Bill Arnsparger, who replaced Craig Morton at quarterback last week with Snead, said today he was "seriously thinking about starting. Morton against the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday.

Arnsparger also said he would do "something" with his defensive secondary, which Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesola Vikings victimized for 281 yards last Sunday. "Something" means Col-bert will be replaced either by Roscoe Word, the former Jet, or by Jim Stienke, the free safety, with Larry Mallory taking Stienke's regular position.

Hughes Objects to Moves Hughes, a Giant starter for five years, objected to the change that brought Harry Carson, the rookie, into the lineup as the middle linehacker with Brian Kelley pre-empting the former Boston University star's weakside linebacking position.

"I believe I was doing a sound joh," said Hughes, who got in for only four goal-line plays against the Vikings. He said he was not given any "specific" reason why he was benched when Arnsparer spoke to him last week.

I was told it was my lack of intensity" Hughes said "Qu'est-ce-que c'est mtensity? How do you measure it on the Richter scale?

"I still have a great deal of confidence in my ability. I will show any-body my game films. I'm not ashamed of what I did. How do I feel? It hurts, with a capital 'H.'"

"I don't think any person who doesn't play understands or wants to understand," said Arnsparger, "and I appreciate that because that's what competitors are made of."

"Pat's a very capable player," said Marty Schottenheimer, the imebacker coach, "You don't stay in the league as long as he has without ability.

"But we needed to get better and we were 0-5 the way we were. And Harry Carson is too good a football player to be on the bench. In my opininn he's going to be one of the finest that ever played.

"Pat's played reasonably well. But if you have three spots available and five quality people, then you have to have two unhappy people because if they're not unhappy they're not quality is big, rugged and likes to run. The position seems to lend itself to injury because the quarterback cannot protect himself well, especially when passing, and everyone is after him—pass rush-ers, linebackers, hitzing safeties.

The Patriots need to keep Grogan healthy if they are to challenge for a playoff position. Their problem is that to reach the playoffs they need to keep him running.

"I don't like to see him run," says.

backer." He's our most valuable play-

Running Quarterbacks: How They Hurt the Defense

By WILLIAM N. WALLACE

Steve Grogan, a hig, rugged 23-year-old from the plains of Kansas, showed a national television audience on Monday night what a quarterback who cares to run can do to defenses. Grogan, who stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs 205 pounds, de-stroyed the Jets in the Patriots 41.7 victory, as he rushed for 103 yards and Football · scored two muchdown. (He has six for the season. which puts him up with league leaders.) In the National Football League a quarterback will gain more than 100 vards rushing in a game about once every five years. When that happens, gin to fantasize. If a quarterback can outrun linebackers, as Grogan did against the Jets on a 41-yard touchdown dash out of a broken play, the temptation is to put quarterback-run plays— the draws and rollouts—into the offense because the average N.F.L. defense is not equipped to handle them. It has neither coverage nor keys against a running quarterback, since it is ac-customed to see him run only two or three times by accident-scrambling-many offensive backfield coaches he-

rather than by design. Joe Namath was impressed with Grogan's performance. Namath said: There is no limit to where he can go. But be can't keep running the way he does. He has to realize a quarterback is a valuable property.

the ball 28 times, mostly by plan, for 205 yards. Among other quarterbacks, Jim Zorn, the Seattle rookie, is a distant second with 110, and he has been running for his life.

Miami's Bob Griese is third with 101.

He will risk running when his receivers

In five games Grogan bas carried are covered. It is a risk because he has been hurt a lot. Also, his offensive line has a weakness at right tackle this season and he has to take off frequent-

Baltimore's Bert Jones has 105 yards and is similar to Grogan-big, tough, fast and delighted to run. Jones also appreciates what an important dimension his running can add to the offense.

The opposite are players like the Cardinals' Jim Hart, who will hardly ever run. He bad a shot at running for a first down near the Dallas goal on Sunday, but instead threw a pass that the Cowboys' Randy Hughes inter-cepted in the end zone. Hart is slow and wears a Namath-type knee brace. "I'd be crazy to run," he said.

Two Sundays ago seven quarterbacks were knocked out of action, including Terdy Bradshaw of the Steelers, who

With Erving Still Absent. CBS Cancels Nets on TV.

The continued absence of Julius Erving from the New York Nets has caused CBS to cancel the telecast of the Nets' opening game against the Golden State Warriors at Oakland on Friday night. The game, scheduled to start at 11:45. o'clock, Eastern daylight time, was to have been the first of 40 National Bas-ketball Association games CBS planued to televise this season

"We had scheduled the game to show the national addience Julius Erving in action," said Barry Frank, vice president in charge of CBS Sports. "Without Julius, we feit the game did oot have quite the same interest."

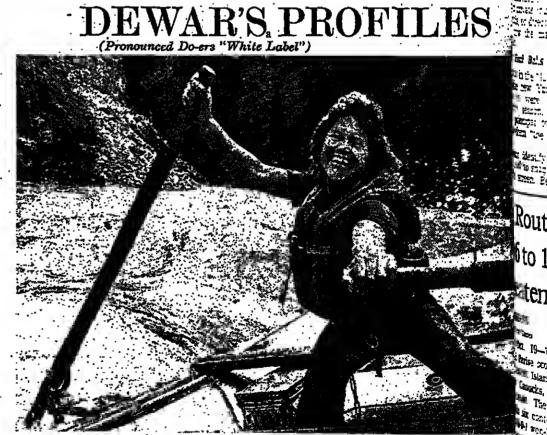

Erving, probably basketball's biggest attraction, has refused to report to bis team until the remaining four years of his seven-year, $1.9 million contract are renegotiated.

who earliar was dropped by Detroit and Buffalo. Jimbo Elrod, the Chiefs' impressive rookie, is out for the year because of a separated shoulder, he got burt. when wrestling in the locker room with the seasoned Willie Lanier, Elrod had taken Lanier's job as middle linebacker, but then Lanier won it back. The 49ers are trying out Jack Snow. among others, as a replacement for Willie McGee, the wide receiver who is out for the season wit ha broken leg.

Lee Roy Jordan of the Cowboys contended that Conrad Dobler, the ag-gressive St. Louis guard, had tackled him from hehind illegally and nearly ruined his knee. The angry Jordan is sending films of Dohler's performance to commissioner Pete Rozelle in protest.

The Delaware pro football lottery has been a disappointment taking in only one-eighth of the $430,000 play officials expected each week. The di-receor, Peter Simmons, is baffled saying that the payoffs have been better than those of the illegal betting cards.

But before Rivers could say "thanks, . George" to George Steinbrenner, the owner, for his most recent pep talk, the fleet Yankee runner took too many

Later in that inning, after Munson singled with two out, Billy Martin argued with the umpires that Zachry wasn't coming to a complete stop in his pitching motion with a runner on base. Yankees Get First Run

The Yankees, seeking their first World Series victory since Oct. 14, 1964, finally got something going in their half of the fourth.

Chambliss led off with a single and, after Carlos May struck out, Zachry walked Nettles. Oscar Gamble, playing right field as part of the Yankees' left-handed hitting platoon, followed with a single to center and the Yankees had their first run. However, Randolph popped out and Elrod Hendricks, bating for Stanley, flied out, ending the

The batting change didn't help at that point, but it proved beneficial three innings later when Jim Mason, who replaced Stanley at shortstop, hit a home run. The blow into the rightfield stands was a rare sight for Masoo because he hit only one homer in 217 times at bat during the season.

Zachry, who pitched only five inoings but woo a game against Phila-delphia in the playoffs, followed the homer by walking Rivers. Roy White forced Rivers at second, but Munson lined a single to right and Manager Sparky Anderson decided it was time for his relief crew to take over.

Back in the fifth, Rivers recorded his first hit in the Series after failing to hit in his first 11 at hats. He went to second wheo White walked, but then he was doubled off second when Tony Perez snared Munson's line drive with a little leap. Chambliss struck out and that coded another Yankee chance. Jackson, who was an outstanding re-lief pitcher for the Yankees in the sec-

net pitcher for the rankees in the sec-ond half of the season, shot down the Reds' attack for three innings, giving the Yankees time to catch up. But the left-hander finally gave out in the eighth and needed help from Dick

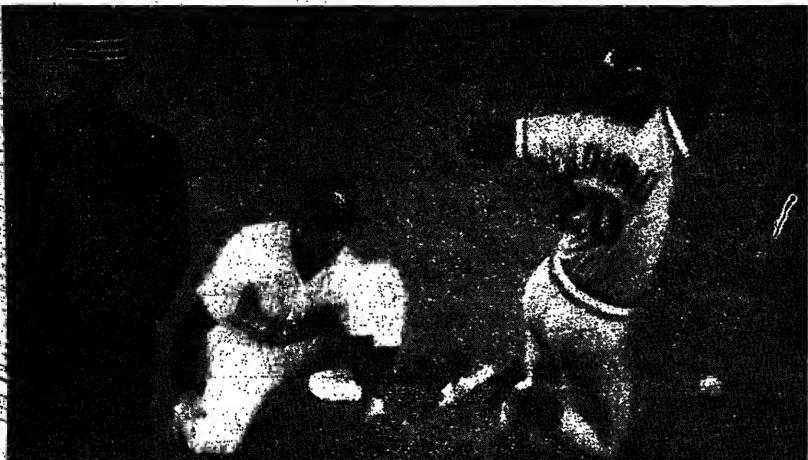

Rose started Jackson's trouble with a single to center and keo Griffey added to it by getting his first hit of the series, a single that snapped a 0-for-11 streak. When Joe Morgan lined a double along the right-field fine, Rose scampered home, Grifffey raced to third and Martin walked slowly to the mound.

The Reds scored one more run in the inning, when White just missed catching Foster's sinking line drive to left with the bases loaded. The bit went fo ra single and kept the bases full, but Beoch grounded into a double play, ending the inning. The Reds won, 6-2, and took a lead of three games to oone in their at-tempt to become the first National League team in more than 50 years to win two consecutive World Series.

The game was surrounded by talk of the weather and its effect on the players. Confronted with playing their summer sport in sub-50-degree weather on a fall night, they were concerned with finding ways of keeping warm. They wore thermal underwear and they sat close to beaters specially placed in the dugouts and bull pens. There was one noticeable differenca in the teams' approach to the problem.

How Lefty Gomez Talked to the Ball

While George Steinbrenner, the Yankees' dynamic owner, was ordering Mickey Rivers to start hitting and baseball's warm-blooded commissioner, Bowie Kuhn, was awaiting National Broadcasting Company's permission to order the World Series resumed, Lefty Gomez was bolding court in a hotel lobby. On second thought, maybe "holding court" isn't perfectly accurate, because Vernon Louis Gomez iso't as regal as all that. Though he was a prince of pitchers when he was helping the Yankees win all thosa championships in the 1930's—in five World Series over eight years he never lost a decision—he did not take himself seriously, and oothing changed when he was stuffed and mounted in the Hall of Fame. In this search of wintry night games negative search son of wintry night games, people seek the sunshine of his company, as the Dodgers' new manager, Tommy LaSorda, sought him out oo this occasion. "I was a young guy around a winter baseball meeting," LaSorda said, "and I put a cigarette in my mouth and was reaching for a match when you reached over and lit my cigarette. You never knew how much that meant to me. because I used to dream about being what-you were, a star pitcher in the hig leagnes." Lefty stared. "Didn't you ever dream about women?" he asked.

Like all pitchers who were active when baseball was a nine man game, Lefty enjoys talking about his hitting and he probably enjoys it more than most because he was such a funny hitter. In 14 seasons, he compiled a major league batting average of .147, but one year be soured to 200. Today, 200 hitters hold out for big money.

The Insult Deadly -

"I held out after hitting 173," Lefty said. "In 1933 Ed Barrow, the general manager, sent me a contract in Rodeo, Calif., and I sent it hack with a polite note explaining that they had mailed me the bathoy's contract by mistake. Barrow phoned me at the corner butcher shop—there were only four telephones in Rodeo—and told me to come to New York. Changing trains and all, it took me six days. "You trying to be a comedian? Barrow asked when I got to his office.

"No sir,' I told him. I thought maybe you were, sending me the same cootract as last year. I won 24 games.'
"'It's all you're going to get,' he told me. 'If you don't like it, go home.' So I went home. Six thousand miles and 12 days for that. "The fact is, I wasn't a bad hitter. I had a good eye hutmy right leg was yellow." Gripping an unaginary bat, Lefty pulled away from an imaginary pitch. "Remember the 1934 All-Star Game," he said, "wheo Carl Hubbell struck out five great bitters in a row - Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin. Then Bill Dickey singled, and I was the next hitter. Gabbby Hartnett, God rest his soul, was catching.

"You trying to insult Hubbell?" he asked me. 'Coming up here with a bat in your hand!"

"Even Timmy Sullivan, our batboy. 'Get me my bat, Timmy.' I'd say, and he'd say: 'What are you planning to do with it?"

"As a matter of fact," an old guy said, "if I'm not mistaken I saw you get two hits in a World Series game. That day you beat the Giants something like 18 to 4 in 1936."

"You are mistaken," Lefty said. "It was two walks in one inning, wheo we scored seven runs. The only World Series hit I ever got was in the last game that year. It was a ground ball that handcuffed Burgess Whitebead at second a ground ball that handcuffed Burgess Whitebead at second base, and that winter he had a nervous breakdown.

"You're right, though, about me being a good hitter. Remember the time I knocked myself out of the box? I stepped out of the batter's hox and was knocking dirt out of my spikes the way those big hitters do before diggin' io. Crosetti, who was waiting on deck, said, 'Hey, Gomez.' I looked around, and hit myself right here on this ankle booe, and bad to leave the game. I think it was you wrote that I'd finally developed power." finally developed power."

Speaking of Line Drives

As it does inevitably among Yankees of Lefty's day, Babe Ruth's came came up. The Babe's memory for names was less than remarkable, but he had been a left-handed pitcher himself before moving to the outfield, and he soon came to know his skinny and gifted colleague.

"I came up with the Yankees in 1930," Lefty said, "and they sent me to St. Paul for part of that year. Then I came back, and the next spring we were training in St. Petershurg. I was sitting on the porch of the Princess Martha when Babe and Claire drove up in a 16-cylinder job. He was going to play golf with Tooy Lazzeri.

"'Hey kid,' he said, have you seen the Dago?"

"He's in the lobby,' I told him, and still sitting at the wheel he hollered, 'Dazago!"

"How are you, Mr. Gomez?' Claire said.

"'Hey Lefty!' Babe said. Why the hell didn't you tall

"Hey, Lefty! Babe said. Why the hell didn't you tell me you were back in town?" There is a story, possibly apocryphal, about a kid pitcher asking Mr. Gomez's opinion as the best way to handle a line drive. "Run in on it," Lefty advised, "before it picks up speed." Now somebody mentioned Mark Fidrych, the Detroit rookie whose habit of talking to the ball enchanted crowds this suppose habit of talking to the ball enchanted. crowds this summer. Had Lefty ever dooe anythiog like

"Talked to the ball?" Lefty said. "Certainly. When some-body'd hit a line drive 1'd tell it, 'Go foul, you son of a —!"

Talk of the Series

Birth of the Stadium And Yankee Legacy

When they played the first World Series game in the "oew" Yankee Stadium-this was back in 1923, not last night in the even newer stadium -John McGraw was reigning in the visitors' dugout, Miller Huggins was running the home dugout, and a concert baritooe named Graham McNamee was sitting in the open seats saying into a pie-shaped microphone, "Good afternooo, ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience." For those of you too young to remember, they used to play baseball io the afternoon in those days. And radio was a new-fangled inventioo that was just beginning to carry messages, like World Series scores, from city to city. Graham McNamee was a 34-year-old recital singer trying to make a career in New York, and after his debut at Aeolian Hall, he drew this cheering review from the music critic of The New York Times:

"Aoyone who sings the air 'O Ruddier Than the Cherry' from Han-del's 'Acis and Galatea' with such admirably flexible command over the divisions, with such finished phrasing and such excellent enunciation as McNamee showed, is doing a difficult thing very well indeed."

Hnw He Got to the Stadium McNamee got from the recital hall to Yankee Stadium by way of the Federal court in lower Manhattan, where he was serving on jury duty one day and decided to stroll up Broadway during the luncheon re-cess. By skipping lunch, he saved 50 cents from his jury allowance of $3 a day. Besides, he was intrigued by a sign on the building at 195 Broadway: "Radio Station WEAF." He rode the elevator to the little two-room studio on the fourth floor, asked If he could watch the ploneers of commercial radio for a few minutes and later left with a job: jack-of-all-trades at $30 a week. Three months later he was broadcasting the Harry Greb-Johony Wilson fight for the middleweight title, and about a month after that be was behind the microphone trying out that "excellent enunciation" on the first game of the first World Series in Jacoh Ruppert's new stadium in the Bronx. They called it "The Battle of Broadway" because the Giants had won nine pennants under McGraw and now were being challenged by

tional hero, Babe Ruth.
This was long before George Steio. hrenner inveoted the walkie-talkie, long before Bowie Kuhn invented the designated hitter, long before Marvin Miller lovented the free agent and long before NBC-TV invented Sunday night baseball. People were simpler souls then, and New York was flippiog over "The Battle" that had been building while McGraw and the Giants were beating Ruth and the Yankees in two straight World

Giants 'a Collection of Misfits'

But oow it was Oct. 10, 1923, opening day of the Series in Yankee Stadium. There sat McNamee, surrounded 55,307 people, and a record gate $181,912 was in the till (hardly eoough to a buy a minute of TV time last night). The Times observed that the Giants were "a collection of misfits," but a collection led by McGraw, who could impart "the unquenchable never-say-die fighting qualities to bis men." ribs in September, the Yankees called up a first baseman from the Eastern League named Lou Gehrig, who hit 423 in 13 games. But when the Yan-kees asked permission to make him eligible for the World Series, old John McGraw snapped, "The rule is there, and if the Yankees have an injury and if the Yankees have an injury to a regular it's their bard luck." "Pitching will decide," predicted Connie Mack, the patriarch, "and McGaw has good pitchers."

"Nothing to it but the Yankees," said Leon Errol, the actor. "The team has been going too good all year to be stopped now."

"The Giants look good to me," said Charlie Chaplin, who said nothing in films in those days, "I expect to at-tend the celebration for the Giants."

"I pick the Yanks," said Fanny Brice, splitting the Broadway vote. "Babe Ruth should be at his best, and I believe that he will show that be can still make home runs." The hig show cost $1.10 for a bleacher seat, $3.30 for the upper deck, $5.50 for the lower stand and

$6.60 for the boxes, And It was worth every penny when they went into the ninth inning tied at 4-all. Then 33-year-old Casey Stengel lined a clean "single" to left field for the Glants, the ball clearing the short-stop's head and skidding to the deepest alley in left-center field.
"Whitey Witt was in center field and Bob Meusel in left," Casey remembered years later, "and they had a rule that any time the ball was hit you were supposed to give it to Meusel to throw, because he had the best arm in baseball."

Like Cesar Geronimo, Anyway, by the time Meusel threw the ball back in, gimpy old Casey was stumbling around the bases, waving his arms, huffing and puffing, and hitting the dirt. And in his own words:

"They're still arguing about the groundskeeper even now, because I was sliding home and the ball took this bounce. They didn't used to sweep the infield then."

Like AstroTurf. Anyway, the ball bounced past the plate, and Casey had an inside-the-park home run, the first World Series home run in the new Yankee Stadium. The Giants won, 5-4, and they even won another game before the Series ended. But the Yankees meanwhile roared back. batting 293 as a team while Ruth whacked three home runs, and they took the first of all those champion-

"When Ruth batted," confessed Graham McNamee with that excellent enunciation and Victorian vocabulary, 'I was almost too engrossed to speak. Time's phantom flits into oblivion in moments like this."

Time's phantom flits, all right—53 years and 29 World Series later in the "new" Yankee Stadium.

By LEONARD KOPPETT

For the participants, the World Series focuses on winning and losing and drama. But for the rest of the large professional baseball community managers, general managers and other officials of nonparticipating teams, scouts, sporting goods salesmen, um-pires, a few players, media persons and dozens of others with a business relationship to baseball-it is an annual convention that provides an es-sential opportunity for exchange of information, job-seeking and other transactions.

One common feature of the World Series scene is in low profile this time: trade talk. There's a lot of sounding-out going on, but few deals can be firmed up, even informally, for two reasons. One is the new situation involving the 26 players who are free agents but who can't be signed before a draft process on Nov. 4. The other is the draft to be beld Nov. 5 to stock the new Scattle and Toronto teams in the American League.

Each American League team will wind up putting five players into the expansion draft, and rosters will be frozen as of Oct. 25. Since the rula permitting interleague trades takes effect five days after the end of the World Series, no American League team will be able to make an inter-league trade until after the expansion draft.

The National League teams are not subject to this restriction, their lawyers might point out, and are free to make interleague trades if they can find a league other than the American to trade with. But the real meaning of the whole business is that the interleague trading "window" has been reduced to the five weeks or so between Nov. 5 and the end of the winter meetings (in Los Angeles) on Dec. 11.

"You can't really make a trade," points out Alex Grammas, manager of the Milwankee Brewers, "until you know you have a replacement for the man you're trading away, either from the minors or from another trade or hy having someone who can switch positions. So the uncertainty about the free agents and the expansion just postpone any serious trading."

As for job seeking, the glamour job-managing—is unsettled for Pittsburgh and the two Chicago clubs, and indirectly, Oakland. Chuck Tanner's grievance is being decided by Lee MacPhall, the American League president, and the result may make him free to accept the Pittsburgh job. Tanner had a three, year, $70,000 contract with the White Sox, who deposed him, and signed with

Charlie Finley's A's for $25,000, on the usual assumption that the White Sox would pay the other $35,000, which they then refused to do. MacPhail's decision, it is believed, will require the White Sox to pay the difference this year, but not afterward. And if Finley is unwilling to assume the full cost for the next two years, Tanner might become free to move. The Chicago Cubs, who have not yet re-hired Jim Marshall, may yet do so; but Bill Veeck is likely to find a re-placement for Paul Richards for his

their dugout while the Yankees relied on electric heaters. "If it gets too cold, the pitchers don't get the feel of the ball," said Johnny Bench, the Reds' slugging catcher. "And hitters aren't as aggressive at bat. When you hit the ball off the end of the bat or you get jammed, you don't feel like taking another cut."

"We just have to blow on our bands and keep moving around," said Lou DiMuro, one of the umpires, whn got no chance to seek the warmth of a clubhouse during the game.

"But I'm wearing thermal under-wear, the 6-toot-5-mch, 175-pound Texan said, "Shoot, I have them on every day just in fill up my pants." The National Broadcasting Company came up with a god reasoo why baseball would be reluctant to return the Series to daytime play. NBC reported series to daytime play. Not reported that the second game, which was the first Sunday night Series game ever, was watched by 49 percent more households than the number that watched last year's second game, which was played on a Sunday afternoon.

For those with sensitive eardrums. playing in an air-supported "bubble" can sometimes be uncomfortable because of a booming echn when the ball hits the racquet. Alley Pond Indoor Tennis, which is opening Oct. 31 in Queens, says it bas eliminated most of the echo with a new type of bubble. It also says the bubble is translucent and requires no lighting during the day. Tom Cavallaro is the head pro.

seat suites are rented on a per-game

"Let's say General Motors is baving a board meeting and they want to have dinner and watch a game," Steinbrenner said.

Those two suites are also used for special guests like Cary Grant, Frank Sinatra or Henry A. Kissinger, whn need privacy and protection.

Last night's guests included Jack Dempsey and John V. Lindsay (Governor Carey was said to have been en route in the early innings). A friend spotted the farmer Mayor and said, "Nice place you built here," referring to the $100 million in taxpayer money the city had spent to refurbish the nid park. Liodsay smiled inlerantly.

Among the companies that have leased suites are Magnavox, American Broadcasting Company, WPIX, New York Bus Service, Cue magazine, Schaefer Beer, Ingersoll-Rand and Cabot Corporation, Edward Mosler of the safe-making family, one of New York's premier fans, presides over a full suite every game of the year.

Instant Replay a Hit

For the $19,000, each company receives 14 seats directly in front of the private lounge. The lounge is decorated with thick carpet, hassocks and five-piece leather sectional, thermostat, desk, refrigerator, paintings and photos of Yankees, extra chairs, liquor and food pantry, private lavatory and closed-circuit television. "Ynu should see the fans rush from their seats to the television for the instant replay," Steinbrenner said. In the second inning, when Cesar Geronimo was called safe in a close play first base, many nf Steinbrenner's guests shouted, "Out!" But Steinbrenner, after consulting the replay, told them, "Nn, he looked safe." It nhyiously hurt the bighly competitive owner to admit it.

There was a minor crisis when guests of another suite patron were inadvertently seated in the Steinbren-ner suite. Usbers discreetly asked them to move between innings, and all went well.

The suites are reachableo nly from a private ballway, guarded by regular ushers. Only ticket-holders are allowed in the area. A host cannot invite friends to visit his lounge unless he can offer them one of his 14 regular tickets. This is to avoid large parties that could in-trude oo oeighboring suites.
"You'd be amazed at the people I've turned away," says Barry Landers, the director of the suites. "Some very big names. So big I cannot tell you, but they'd be embarrassed if they were named. I tell them: Wait right bere. If your friend has a ticket for you, then you can visit."

SECOND INNING Driessen, the designated hitter, beat out a single that ticked off the pitcher's glove and caromed to the second baseman, whose throw failed to catch him. Driessen then stole second and scored whee Foster doubled to right-cester. Beoch singled off Chambliss's glove behied first base, sending Foster to third, Geronimo forced Bench at second but beat the throw to first, while Foster scored, Geronimo stole second and scored on Concepcion's single.

Bold Forbes Is Victor In His Return to Racing

By MICHAEL STRAUSS

Bold Forbes, the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes winner, who had been sidelined for four months with a leg injury, yesterday stirred a crowd of 11,672 with an impressive triumph in his comeback effort at Belmont Park. The 3-year-old son of Irish

Castle scored in the six-At the furlong $30,000 Stromboli Race against five rivals. He was clocked in the fast time of Tracks 1:09 4/5 in beating Meadowhill's Quiet Little Table to the wire by 11/2 lengths. "I was even more nervous this race than 1 was before the Derby, said Laz Barrera, trainer of the Kentucky-bred colt who was introduced to racing in Puerto Rico. 'I knew he was ready for this race, but I also knew he wasn't ready for his best effort."

Followers of form both at the track and at the off-track betting windows apparently were convinced Bold Forbes was ready for a victory. They made him a $2.20-for-$2 favorite. The suc-cess was the colt's sixth in his last seventh starts.

Returns in the Pink

Out of action while he was being allowed to grow a new hoof on his right hind leg, Bold Forbes showed no eigns of his injury. He appeared a little heavier than be had earlier in the season, but he was the same as far as gameness and speed were con-

Bold Forbes, owned by E. Rodriguez
Tizol, was asked to face three older rivals as well as two his own age. On hand to provide what was expected to be the higgest challenge of all was Pen-Y-Bryn Farm's seasoned and highly regarded Honorable Miss, the 6-year-old mare equally weighted at 119 pounds with Bold Forbes.
The crowd made Honorable Miss the 5-2 second choice and then watched her trail the field for most of the way. She finished fourth. Rockbay Stables 4-year-old Mac Corkle was third, finishing three-quarters of a length behind Quiet Little Table.

Angel Cordero, who guided Bold Forbes, was content to keep his charge off the pace down the backstretch and rounding the turn. Entering the straightaway, the 3-year-old colt was second, trailing Eugene C. Cashman's Nebr. Harvest by a length.

One Touch of the Whip

"I really asked Bold Forbes to run right after the turn for home," said the Puerto Rican riding star. "I touched him once with my whip and that's all he needed. This horse is a great one.

He will really show to his best only after he's had more racing."

Barrera is of the same opinion. "Tm very pleased by what our cost did today," said the Cuban-born trainer. 'Now we'll give him more work and prepare him for the Vosburgh at Aque-

Gold Cup Hopefuls Drill

In the barn area ettention began focusing on next Saturday's $300,000 added Jockey Club Gold Cup. Giant-killer Allen Jerkens had last year's winner of the 1½-mile classic, Group Plan, working 1½ miles in 2:06. Angel Penna supervised a half-mile breeze for Ashmore. The French import was clocked in 50 seeconds. Penna said later that France's leading rider, Yves St. Martin, would be brought here to ride Ashmore. Mervin (Magoo) Marks, who conditions Enchumao, said the Michael Wettach color-bearer would start in the Gold Great Contractor worked a swift six furlongs handily in 1:11 1/5 and Father Hogan, the third-place finisher in the recent Mariboro, breezed three-quarters in 1:15 1/5. Dave Whiteley said his Banghi was "very doutful for the Gold Cup." The reason? "Can't get a rider for him."

Mrs. Ogden Phipps's Straight and True, a 6-year-old gelding, has drawn top weight of 162 pounds for Friday's 53d edition of the $35,000 Temple Gwathmey Steeplechase Handicap. Augustin Stable's Arctic Joe, the winner of the International at Rolling Rock early this month, will carry 151. Steeple chasing's triple crown is made up of the Grand National, the Temple Gwath-mey and the Colonial Cup, to be run at Camden, S.C., on Nov. 27.

The State Board of Business Regulation postponed approval of the transof Hialeah Park to the owners of Gulfstream Park track, asking to see proof of the $13.1 million transaction. The deal had met immediate opposi-tion from Dale Bennett, Hialeah Mayor, who said his city had agreed to buy the financially alling track. But Gulfstream's attorney, Leonard Ro-mank, said Hialeah Park's 11 stockholders agreed Monday night to make for proof that Gulfstream planned to keep the track open in Hialeah. A bill that failed in the Florida Legislature last spring would have allowed closing Haleah, located in Dade County, and moving the track's operations to Gulf-stream, in neighboring Broward County.

Romanik said Hialeah was $12.3 million in debt and failing to meet interest payments on $560,000 more. A joint ownership of the two tracks, he said, would prevent costly overhead ex-

Bennett told the board that John Galbreath, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates and the controlling Hialean stockholder, last week indicaed he would sell the track to the city for $13.3 million. Bennett said Hialeah's board of directors also agreed to the sale. He said the city planned to lease the track to John Brunetti, a Miami private investor who would operate the facility.

Stanley Dancer, six times a driving champion at the Long Island standardbred oval, returns to Westbury to-night to guide Mistletoe Sharlee in the $49,564 New York Sires Stakes for 2year-old pacing fillies. Mistletoe Sharlee, the 4-to-5 early choice, has won 8 of ber 16 starts this year. Tonight's feature marks the beginning of four consecutive nights of Sire Stakes action, during which more than $200,000 will be distributed in purses.

At Meadowlands...

Carmine Abhatiello is hoping to reach a milestone by the end of the week. The 40-year-old driver from Colts Neck, N.J., needs only seven victories to attain the 3,000 mark. Only eight North American drivers have won 3,000 races, They are: Herve Fil-ion, Bill Haughton, Joe O'Brien, Del Insko, Bud Gilmour, John Chapman, Stanley Dancer and Bob Farrington.

MARCO ISLAND, Fia. (AP)—Ken Venturi, 1964 United States Open champion and television golf broad-caster, will spend much of his time at the Marco Island Country Club working on sports and recreation public relations. Venturi and his wife, Beau, and sons, Matt and Tim, became Marco Island residents this summer.

Venturi, despite being overcome by heat in 100 degree Washington, D.C., temperatures in 1964, literally staggered around the fairways in winning the Open at Congressional. It was the last time 36 holes were played in the

OTB Is Adding Glamour Unbeat At New Broadway Offic

A lush, carpeted offirack betting parlor will open in four months at 42d Street and Broadway with the expeciation that it will increase the handle and improve OTB's image.

Paul Screvane, head of OIB, said yesterday that the new parlor would be OTB's "showcase." He said it would be used to demonstrate to visitors interested in the Offtrack Betting Corporation's operation "what can be done."

Located in Times Square at the "crossroads of the world" on the southeast corner of 42d Street and Broadway, the new parior will have a moving sign to promote both the city and OTB and inside will display a board listing shows currently on Broadway.

A Theatrical Departure

"It will be dramatically different," Screvane said. "It won't be antiseptic and will be the first OTB parlor that will depart from our prosaic conven-tional green and white decor. It will be a show-biz kind of thing."

Screvane estimated the daily handle in the new parlor at $18,600 a day, for an annual profit to the city of $370,000, $100,000 to the state and $200,000 to the racing industry. He said the corporation had signed a 10-year lease on the 5,200 square-foot corner store at an annual rental of $85,000.

When the new parlor opens, the branch OTB office at 244 West 42d Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, will be closed. Screvane said the branch parlor, in the midst of porno shops, has been used by OTB critics nationwide "as testimony of a typical OTB operation in New York." The branch has a daily handle of $13,000.

"We want to get out of there," Scre-vane said. "We've been held up h cule, and we want to change

Reduced-Rent Proposal Stirs Broncos Dispute

DENVER (UPI) — A proposal hy Mayor William McNichols to reduce by 3 per cent the stadium rental fee of the Denver Broncos' football team will cost taxpayers $2.5 million by 1991, city officials say. The reduced-rect proposal has led to a dispute between the Mayor and the Council, which wants the rent for Empire Sports Inc., owner of the Broncos, left at 8 per cent for use of Mile High Stadium.

Empire sports would pay nearly $6 million in rent between now and 1991 under the higher figure and $3.5 million

under the lower percentage.

McNichols vetoed a stadium cootract. negotiated by the Council, that would have retained the 8 per cent rental rate. The Mayor said he did not necessarily object to the percentage, but was opposed to other tradeoffs made by the

Michigan to Salute State Bird (Fidrych)

LANSING, Mich., Oct 9 (AP)-The Michigan Senate has set Nov. 23 as Bird

Day to honor "the migration to Michigan of e particularly unique species, the Mark Fidrych."

"The Bird... has delighted ornith-baseballologists with a variety of antics which can only be seen on major league baseball pitching mounds," says a resolution offered by Secator Basil W. Brown, Democrat of Highland Park, and passed unanimously.
Fidrych, the rookie pitcher who provided the only bright spot for Detroit Tiger fans this season with his 19-9 won-lost record and zany behavior on the field, has earned the esteem of the people of Michigan, says Brown.

"Whereas, The Bird has captured the imagination of a sporting nation and has become, to Tiger fans everywhere, the King of the Roost; now, therefore, be it resolved by the Senate, that the members of the Michigan Senate hereby flap their wings and proclaim Nov. 23, 1976, as Bird Day in Michigan in recognition of Mark Fidrych's outstanding accomplishments," the resolution

The youthful Fidrych was dubbed "The Bird" because of his persistent chattering on the mound, both to himself and his teammates.

McKay Gives Bucs Old College Try

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 19-On most Sunday afternoons io other years, John McKay watched a professional football game with his wife and two sons and laughed at the holding penalties that were called and not called by National Football League officials.

"Now I watch the game, and I'm cryin'," the coach of the Tampa Bay Buccaoeers said today, in the aftermath of Sunday's penalty-filled game won by the Seattle Seahawks that included by the Seattle Seanawa 16 holding infractions,

The "exteot" to which offensive linemen are allowed to hold or get away with grabbing a defender is only one of the minor nuances thet McKay has had to face in his move from the University of Southern California to the N.F.L. The most difficult transition has been from only two losing seasons in 16 years at U.S.C., where be was one of college football's most successful coaches, to a new pro team that has lost ell six regular season games and five of six exhibitions.

"I thought I could rationalize losing better than I have," McKey said, puff-ing on a cigar during an interview at the Bucs' offices. "Now I find it dif-ficult to say it to myself."

Still Believes in Himself

McKay finds no mystique to pro football. Nor does he feel he is arrogant about believing strongly in himself, a self-assessment that worked in Celiforma but does not sit well with some traditionalists who stress humility as the first priority oo the ladder to success.

"It's the way we have played our games," he said of his frustrations. "It's almost better to go out and get wiped out than lose the close ones. Of course, I'm upset about the offense. It grates the hell out of me."

If McKay were less coofident, be might be losing sleep over the strange series of events that have followed his move to Florida. The Southern Cal team lost its last four regular-seasoo games following the announcement of his departure, and the high school team which has his son, Ricky, as the regular quarterback, is only 2-3 this year after going 10-0 last seasoo.

Several weeks ago, McKay's offensive coordinator, Johnny Rauch, resigned and accepted a position with the Atlanta Falcons. A failure to resolve responsibilities and a question of whether McKay or Steve Spurrier, the quarter-back, would call the plays were consid-ered possible motives behind Rauch's Personnel assessment probably has become the biggest area of difference for McKay between the college and pro game. At U.S.C., he could dress be-tween 50 and 65 players and utilize underclassmen for specialty But with 10 of his original 43-man roster already sidelined for the season with injuries, McKay has had to juggle and try to fit newcomers into an al-ready unfamiliar situation.

At one point before the first regular-season game, the Bucs signed five for-mer players from the Cincinnati Ben-gals. One local newspaper began calling the club the "Tampa Bay Bengals" that

"I've spent more time in personnel than in strategy sessions." McKay said.

"We haven't kept anybody who doesn't figure in our future." McKay appears to have retained his sense of humor, even in the face of his team's record and dismal injury status.

"I've learned guys feel a lot better on Monday than on Sunday," McKsy said, reflecting perhaps his own mood following Sunday's defeat. "I'm trying to get on Monday night football now."

Challenge Avis.

See if our car service network will work better for you.

Avis has three challenging questions you should ask before you sign any car lease which includes service. How convenient are the locations? How national is the service network?

How good is the service? After you hear the answers, find out if we can give you better ones. We've got a reputation for trying harder. Make us live up to it.

You'll like riding on our reputation. In New York 977-3300

Mississippi Low, Problems High

to The New York Times

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 19-To make baker's yeast, a sideline at its famous brewery, Anheuser-Busch Inc. ships in huge quantities of molasses.

The company's dock on the Missis-sippi River has been sitting on a dry sappi kiver has been sitting on a dry sandbar since early summer, so the molasses that usually comes by barge now comes by rail. The difference in shipping will probably cost the company $100,000 this year, a company official estimates.

Low water in the Mississippi this year is causing all sorts of problems for companies that depend on river shipping.

The river is at its lowest level in 10 autumns. The river stage at St. Louis last month was six feet lower than the 113-year average for this spot. Less than half the normal amount of water flowed past here in Santember.

The cause of the low water is the same drought that has hit the farmers of the upper Midwest this season. It is not clear how much the low water is adding to shipping costs. Neither is it certain how the in-

Gimbel Is Aiming for Profits With Changes

Gimbel Brothers, one of New York's oldest retailers and the only one with two major Manhattan stores, is striving to end its seven-year earnings drought with a return to profitability next year. The 11-store chain is in tha throes of major merchandising and operational changes that its new management said yesterday had already brought

"tangible results" in sales.
In recent months, said Matt Kallman, who was named chairman of the New York store group last July, its sales gains have "paced the city," with total sales this year up 6 percent over the

The big push in the ompany's new approach is to erase "our inconsistent image" and seek "a middle-price, middie-of-the-road" appeal to attract the broad range of consumers in the metropolitan area, said Mr. Kallman, a 48-year-old career merchant.

'Concentrate on What We Are' "We don't feel we have to be the biggest retailer to do a better job," he added. "What we want to do is to concentrate on what we are and what our customers want." But in New-York's tough retail mar-ket, probably the most competitive in the country, Mr. Kallman conceded that the need to draw customer attention forces stores to compete strongly. "We are going to do it, though, with consistency in merchandise, pricing and décor." he said, "so that customers know what we are."

The Gimbels New York group, a division of Gimbel Brothers Inc., which is in turn owned by the Brown and Williamson Tobacco Company, expects to continue to run at a loss this year,

The systems problems arise from the existence of both manual and computerized operations that have led to duplication, he said, and, therefore, "a strain on our profits," The integration of the conflicting systems in a single computerized program is being supervised by James Connolly, a former vice president and treasurer of Blooming-

September Housing Starts Are Highest in 21/2 Years

Rise Tops Previous Month by 17.6%— Apartments Surge

WASHINGTON; Oct. 19 (AP) - The number of new housing units started in September reached the highest level in two and a half years, the Government

It was the best month for new housing units since 1.88 million were reported in February 1974.

The report signaled that activity in the housing industry, which until now had heen one of the weak spots in the economy, had picked up substantially.

The Commerce Department put the number of units started in September after adjustment for seasonal variations at an annual rate of 1.81 million. That was an advance of 17.6 percent over Au-

The increase followed an 11.6 percent advance in August and left bousing starts 39.1 percent ahead of the similar month

Building Permits Climb

The number of new building permits ssued, an indicator of future activity in the industry, was up for the third consecutive month to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.43 million. That was a 10.8 percent advance over the previous month, compared with a 6.7 percent climb in August.

President Ford said be was "extremely pleased" by the report that housing starts and new home sales had been showing

In a related report, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said rates on home loans advanced for the third straight month on the strength of heavy demand for mortgage money.

The bank board said the average effective rate on loans for new houses was 9.08 percent in September, up from 9.02 percent the previous month. The average age purchase price of an existing bome climbed $500 to $43,300.

Strength in Apartment Sector

Much of the strength for the advance came in the apartment sector, where starts climbed by 48.2 percent to an annual rate of 415,000 units. The apartment sector had expanded 47.4 percent the previous month.

The surge in the apartment sector was attributed to the Federal Government's distribution of money and commitments for low-income housing.

Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders, said Federal involvement should keep the multifamily sector healthy for at least six to 10 months.

What was more surprising, he said, was the 9.2 percent advance in starts on sin-gle-family dwellings, pushing the number of housing starts to 1.295 million at an annual rate.

Mr. Sumichrast said that was the strongest September showing for single-family construction ever, with the exception of 1972. In that year, beavy Federal push starts in that sector to 1.5 million. The heavy increase in building activity contributed to the sharp drop in unemstantial reduction in the after-tax foreign ployment in the construction industry in exchange translation loss. Dow Rises 3.41 to 949.97 After Being Down by 4 Points Before Noon on Low G.N.P. Advance

By VARTANIG G. VARTAN

A Government report showing a pickup in housing starts in September transformed a losing market session into a winner yesterday as measured by the Dow Jones industrial average. The bine-chip Dow —whose components represent the steadiest sector of the market —rose 3.41 points to 949.97.

Shortly before noon, however, the Dow was down by more than 4 points. This tended to reflect an earlier announcement that confirmed Wall Street fears of a ter. This compared with 4.5 percent growth during the second quarter of 1976 and a strong 9.2 percent in the opening quarter.

The latest quarterly slowdown was not expected, but its confirmation did nothing to soothe investors whose current fears range from the economy to prospects of a Jimmy Carter Presidential victory in November and possible oil-price increases in December by Middle East producing

Housing Starts Are Help

The Commerce Department released its good news in midafternoon with the annooncement that bousing starts last month ran 17.6 percent ahead of the August rate and 39.1 percent above the Sep-tember 1975 level. The latest annual rate, adjusted for seasonal variations, was at 1.81 million units, the highest in 31 months. The Government said that starts creased last month for both single-family housing and apartments.

A pickup in residential construction, along with hoped-for improvement in capital spending and consumer outlays, is expected by many economists to bol-ster the now-sagging economic recovery. In yesterday's market, the comparative trength of basic industrial issues was

Once a company finds that the price of its stock has supped below the minimum level for margin purchasesgenerally $5 a share—it may be tempted to ask shareholders for permission to split the stock in reverse. At least two companies are undertaking reverse splits at present, convinced that the risks and the inevitable disaffection of some shareholders are justified by the potential benefits. The two are the Atlas Corporation on the New York Stock Exchange and Management Assistance Inc., traded over the counter.

Atlas, a uranium mining and processing company 8 percent of whose 14.7 million shares outstanding are owned by the estate of Howard R. Hughes, is presenting a plan to shareholders Nov. 16. It is seeking a reverse split of Management Assistaance, wrich originally went public in 1961 with 60,000 shares at $5 a share and subsequently reached a capitalization of 30 million shares, is asking shareholders to approve a 1-for-4 reverse split at a special meeting to be held Oct. 27,

Alan I. Goldman, Management Assistance's vice president for finance, is hopeful that the reverse split, if approved will make the company's shares more attractive to institutions and Wall Street generally.

The company's stock has aiready dropped because of the reverse-split proposal. The shares, quoted at 2% bid several days before the split were yes-terday. Initially, they slipped to 1%. If the shares held steady at yesterday's bid price, the 1-for-4 reverse split would bring the price up to 71/4 and reduce capitalization to 7.5 million

The unassailable argument in favor of a reverse split when stock prices are below $5 a share is to make the stock suitable under broker-dealer rules for margin purchases, But Mr. Goldman

BOND PRICES FALL, NEW ISSUES SLOW

arge Volume, Coupled With Shift in View of Fed's Short-Term Target, Blamed for Slump

By JOHN H. ALLAN

The credit markets slumped yeserday as bond prices dropped sharply and new ssues—carrying higher yields—generally failed to sell quickly after being offered to investors. The setback, dealers reported, was caused by this week's heavy volume of new issues coupled with an upward revision in the market's current view of the Federal Reserve's likely target for short-term interest rates.

In this heavy atmosphere, a new Bell System bond issue was marketed at a yield of 8.25 percent, up from 8 percent in the preceding such sale a month ago. The $175-million issue brought to market yesterday was less than a quarter sold one A2-rated electric utility bond issue was priced to yield 8.42 percent yesterday morning, and another was priced at 8.55 percent in the afternoon, Earlier this month, Aa-rated bonds were priced to yield as little as 8.33 percent.

Yield up for Power Yield single-A power company bond issue was offered at a yield of 8.60 percent, 18 basis points higher than the 8.42 per-cent rate on a similar bond sale last week. A Baa-rated bond issue was priced at 8.95 percent, and unlike the higher-rated bonds, this was lower than similar medi-um-grade bonds offered recently at 9 per-

In the tax-exempt bond market, prices dropped enough to raise interest rates perhaps 10 basis points. Treasury securities prices declined sharply, and the new-8 percent notes of 1986, which traded Friday at a peak of 105½, dipped to a low yesterday of 104½. The 8 percent bonds of 2001, which hit a high of 103½, were offered yesterday at 102½. margin maintenance on stocks under $10. Equity can fall to 35 percent before margin calls are made on stocks priced above $10.

Late last week; many credit market analysts concluded that the Federal Reserve was in the process of dropping its target level for Federal funds, which are immediately available funds that banks lend to each other, to 43/2 percent—balf a point below the 51/2 percent target in effect since July. But over the last two days, many have revised their views on the basis of the Fed's actions in the money market and have concluded instead that the central bank wants the funds rate at 5 percent.

"Certainly the Fed isn't making any attempt to hold the rate below 5 percent," tice Department because the department had already requested and received the one Government securities dealer said yesterday. Third-quarter results marked the fifth consecutive quarter in which Chase has felt the impact of its heavy loan loss provisions and the adverse effect of reduced rate and coninterest accruing loans due largely to its considerable exposure to the troubled real estate industry.

The provision for possible loan losses in tha third quarter was $79.1 million, down 17.5 percent from $95.9 million in the third quarter of 1975, when Chase said it had substantially increased its provision because of conditions in the real estate sector. Actual net loan chargeoffs during the third quarter were $72.4 million, down from $122.8 million a year ago, when, according to the report, Chase had a substantial writeoff on a loan to major retailer.

The report said that the 1976 ninemooth results "remain below desired levels." It said that year-to-date earnings continued to be adversely affected by the high level of the loan loss provision, notaccrual and reduced rate loans and weak domestic business loan demand. Chise noted that the increase in its loan provisioo during the first nine months this year accounted for about 30 percent of the decline in earnings for that period compared with the nine mooths

HOUDAILLE SEEKING FORT WORTH STEEL

Offers to Purchase All Outstanding Stock for Cash at $19 a Share, or a Total Value of $18.9 Million

BY HERBERT KOSHETZ

Houdaille Industries announced in Buffalo yesterday that it was offering to buy all the outstanding common shares of the Fort Worth Steel and Machinery Company at a cash price of $19 a share. Houdaille said thet all shares tendered until 5 P.M. Dallas time and

6 P.M. New York time on Nov. 1 would be purchased. If all of the 969,335 outdered, Houdaille would expend $18.9 million. However, under the offer, Houdaille said it was obligated to buy only stock tendered if it received 170,992 sbares, or about 17.6 percent, of the outstanding shares. Together with the 313,676 shares aiready contracted for, Houdaille would have slightly more than 50 percent of

According to J. I. Jackson, chairman of Forth Worth Steel, the offer was unanimously approved by his board whose members, together with certain

The fourth amendment would make the same being the same being to get their issues on the ballot next month. The consumer groups gathered roughly half a million signatures on petitions to get their issues on the ballot next month.

California voters rejected 2 to 1 a much more stringent nuclear safeguard proposal in June, but that state's legislature enacted a softer measure just days before the vote. The California Public Utilities Commission also ordered the implementation of life-line rates by some utilities.

"Here in Ohio, it became very difficult for people outside Columbus to deal with the legislature so the initiative process became the way the people outside the capital could bave a major influence on energy policies," said Steven Sterrett of Vote Yes For Lower Utilities, the coalition of groups throughout the state work-

The main problem is in the lower Mississippi River from Alton, Ill., to New Orleans. The Ohio and Missouri Rivers have plenty of water.

A storm in the Northeast a few days ago caused a substantial rise in the Ohio in recent days. A Corps spokesman said the rise would temporarily relieve the harge operators' problems below Cairo, Ill., but could cause greater problems later. If the rise if followed by a rapid fall—as seems likely by a rapid fall—as seems likely—more sediment that usual will be deposited in the channel.

During 45-day periods around March 21 and Sept. 21, the satellite's solar power supply becomes less reliable when the craft is in darkness for up to 90 minutes daily. Experiments are halted during these "eclipse" periods, the latest of which has just ended.

Both Americans and Canadians are testing small ground antennas, including some only two feet across, from the Japanese broadcast entity, Nippon Hoso Kyokai

The N.H.R. tests have attracted interest because the organization is buying from the General Electric Company's space systems department in Bala Cyn-wyd, Pa., a satelitte for direct television broadcasting to such small antennas

launched early in 1978.

A factor in the ability of Hermes to broadcast to such small antennas is its use of the frequency band between 11 billion and 14 billion cycles per second, far higher than the 4-6 bil-lion-cycle band used by standard com-munications satellites. Use of the higher band, assigned to communications satellites in 1971, is expected to be-come widespread in the inneteen-eighties—and to reduce potential elec-troic "crowding" or interference among satellites dotted along the equator.

Competition Is Intense

On Solar Research Unit

for a United States Government research facility concerns the projected Solar Energy Research Institute, even though its projected size has been scaled down sharply from an originally planned annual budget of $50 million at the end of three years and site selection has been delayed past the ori-

A total of 20 organizations from New England to California, many with state government sponsorship, filed proposals for the center. Tast week, 19 of six months ago, but still far above the target of 50 cents per watt that ERDA seeks by 1986. In that year, ERDA anticipates a total production of 500,000

Although the quarterly gain announced today was the sixth in a row, it did leave Mr. Carter a new opening to attack the Administration's policy of encouraging a neasured recovery.

John Kendrick, the Commerce Depart-ment's chief economist, said today that percent growth was required to keep up with the normal growth in the labor force, adding: "We'll need somewhat stronger increases to whittle down unem-

Mr. Kendrick, nevertheless, maintained that the business expansion would not abort, as some had feared, and would resume faster growth at a 6 percent rate in the current quarter. This would bring the gain for the year as a whole to about

"We're continuing to get recovery." Mr.
Kendrick said. "There are not enough negative signs to suggest there is an end anywhere in sight"

Statement Issued by Carter

Mr. Carter, in a statement released by his Atlanta headquarters, said: "After seeing bad economic indicators for over a month, we now have proof that the economy is in a downward slide." He added that this implied "a continuation of high unemployment, huge budget deficits and poor prospects for an improvement in the standard of living of the average worker.

The reference to other economic measures presumably was to the index of leading indicators (a sharp decline at latest report), wholesale prices (a sharp in-crease), industrial production (un-changed) and unemployment (a decline, but by the slimmest amount possible).

Tilford C. Gaines, chief economist of the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Company, said today in a telephone interview that President Ford's position would be severely jeopardized if the release of the Consumer Price Index on Thursday failed to show a significant decline for Septem-ber. The index is the last major economic indicator scheduled for release before the

the third-quarter GNP., 26 percent, but it also expects inflation to be cut to 4 percent or less for September from the 6 percent that has prevailed much of this

Mr. Gaines predicted that today's pre-liminary G.N.P. figure would be revised

The inflation component of today's G.N.P. data, measured by the so-called 'deflator," showed that the increase in the cost of living eased to 4.4 percent in the third quarter from 5.2 percent in the second quarter.

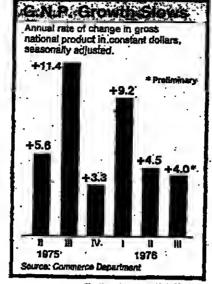

Real Final Sales Up by 4.4%

In explaining the G.N.P. figures, the Commerce Department noted that all the economic "deceleration" reflected a reduction in the rate at which businesses accumulated inventories. Real final sales rose by 4A percent, somewhat more than in the first half of this year.

Although it is not unusual for rates of growth to slow—or even turn briefly negative-during the second year of an economic recovery, some economists be-lieve the Federal Reserve has bene responding to a bleaker reassessment of the economic outlook in moving to ease credit during the last couple of weeks. Measured in 1972 dollars, the G.N.P. was at a seasonally adjusted annual rate 1,100 Quarterly data, annual Rates

Commenting on the vigorous increase in housing starts, both single-family and multi-family units, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Carla Hills noted that the 1976 total had already exceeded starts for all of last year.

"In most sections of the country we have indications of a continuing boom in single-family homes and a marked improvement in multi-family," Mrs. Hills said. "This is an excellent performance and indicates the underlying strength of the economy. It will also have a highly favorable impact on employment in the construction industry."

KENNECOTT AND OTHERS JOIN IN COPPER PRICE CUTS

The nation's largest copper producer and other companies in the field announced price reductions yesterday.

The Kennecott Sales Corporation, the largest company, said that effective im-mediately, its price for full-plate electrolytic copper cathodes in the United States would be 70 cents a pound, a reduction of 4 cents—the same as the cut previously made by the other compa-

The Inspiratioo Consolidated Copper Company, the Cities Service Company and Century Brass Products Inc. also announced price cuts.

They joined the Phelps Dodge Corpora-tion, which began the cuts on Oct. 6 and Inco Ltd., Asarco Inc. and the Anaconda Sales Company, a unit of the Anaconda Company, which already had cut their copper prices.

In other pricing actions, Uniroyal Chemical said it would raise the price of selected grades of thermoplastic rubber. Another major metals and mining com-pany, Amax Inc., reported gains of 27.9 percent in third-quarter net income and 38.9 percent in sales.

The report placed net income at $37.6 million, or $1.08 a share, against $29.4 million, or 88 cents a share, in the like 1975 period. Sales rose to $303.7 million from $218.6 million in the three months ended Sept. 30, 1975.

The company pointed out that molybdenum and petroleum earnings were higher because of increased shipments and prices and improved base metals: earnings. However, these gains were par-tially offset by lower coal earnings as a result of work stoppages and higher

You can't build it into a game plan—or a marketing plan, for that matter. But momentum can mean everything when it comes to moving the ball or a product. And the alert quarterback or media planner knows how to take advantage of it.

SI closed out the third quarter of this year up 16% in advertising revenues. And our second issue of the fourth quarter (October 11) set an all-time single-issue record of $3 million worth of advertising.

That's momentum. The kind you can put to work for your product by running your ads where the best action in magazines is . . .

Supermarket Computerization Studied

Advertising

Slowly and, it is hoped, surely the Advertising Research Foundation is moving ahead with its plans for Project Payout.

Intended to discover the exact relationship between promotion and sales, it would have at its heart the computerized checkout counters that are slowly finding their way into supermarkets

The project was announced two years ago and yesterday, at the annual conference of the A.R.F. at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, Paul E. J. Gerhold, former president of the foundation, and John S. Coulson, vice president-research of Leo Burnett U.S.A., gave a progress

For so many companies the checkout counter is where it is all at and as Mr. Gerhold put it, it is "the place where the end of the chain of distribution meets tha end of the chain of advertising and promotion, where supply and demand forces come together to make the market for the brand."

Working with a small number of supermarkets that have installed the scanners for the Universal Product Code, the A.R.F. will on a daily basis get the records of product sales in 20 categories.

Subscribing companies will get that information as well as details of "sales infloences"—prevailing prices, records of newspaper, magazine, television advertising as wall as outdoor and point-of-sale advertising and rec-

On top of all thet, photographs will be taken each day of the supermarket shelves to show what kind of facing each brand is getting and whether it is in stock.

Subscribers will get information on heir own as well as competitors'

The project has had slow going be-cause the economy, and protesting labor unions and consumer groups have delayed the installation of the checkut. systems. However, Mr. Coulson said the A.R.F. hoped it could begin its "shakedown cruise" next year. Project Payout could cost "well-over $1 million."

The session began with an extremely interesting film in which seven pioneers in marketing research were interviewed by off-camera Rena Bartos, senior vice oresident of J. Walter Thompson. The majority of the pioneers seemed less than pleased with the state of the art today.

The remainder of the morning was given over to the exploration of such tantalizing topics as pulsing, advertising evaluation, TV diary keeping and Pulsing, or running advertising in bursts, waves or flights rather than consistently, was the subject attacked by William T. Moran, marketing research director of Lever Brothers. His remarks were of e highly technical nature (it was the right place for it) but afterward in a private moment he said that what the research really showed was that pulsing was all right for a brand with a small ed budget that has e long purchase cycle and is backed by good advertising copy.

Malcolm McNiven, vice president of marketing services of Pillsbury, said these days you never hear research people questioning the fact that advertising programs can be evaluated, only if the company can afford to evaluate. He also noted "a real decline in the He also noted "a real decline in the development of new ways to measure advertising," Now, he said, people seem to be more interested in refining existing methods.

TV audience research based oo diary keeping (used by both Nielsen and Arbitron) is not highly accurate, according to John A. Dimling Jr., vice president and director of research of the National Association of Broadcasters.

"We can conclude," he said, "that television diary surveys conducted with a listed telepholoe household campling frame are clichtly hissed be sampling frame are slightly biased be-cause they understate television view-ing by all television households. "Television diary surveys are subject to a modest level of nonresponse hias. Households that take part in diary surveys tend to have slightly higher viewing levels than those which do not.

'Diary surveys are subject to re-sponse bias. The magnitude of this hias is the most serious of the three studied. Incomplete recording of view-ing by diary respondents results in an

And, finally, Rooald Gatty, a professor at Baruch College, and R. Curtis Graeber of the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, cautioned the multitude of researchers present that bio-rhythms do indeed exist in human beiogs and that the time of day, month or year thet respondents are interviewed can greatly affect research re-

Responding with vigor, the audience applauded rhythmically.

Higher Ad Revenues Seen

For the third time this year the Newspaper Advertising Bureau has reised its projection of 1976 advertising revenues. Jack Kauffman, president of the N.A.B., announced at a meeting of the Inland Press Association at the Drake Hotel, Chicago, that the current estimate was a 17 percent increase over last year, bringing the grand total to $9.9 billion.

The breakdown, he said, goes this way: retail advertising $5.7 billion; classified, tha fastest growing category, $2.8 billion, and national, $1.5 hillion.

Free Enterprise Stressed

Along the free-enterprise trail, Phil-lips Petroleum reports that it received 22,000 orders for teachers for showings of its "American Enterprise" series of five films. The films, according to their sponsor, depict the nation's eco-nomic history from different points of Elsewhere on the trail, Dun's Review, tha business publication, is also taking up cudgels, in behalf of the system. Dun's is offering businesses a poster that features the old pointed-finger Uncle Sam from World War I with the legend, "In America, this truth is self evident... PROFITS IS NOT a four-letter word.

A Cause for Neighing

Classic oragazine is celebrating its classic diagazine is celebrating its first anniversary with an issue carrying 75 peges of edvertising. That's nice. During its first year it carried 345 pages and, since it's published only every other month, that's nice, too. The publication is elmed et the affluent lover of horses and has the subtitle "The Magazine About Horses and Sport." And there are enough interest-ed parties around to allow Classic to increase its circulation rate base with the coming March-April issue to 90,000 from 75,000.

Dollar Declines Abroad On Expectation of Rise In West German Rates

Cunard Settles Dispute Blocking Purchase of Maritime Fruit Ships

The Cunard Steam Ship Company announced in London yesterday that it reached an out-of-court settlement of a dispute that was bolding up its proposed acquisition of the 12 remaining refrigerated cargo vessels of the financially troubled Maritime Fruit Company, an Israeli-American shipping con-

Cunard, a subsidiary of Trafalgar House Investments, had agreed to buy all 12 British-flag ships from Maritime Fruit for about $102 million. However, Norinvest, a Norwegian financial concern, had arranged separately to sell two of the ships in its capacity as leader of the loan syndicates that financed them. Because Maritime Fruit was unable to pay its dehts, Norinvest arranged to sell the two vessels to the Willy Bruns Company, a Hamburg, West Germany, shipping concero.

When Cunard and Maritime Fruit prepared to appeal, West German interests made a counteroffer for all 12 ships. Cunard said yesterday that the parties had reached an amicable agreement whereby the Cunard cootract to buy the 12 vessels would be completed as planned and that Cunard would then arrange for the eventual sale of two of the vessels to Bruns on Oct. 22.

Maritime Fruit, which specialized in refrigerated-cargo transportation, has heen trying to stave off its creditors and avoid liquidation for months hy selling off its vessels registered in several countries. Many of the ships were seized by creditors to cover debts when the company ran into financial

The company noted that while the aggregate amount of the expenditures had not heen finally determined Ste-phen J. Kneapler had agreed to reimburse the company, upon completion of an accounting of such expenditures, which are estimated at $60,000.

Caterpillar Plans to Offer $200 Million in Debentures

The Caterpillar Tractor Company announced it planned a public offering of $200 million of sinking fund deben-tures due Nov. 1, 2001. Proceeds will be used to finance capital expenditures. The farm equipment company said it planned capital expenditures of about $1.8 hillion during 1976 to 1978.

The company said Lehman Brothers Inc. and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc. would head the nationwide group making the public offering scheduled for late October.

Federal Financial to Buy W. T. Grant Receivables

ANNOUNCING THE KEY ISSUES LECTURE

Changing Marketing Strategies In A New Economy

Our economy is essentially an economy of large-scale production. To distribute this output, marketing plays a key role. But marketing techniques cannot remain static in our dynamic economy. This has been well demonstrated by the marked changes in recent

How will marketing have to be adapted to the bewildering array of economic changes that are now developing? What will be the social consequences of the changing pattern of production, financing, distribution and consumption? How will market strategies have to be changed to meet the influx of foreign multinational corporations on our shores?

The Key Issues Lecture Series et NYU for fall 1976 and winter 1977 is a six part series devoted to discussing various aspects of these long-range problems. This topical series of free public lectures is made possible through a grant from the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, 320 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022.

outside Brooklyn. Many live in Bed-ford-Stuyvesant itself. Minority work-ers make up more than 90 percent of the employees.

At the new plant there is a possibility of eventual expansion to 500 employees, but it is not with expansion in mind that I.B.M. undertook the project, officials said. The present leased multifloor building is considered inefficient for manufacturing. For that reason a search for a new site started about three years ago.

The one chosen was owned by the city in the central Brooklyn Model Cities area. The newly built Lyndon Baines Johnson Nursing Home is across the street, and P.S. 54 is to one side. At one time the plan was for housing and a school on the site.

Employment has been stable at the Brooklyn plant, the l.B.M. officials said, and turnover has heen low. "Attrition is about the same as anywhere else," said Mr. Hubner. Nor have there been unusual security problems. Absenteeism has been "just slightly higher than elsewhere."

For some employees, jobs at the I.B.M. plant have meant eventual transfers to other I.B.M. locations. There were 14 transfers in 1969, 15 in 1970, 27 in 1971, 46 in 1972, 30 in 1973, 15 in 1974 and 13 in 1975.

The construction itself is a help for minority employment. The restoration corporation said that at least 50 per-cent of all the workers on the site will be minority members, and more than 40 percent of the dollar volume of construction will go to minority

QUARTER NET UP 44% FOR TIMES COMPANY

Revenues Climb to $108 Million, a Record-9-Month Profit Rises to $1.16 a Share From $1.02

The New York Times Company reported yesterday that its consolidated net income for the three months ended Sept. 30 rose by 44 percent on revenues that set a record of $108 million.

Profits for the quarter increased to $4.28 million, or 38 cents a share, from $2.97 million, or 26 cents a share, in the same three months of 1975.

For the first nine months of this year profits from all of the company's operations totaled $13.15 million, or $1.16 a share, compared with $11.34 million, or $1.02 a share, in the same 1975 period. $95 Million in 1875 Quarter

The New York Times Company's thirdquarter consolidated revenues of $108 million, compared with $95 million in the same period last year. For the nine months of this year the company grossed $328.68 million, also a record, compared the company grossed $328.68 million, also a record, compared the company grossed $328.68 million, also a record, compared the company grossed the c with $293.32 million in the first nine months of 1975.

We are naturally pleased by this sharp increase in earnings and revenues, and we look forward with confidence to maintaining this momentum through-out the rest of the year," said Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, chairman and president of the company.

The company's magazine group, which credit generated by a new satelittle includes such publications as Family printing plant in Carlstadt, N. J. Circle, Golf Digest and Tennis, had a The New York Times carried 16.38 particularly strong third quarter. Pre-tax income rose 22 percent to $1.74 million on revenues that increased 13 percent to

Also adversely affecting profits, said Mr. Connolly, is the store group's bad-debt total, which is running at a "high

But we think it can be reduced by better controls," he added.

The drive for consistency at Gimbel has resulted in these varied moves: 4About 30 percent of all suppliers, particularly those of "fringe catego-ries," have been dropped, while the percentage of European apparel imports has been "dramatically" reduced. Major departments have been terminated, such as furs, liquors, bridal wear and garden supplies, in order to provide space for more productive departments, such as women's sports-wear, men's wear, and accessories.

of 1976. The newspaper operated at a pre-tax loss of $356,000 compared with a pre-tax deficit of $491,000 in the third quarter of last year.

The newspaper earned 7 cents a share in the quarter, however, after adjustments for an increased investment tax

of 8 percent. Pre-tax earniogs for the company's weekday circulation in the quarter newspaper affiliates, a group of nine averaged 796,000 copies a gain of 18,000 dailies and four weeklies in Florida and North Caroling, increased by 54 percent averaged 1,394,000, a gain of 3,000 copies.

and Lexington Avenue, has been changed to make that 14-level stree (twn are underground) consistent with the other 11 units. "Gimbel's East was used primarily for television advertising," said Mr. Kallman, "and frequently it promoted goods not available in the nther Gimbel stores. Now all stores have the same merchandise and nur advertising is consistent."

¶A remodeling program has been generated to update first the Broadway store and then the Yonkers store. While renovations are probably more a func-tion of appearance and housekeeping than of merchandising, he said, "an or-ganization should also look consistent as well as function consistently." "It will add to the basic strength we hope to project to the public," Mr. Kallman added.

More Than $200 Million in Sales

In recent years, Gimbels New York with annual sales of mnre than $200 million, has been one of the area's trou-bled retailers, primarily because "we didn't move with the times," Mr. Kall-

"We didn't give enough space or have enough inventory in the departments that are most in demand-sportswear junior apparel, moderate-priced men's wear and home furnishings fashion items," he added. "Now we are beefing

The Gimbel group's sales, last year running to about $215 million, are expected to rise to about $240 million, which will keep it among the six largest department store retailers in the area. The big five are Macy's, Abraham & Straus, Korvette, Alexander's, and

Bloomingdale. Gimbel's East sales are op about 12 percent from last year while the Broad-way store's volume is running about 6 perceot ahead. Cao an unprofitable chain run two stores only a few miles apart in the same borough? "Yes," Mr. Kallman replied. "The transfer of business from Broadway because of Gimbel's East has already drained off."

12 Lost, 3 Are Rescued From Ship Off Canada

HALIFAX, Canada, Oct. 19 (AP)— Twelve crewmembers were lost and presumed dead and three others were rescued today after they abandoned a small Dutch freighter sinking in rough seas off Newfoundland, the Canadian Search and Rescue Center said.

The ship, identified as the 1,200-ton Gabriella, was believed still afloat but taking on water. A spokesman for the rescue center said a military helicopter lifted one man from a raft and flew him to a hospital in St. John's.

Two other survivors were brought aboard the container ship Trans-America, which had responded to e distress signal. The rescued crewmen were suffering from exposure. The Trans-America, bound for Toronto, stood by to search for the bodies of the lost crewmen, some reported still floating

TV: 'Madama Butterfly' in a Superb Production

Opera on Channel 13 Tonight Is Marred by Post-Dubbing

By JOHN J. O'CONNOR

WNET/13's grabbag "Great Performances" series—stuffed with drama, music and dance-continues this evening at 9 with a selection from its "Fine Music Specials" category. It is Puccini's "Madama Butterfly," featuring a remarkable collection of musical talents: Mirella Freni as Butterfly, Placido Domingo as Pinkertoo, Christa Ludwig as Suzuki and Robert Kerns as Sharpless—all wrapped in the lush orchestral sounds of the Vienna Philharmonic, cooducted by Herbert von Karajan.

Musically, the production is superb (a simulcast of the sound track will be carried in stereo on WQXR AM and FM). The sound was obviously prerecorded, achieving a studio perfection virtually impossible in direct perform-ance. On the other hand, this technique produces visual problems. The dubbing becomes apparent and sometimes distracting in out-of-sync lip movements. In addition, some of the singing is used as a sort of interior monologue, and at several points vocal sounds are heard with a complete absence of lip move-

connection between powerful sound and an image suggesting oo unusual effort. The sound soars while the image pre-tends to do busioess as usual. This writer has often objected to the prerecording process on television for pretonight's "Madama Butterfly," the vis-ual ambition and impact are far beyond the average and an exception can be

This is a European production, from the Unitel organization, with Fritz But-tenstedt as executive producer. It was designed and directed by Jean-Pierre Pocelle. The unorthodox result is generally both atartling and fascinating. Again visually, this is a lovely produc-tion, creating the impression of an oolocation Japanese setting dreoched in soft pastel colors. Film editing is used as an integral part of the pacing. Mo-tion is slowed, at one point even stopped altogether, in attempts to better grasp the dramatic center of a scene or musical passage. All of these techniques, basically taken from filmmaking, are not neces-sarily successful. The first time thet the camera does a circular pan of the set-ting, flitting from blank spaces to closeups of faces and fluttering fans, the effect is charming. The fifth time around, it becomes somewhat tedious. The production is most impressive with straightforward camera shots, focused on almost stationary figures and group-

Tha acting is extremely good. Miss Freni, kept in tight directorial control. With Vienna Philharmonic avoids her usual coquettish mannerisms to capture the deeper attractive ness of a courtesan or geisha. Superbly costumed and made up, she creates a Butterfly that is memorably affecting. Mr. Domingo's Pinkertoo verges on the stereotype of the repulsive American. Chewing gum, swilling whisky, throwing around money, showing disrespect for Butterfly's religious objects, this Pinkerton is a robust creation, saved from pure villainy by his natural stu-

The production as a whole seems to emphasize any opportunity for anti-American sentiment, which is ironic, as the opera was inspired by a David Belasco play that Puccini had seen in London. But no opportunity is missed to underline the differences between a crass Uncle Sam, actually represented io caricature, and the Eastern innocence and gentleness of a Butterfly. Far from being objectionable, however, it only

The production is filled with marvelous scenes, from the almost startlingly explicit love duet that ends Act I to the joyful scattering of flower petals indicating Butterfly's fantasy of a happy future. Maintaining a splendid balance between small detail and sustained lyricism, the opera maintains its extraordioary ability to disarm and se-duce. Tha proven chestnut has lost none of its artistic power.

Be a good girner. Go swallow your nose.

The Queen of Girners, above, just swallowed her nose. To qualify, lose your chin, cross your eyes, make faces like last year's Limburger. Girning? It's an old Scotch word for snarling and some old scotch sure helps. Founder is old Laugh-

Iner Gary Owens, who put out the call for Silly Putty faces on his L.A. radio show He may look straight in the picture, but "of course I'm girning. If I werent, he face would be too horrible to look at." Life got you down? Girn and bear it.

Why, bless you, have you ever come to the right place. Pick up the nearest People and, zingo, you'll be in the middle of the happiest happening in magazines.

Look how People's soaring. Our circulation's up there at 1,800,000. Already! Which means 10,500,000* very with-it readers. Which means ... some market.

Because these are exactly the people any advertiser of people products wants to talk to. They're the young, educated, prospering, urban men and women who latch onto new ideas and turn them into trends and phenomena. They read People cover-to-cover...front, middle and back...because it's their kind of humanity-in-print.

If you want proof that advertisers have bought the People idea all the way, look at the variety of ads. Food, cosmetics, tobacco, cars, apparel, liquor, appliances, and on and on. And there's more impressive proof:

We went from 43rd to 14th in PIB ad pages in the first half!
Yes, People's the magazine with the momentum. The new media option. The new marketplace.

• Publisher's estimate.
